MINERS' OFFICIALS UNDECIDED, CONSERVATISM GAINING; GOMPERS ASSAILS THE ADMINISTRATION AS UNJUST; PALMER WARNS LABOR IT CANNOT NULLIFY THE LAW

DEMOCRATS' OFFERS FAIL

WHAT WILSON MAY ACCEPT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—At the end of a day of exhaustive debate the Senate at adjournment tonight still had before it the reservation of the Foreign Relations Committee majority on Article X. of the League of Nations, under the treaty with Germany, which President Wilson has denounced as "striking a knife thrust at the heart of the treaty." A vote on the reservation is expected tomorrow, with every indication of it being adopted by a substantial majority.

The Administration forces tried in vain to put through amendments to the reservation so as to eliminate the abrupt declination of the United States to be bound by any obligation imposed under Article X., except by the consent of Congress. Every effort of the minority was voted down.

The day's debate was signalized by various sharp clashes between minority and majority Senators, bitter feeling being evidenced by the opposing forces. The Administration Senators characterized the pending reservation as "destructive," suggesting that, if it were adopted, they would vote to reject the ratifying resolution.

The majority forces in voting down a substitute reservation offered by Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, which was identical with one put in some time ago by Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, but later withdrawn in favor of the Lodge reservation, showed that they were bent on carrying out their set program. The vote on this substitute, which softened the phrasing of the majority reservation and did not go so far in stating the refusal of the United States to be bound by a decree of the League of Nations under Article X., was 48 against and 36 in favor.

In the debate on this reservation Senator McCumber, taxed by Senator Thomas with having offered it and then withdrawn it so that the majority forces might have their way, remarked that, when he submitted it, he did so in the hope that a compromise might be effected between the two sides in the treaty fight.

"But it was not accepted by the minority," said Senator McCumber. "They declined to consider it. In the interest of coming to an agreement I withdrew it, and intend now to support the committee reservation. The opportunity for compromise was rejected by the minority. The blame is upon them."

Text of the Thomas Substitute.

The Thomas substitute, as originally offered by Senator McCumber and voted on today, after Mr. Thomas had resurrected it, was as follows:

That the suggestions of the Council of the League of Nations as to the means of carrying the obligations of Article 10 into effect are only advisory, and that any undertaking under the provisions of Article 10, the execution of which may require the use of American military or naval forces or economic measures, can under the Constitution be carried out only by the action of the Congress, and that the failure of the Congress to adopt the suggestions of the Council of the League, or to provide such military or naval forces or economic measures, shall not constitute a violation of the treaty.

The vote by which the Thomas resolution was defeated follows:

Rumanians Are Waging Bitter Electoral Contest

BUCHAREST, Nov. 10.—Election campaigns are in full swing throughout Rumania. Although the electoral struggle is being bitterly contested, order reigns everywhere.

The 240 seats in the Chamber of Deputies to be filled are being sought by 240 Liberals under the leadership of J. J. C. Bratiano, the former Premier, 867 candidates of various other political affiliations and a large number of followers of Take Jonescu, Minister without portfolio, and General Fofoza Ayeresco, who succeeded M. Bratiano as Premier in January, 1918.

CALLS CITY HEADS IN TRACTION 'CRIME'

ALL HYLAN LETTERS SOUGHT

The heads of several city departments were subpoenaed before the Extraordinary Grand Jury yesterday, and ordered to submit all correspondence in their office files from a date early in 1918 to the present time, both private and official, for the inspection of the jury. A group of process servers were kept busy for several hours reaching the city officials and other witnesses wanted and in getting the papers and documents to the Criminal Court Building.

In response to subpoenas these city officials appeared before the jury: Grover A. Whalen, former secretary to Mayor Hylan, who is now Commissioner of Plants and Structures; Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, Second Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Lahey, commander of the Detective Bureau; Grant Crabtree, Chief of the Bureau of Records at Police Headquarters, and Roger K. Walsh, chief clerk of the Police Department.

Four others who answered subpoenas are now connected with private detective agencies. They are George Barnits, formerly a policeman connected with the bomb squad; Edward Hughes, a former acting police inspector, and A. Cohen and George Young. One other man who was subpoenaed, but who did not go into the Grand Jury room, was Patrick J. Connolly, President of the Brotherhood of Interborough Rapid Transit Employes.

Practically all of the city officials entered the jury room carrying brief cases or bundles of letters or documents, presumably the papers asked for by the jury. Some carried books, supposed to be records from the different departments. With a few exceptions all the books and papers were apparently retained by the jury. It was evident that none of these visitors to the Grand Jury room were questioned at length, as they came out after a few minutes, but it is understood that they are all to appear again.

People vs. Hedley.

According to the subpoenas the correspondence demanded consists of all letters and documents that have passed between the different heads of departments and the Mayor, beginning at some month in 1918, said to be the early part of the year. It was supposed that the city employes were called on to produce certain records and papers and to identify them as the original records of their offices. When Commissioner Enright came out of the Grand Jury room he said:

"Gentlemen, I was called down here on a subpoena headed People vs. Hedley. There is no connection in my appearance here with vice or gambling. I wish you would state that." When he was reminded that it was not known that there was an action pending entitled "The People against Hedley," the Commissioner added: "I mean the Interborough thing."

It was later learned that all of the subpoenas were worded "People vs. Hedley." When Commissioner Enright's statement was called to the attention of the foreman of the jury, Raymond F. Almirall, he said:

"Mr. Enright was authorized to say only that he was subpoenaed in the case of the People against Frank Hedley and others."

Frank Hedley, now President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was a witness before the Grand Jury some days ago, following the request by the District Attorney that the jurymen investigate information he had received from Mayor Hylan, to the effect that it seemed that the recent strike of subway employes was brought about by collusion between employes and officials of the Interborough, to get approval for increased transit fares.

The activity by the jury yesterday indicated, however, that it was going beyond this particular phase of the inquiry, and was evidently engaged in a searching investigation into what they had termed "a crime which completely overshadows the charge by the Mayor, and which may escape detection," mentioned in their letter to Governor Smith, when he was asked to appoint special

GOMPERS EXHORTS LABOR

Declares Wilson Does Not Fully Understand Strike Situation.

ASSERTS DUTY TO PROTEST

NO FEAR OF IMPRISONMENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, at a dinner given tonight at the Hotel Willard to the delegates to the International Labor Conference, reasserted the determination of American organized labor to stand behind the coal strikers.

Support of the United Mine Workers in the strike was pledged by the delegates present at the dinner, on the proposal of Louis M. Morrones, a Mexican representative.

Mr. Gompers said that American labor stood for all the ideals of Americanism and was in accord with the Government when it followed a course of freedom and justice. The present administration, he asserted, had failed to conform to these principles and American labor had no alternative, therefore, but "to assert that the principles of justice, freedom and democracy must prevail over any temporary administration."

"Whenever and wherever an attempt is made by the employers as employers or by the Government as a Government to depart from the fundamental principles of justice and humanity," Mr. Gompers said, "it is not only the right but it is the duty of the men and women of labor to stand up and protest regardless of what the consequences must be.

"It is the duty of labor and it must be its standard to fight for justice and a better standard of life. We must do in our lives the best we can, but our lives are just a passing incident in the continuity of civilization and the progress of humanity.

"What matters it if you or I are placed in jail because we have attempted to uphold the principles of freedom and justice and democracy? It is better that we should have our self-respect and hand down to the generations yet to come the principles of freedom than to live an inglorious life. To know how to die is a big thing, but it is better to know how to live for our fellow beings."

Gompers Defends Mine Workers.

After Leon Jouhaux, a French delegate, had promised in a speech at the dinner that the workers of France would aid the workers in this country in their fight, Mr. Gompers expanded upon his attack on the policy which has been adopted by the Government in fighting the strike of the United Mine Workers of America. He said that the American workers would be found in the first place in any effort that would be made for international brotherhood and carrying out "concepts and high principles of labor."

"In addition, I may say this," continued Mr. Gompers, "that in the present disturbed conditions which prevail in the United States there is not an organization of working people which has been regarded as more conservative and constructive in its principles and its policies than the United Coal Mine Workers of America. We shall give a good account of ourselves in defense and advocacy of the principles of freedom and justice as represented in the American labor movement.

"We are in accord with the principles of Americanism and of the high ideals of America. We are in accord with our Government when we believe or know that our Government is following out a course of justice and freedom and human development as expressed by the principles of democracy.

"When our Administration fails to conform to those principles, when our Administration for the time being fails to stand for the principles of democracy and freedom and justice, then we have no alternative but to assert that freedom and justice must prevail against any temporary administration of the affairs of our country.

"We are tied to no administration; we are free men and women and propose to exercise the freedom of judgment and of conduct and to criticise or to express ourselves in dissent from the policies pursued.

Says President Doesn't Know.

"We believe that because of conditions prevailing in our country, and by reason of the fact that the President of our beloved Republic suffered from a severe stroke, the full measure of American labor's concept of freedom did not reach him. We have faith in

HOUSE REFUSES TO SEAT BERGER

BERGER SPEAKS DEFIANTLY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Victor L. Berger, Socialist, elected to Congress from the Fifth Wisconsin District, after having been convicted of violation of the Espionage act, was barred from his seat in the House today by a vote of 309 to 1. Representative Voigt of Wisconsin, who spoke in favor of seating Mr. Berger, voted in the negative.

This action was taken after a violent speech by Mr. Berger in which he denounced the Government, belittled members of the House, and declared that he would take back nothing that he had said in his speeches and articles, which led to his conviction in a Federal court.

Mr. Berger made his defiant statement to the House after Representative Dallinger, Chairman of the special committee which had investigated the case, had denounced him as unworthy of a place in the House and had reviewed the utterances which led to his conviction.

"The one and only issue in this case is that of Americanism," said Mr. Dallinger. "It is whether a man who in 1911 took an oath as a member of the House to support the Constitution of the United States and who, when this country declared war against the Imperial German Government, became the head and front of an organized conspiracy to hinder, obstruct, and embarrass the Government in its fight for existence, should be admitted to membership in this House simply because a constituency in one of our States has seen fit to give him a plurality of its vote.

"This issue is far broader than the question of a conviction for a violation of a particular statute by a court in Chicago, an appeal from which may be set aside by a higher court on technical grounds, and your committee is convinced upon all the facts and upon all the precedents in this House that Victor L. Berger should be excluded from membership, and that the question should be determined by the House here and now. In our opinion the House expects it; the men who fought for their country in the great war expect it; the entire country expects it."

An hour and a half was allowed Mr. Berger for his own defense. He employed it chiefly in reaffirming his convictions on war and Socialism. He started out by saying that he knew his exclusion from the House was to be a "cut-and-dried affair," because "I am a Socialist and an opponent of war and profiteering." He insisted that his ousting would make an "extremely vicious precedent which in the near future will plague its inventors."

"I take back nothing that I said in my speeches and articles," Mr. Berger declared. "Under the same circumstances I would say and write it all over again—only I would make it a great deal stronger because I have been justified by the events since the armistice was concluded and the war practically ended.

"Even the majority report of the committee admits that I am the regularly elected representative of the Fifth Wisconsin District. But I am to be barred from my seat on account of the position of the Socialist Party in this war—and because I was indicted upon order from the Attorney General under charges of conspiracy to 'interfere with the armed forces of the United States'—and found guilty by a hand-picked Federal jury, each member of which, according to a statement in The Chicago Herald-Examiner, had the O. K. of the American Protective League (a branch of the Secret Service) before he was put on the jury."

Mr. Berger explained that he and the four men indicted with him, two of whom he knew only slightly, were not charged with having met to discuss or plan the conspiracy.

"What the prosecution did charge," he said, "was that five men holding similar opinions against the war because they belonged to the same party conspired by means of a 'meeting of minds.' This legal fiction outrages

REPLY TO THE FEDERATION

STAND BACKED BY WILSON

UNIONS' EXEMPTION DENIED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Government answered the challenge of the American Federation of Labor on the coal strike tonight when Attorney General Palmer, with the full approval of President Wilson, issued a statement in which he again asserted that the strike of the bituminous coal miners was a violation of the laws of the United States and in which he made it plain that when it came to law enforcement the Government was no respecter of persons.

Those elements in the population who may conceive that the resolutions of organizations or the orders of persons are superior to the law will find, the Attorney General declared, that they were mistaken, for the United States Government would refuse "to surrender to the dictation of a group, and it proposes to assert its power to protect itself and the people."

The statement issued last night by the Executive Council of the federation, in which it indorsed the strike and pledged the full support of the federation to the miners, was the subject of careful scrutiny by Government officials today. It was also the subject of discussion in the Senate, where it was placed in the record by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Senator Myers of Montana said that he would rather freeze to death than see the Government recede from the stand it is taking.

President Wilson, it is believed, will issue a statement to the citizens of the country in the event that the officials of the United Mine Workers decide to defy the law by refusing to recall the strike order as directed in the mandatory injunction issued against them by Judge Anderson on Saturday. Tonight the Government is waiting definite information from its representatives in Indianapolis as to the decision of Acting President Lewis and the other national and district officers of the miners' organization.

While the miners' officials were meeting in Indianapolis the Executive Council of the Federation of Labor was conferring here behind closed doors in the Federation building. It is understood that the leaders in Washington and Indianapolis were in frequent communication by telephone.

Neither President Gompers nor any of the other national officers of the Federation would make any statement as to what transpired during the conference. One report, which lacks verification, is that one of the principal subjects discussed related to securing bail for Lewis and others of the miners' leaders in certain emergencies.

Find No Promise to Unions.

"At the Department of Justice a careful investigation was made of the department's records to ascertain what basis, if any, Gompers and the other Federation leaders had for the statement they made last night that ex-Attorney General Gregory had assured the labor leaders in 1917 that the Lever act would not be enforced against labor organization in their efforts to obtain improved working conditions, and that every assurance was given by the highest authority in the Government that the law would not be so applied.

"There is absolutely," it was said at the department, "no record to be found in the Department of Justice to substantiate this claim of Mr. Gompers and his associates."

It was added that the records showed that when the law was passed Congress specifically refused to insert any provision in the law to exempt labor from its provisions.

In its statement the Executive Council of the Federation also said that "authentic records show that the miners have less than 200 days of employment during each year." The records of the United States Geological Survey show that in 1916 the miners averaged 230 days each year, in 1917 243 days, and in 1918 249 days. From the armistice up to Oct. 25 last the records of the Geological Survey show that the bituminous mines worked on the average 62.5 per cent. of full time.

The coal strike discussion in the Senate followed the insertion of the Federation's statement into the record by Senator La Follette.

"I would rather freeze to death," said Senator Myers, "than see the Government recede from the position it has

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—This statement, by Attorney General Palmer, in reply to the American Federation of Labor Executive Council, was issued today:

The coal strike is a plain violation of a Federal statute. This has been the Government's position from the start. The President declared it to be unlawful and the court, after full hearing, has now declared it to be unlawful.

All I can say is that the law will be enforced. This same law has been enforced many times, and the Department of Justice has other cases now pending which were brought under it.

The merits of the controversy between the operators and the miners are not involved in the court proceedings at Indianapolis, neither is the right to strike. Nothing that the Government has done is intended or designed to have any effect upon the recognized right of labor to organize, to bargain collectively through its unions, and, under ordinary industrial conditions, to walk out by concerted action.

The proposal by the President of a peaceful settlement of the matters at issue between the operators and the miners, through negotiations or arbitration, was rejected, and the Government, therefore, faced the alternative of submitting to the demands of a single group, to the irreparable injury of the whole people, or of challenging the assertion by that group of power greater than that of the Government itself.

Confronted with such a choice, the Government's duty was perfectly clear: it refused to surrender to the dictation of a group and it proposes to assert its power to protect itself and the people, whom it is designed to serve. The Government is no respecter of persons in the enforcement of the law.

Those who conceive that the resolutions of a convention or the orders of the officers of any organization in the country, whether labor organization or any other, are superior in authority to the law of the land, will find themselves mistaken.

I assume that the order of the court will be obeyed. The President's offer for a peaceful settlement is still open and I hope that the miners and operators will now get together and settle their controversy.

LARKIN AND GITLOW HELD IN $15,000

"Big Jim" Larkin, Irish agitator and strike leader, and Benjamin Gitlow, a former Assemblyman of this State, the two most prominent prisoners caught in the raids by the Lusk Committee on Saturday night, were held in $15,000 bail each by Chief City Magistrate McAdoo yesterday on charges of criminal anarchy, based on their connection with "The Revolutionary Age."

The other thirty-three arrested in Saturday night's raids were held at Police Headquarters while counsel for the Lusk Committee and Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke worked on the evidence against them. Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger said that the legal machinery had been impeded because, when they started questioning prisoners yesterday, they found that some had changed their names and stories since they were questioned at Police Headquarters on Saturday night. More than a thousand persons were questioned Saturday night and Sunday morning, and the lawyers are waiting for several hundred pages of transcript to be produced by the shorthand reporters, so that they will be armed with the stories told by the prisoners.

Communists Held to Be Criminals.

Eighty men and two women arrested by Department of Justice agents on Friday night in raids in this city and in New Jersey are being examined at Ellis Island. The examination will continue for several days, when the local Immigration Board will report its recommendations to Washington.

While the statement was attributed to Department of Justice officials in Washington that all prisoners taken in the raid on Friday night would be deported, immigration officials said that the impossibility of sending men directly to Russia, together with the practice of granting freedom in ordinary cases on $1,000 bail and the long-drawn-out process of appeals, made it doubtful how many would be deported and how soon they would be deported. It was stated that the Government had consistently refrained from sending anarchists and dangerous aliens to portions of Russia controlled by anti-Bolshevist forces, because of the probability that they would be shot shortly after their arrival.

"According to the Immigration officials," Mr. Rorke said, "a lot of the Russians they are holding are not fighting the proceedings, but are begging to be returned to Russia and even offering to pay their own fare."

391 ALIEN REDS NOW UNDER ARREST

WILL RUSH DEPORTATION

Attorney General Begins Proceedings—$10,000 Bail Is the Least Accepted.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Deportation proceedings have been begun in a number of cities to rid the country of the violent radicals caught in the nation-wide raids which have been in progress since Friday, Attorney General Palmer announced tonight.

Instructions have gone to all Department of Justice agents, the Attorney General said, to permit no delay in beginning formal hearings, preliminary to the actual deportation. Assurances have been received from other Government departments having to do with deportations that action would be taken to expedite the cases.

In the meantime the cleanup of the country will continue, Mr. Palmer announcing tonight that there must be "no let up." The total number actually held on deportation warrants had reached 391 tonight, while from some cities in which radical leaders were picked up, reports had not reached the department.

Efforts of the department representatives, it was said, are being directed more particularly at the union of Russian workers. This organization, branded by the Attorney General as the most dangerous anarchistic group in the country, was said to have wide ramifications. Department agents are still uncovering new evidences of its activities.

The Department of Justice appears to think that the Russian union perhaps has been constituting itself a self-appointed leader of all organizations which are preaching overthrow of the Government. Literature seized is said to show that the organization has accepted support from almost any source so long as it was working to defeat authority and destroy private property rights. Officials said they had evidence showing that leaders of the union had made overtures to other and lesser groups of radicals to join their organization, holding out promises of rewards when State and society shall have been overthrown.

Where Arrests Have Been Made.

Baltimore	9	Trenton	1
Akron	32	Hartford	145

Total			391

Acting under instructions from Commissioner General of Immigration Camminetti to agents of the Immigration Service, in whose custody the prisoners are held, all of the prisoners, with the exception of two, are held in $10,000 bail. The two exceptions are Adolph Schnabel and Peter Blank, both high officials of the Russian Union. Bail in the case of these two men has been fixed at $15,000 each. To secure their freedom pending the final decision of the courts in the deportation proceedings, soon to start, the radicals now under arrest must raise a cash fund of $3,920,000.

At the Department of Justice it was said today that the Government's war on these alien agitators and conspirators is just getting under way and that there will be no letup until the country has been rid of them. Other important arrests in various parts of the country are known to be pending.

MINERS INCLINED TO OBEY

Indianapolis Conference in Session All Day and Far Into the Night.

HARD FIGHT BY RADICALS

But Conservatives Are Said to Predominate and Sane Counsels May Yet Prevail.

MUST ACT BY NOON TODAY

Lewis Says Decision May Not Be Reached Before Morning—33 Served With Writs.

No Vote Taken Up to 2 A. M.; Miners' Chiefs Still Talking

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Tuesday, Nov. 11.—At 2 o'clock this morning (3 o'clock New York time) the United Mine Workers' Executives were still in conference and had not started to take a vote on their action with regard to the order of the Federal Court that they call off the strike of coal miners.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Tuesday, Nov. 11.—After more than ten hours' debate Executives of the United Mine Workers of America, who met here today, had reached no agreement as to whether they would comply with the order of Federal Judge A. B. Anderson to call off the strike of coal miners, and they were still in session early this morning.

Just before midnight John L. Lewis, Acting President of the Mine Workers, left the hall for a few minutes and remarked that it looked like an all-night session.

The length of the debate indicated that a heated fight was in progress by those opposing compliance of the court order. However, it was the general belief that the conservatives would prevail in the end, and obey the court's injunction.

During the evening it was said by a delegate that the conference of international officials with district presidents, and members of the executive board and scale committee, would continue until a decision had been reached.

In this connection it was pointed out that the miners' representatives had no time to waste in recesses, since Judge Anderson's order provids that they shall present to him for approval, their strike calling off the strike, within seventy-two hours after the issuance of the mandate Saturday.

Although the meeting was closed and extraordinary measures were taken to prevent the proceedings from becoming public, it was ascertained from disconnected remarks dropped by delegates as they left the hall for lunch and dinner, that the discussion brought out wide divergence of opinion as to what course the coal workers should pursue with regard to the order of the court.

Alexander Howat, President of the Kansas district, remarked to Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois district, as they passed newspaper men:

"That was a good speech you made, Frank. I agree with it fully."

Mr. Howat, before leaving Kansas for the conference here, gave out a statement in which he declared that "regardless of injunction, prisons, and Judges" he intended to fight.

Another delegate said:

"It is not a question of going to jail. These men have no fear of that. What they are debating is the welfare of the United Mine Workers as affected by the court order requiring the strike order to be rescinded. They are debating, too, whether they should take a position that would be a stand against the attitude of the Federal Government."

Lewis Refuses to Talk.

Other officials and delegates adopted the same attitude.

There was every indication that the majority of the mine workers are determined to weigh carefully all phases of the issue before taking any step toward disobedience of the strike order. Most of the delegates are men past middle-age and their demeanor in passing to and from the convention hall indicated that they were giving careful consideration to the arguments.

All the members of the General Committee of the mine workers, including international officers, District Presidents, and members of the Executive Board and Scale Committee, were present, it was said, when the conference assembled in the Lincoln Hotel at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. It was found the Executive Board room at headquarters would not accommodate the full membership of the General Committee and the meeting was transferred to the hotel assembly room.

The meeting place was kept secret until just a few minutes before the conference convened. A sergeant at arms was stationed at the entrance and only delegates were permitted to approach within twenty feet of the entrance.

Shortly after 1 P. M. a recess was taken until 2 o'clock, and officials of the union, including Acting President Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer Green, on leaving the hall declared they had nothing whatever to give out as to the proceedings of the meeting and that nothing would be made public until after the afternoon session.

Early in the afternoon session deputies from the office of United States

Marshal Mark Storen appeared at the conference hall with about thirty-three writs issued in the original restraining order. The men served with the writs yesterday were those named in the original restraining order but had not been served.

With the exception of Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois district, who was intercepted on the street, all the men named in the injunction were served in the convention hall. The writs are returnable in the United States District Court, Dec. 1, while the original writs in the restraining order were made returnable Nov. 20.

The men served are:

EXPECT MEN TO OBEY CHIEFS.

Western Pennsylvania Miners Await Decision in Indianapolis.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 10.—Reports received here tonight indicate that the majority of striking miners in Western and Central Pennsylvania will abide by the decision of their leaders at the Indianapolis conference, relative to their returning to work.

Mercer County miners have signified their intention of going back to the mines immediately should the union leaders decide to abide by the injunction issued for the Government by Judge Anderson, according to word received from union headquarters at Sharon, Penn.

Mine union officials at Clearfield, Penn., will not discuss what action local striking miners will take if the strike is called off. However, the feeling among the miners, it is said, is that they will stand firm in their demands for an increase in wages and shorter hours.

Non-union mines in the district were reported running at capacity today by the operators, while mine union headquarters said there was "no change."

SOLDIERS OUT IN ST. LOUIS.

Surround Public Buildings on Order from Washington.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—Cordons of United States soldiers took up positions surrounding all public buildings in this city shortly after noon today. They were also placed at various points throughout the business districts and around some of the large business structures.

Information obtained stated that the orders for the placing of the soldiers came from Washington and each soldier was instructed to "watch out for suspicious characters."

ASSAILS STRIKE INJUNCTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—The San Francisco Board of Supervisors late today adopted by a vote of 17 to 1 a resolution requesting the United States Government to withdraw the injunction against the strike of bituminous coal miners and characterizing the injunction as "an injustice."

The resolution expressed belief that the Government's action would tend only to develop hate and would aid "those who are preaching hate against the form of government under which we live."

MINERS ASSAIL ANDERSON.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Nov. 10.—A statement condemning the ruling of Judge Anderson at Indianapolis in the Government injunction suit against the striking coal miners and pledging united support to Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, was issued today by forty-two delegates of the Belleville sub-district, representing more than 10,000 Illinois miners.

"The decision of Judge Anderson sounds to us like the raving of a maniac," said the statement. "We believe this to be a deliberate plan of the profiteers to fasten chains of autocracy on us. We are determined to stand on our constitutional rights and liberties even to the same extent our forefathers did, and we wish to advise that we are with you to a man. May our confidence give power to your actions and courage to your soul."

It was signed by President Thomas and Secretary Mason of the sub-district.

DES MOINES SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Public Buildings Face Shutdown Within 48 Hours for Lack of Coal.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 10.—Des Moines schools were closed today, and will remain so until the end of the coal strike. Lack of fuel was the reason.

Several public buildings and business places in the city will have to close within forty-eight hours if coal is not forthcoming.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 10.—In the grip of a blizzard and with nearly a foot of snow on the ground, the town of St. Francis, Kan., in the extreme northwest corner of the State, is out of coal, according to a telegram received today at Governor Allen's office.

50 MORE HARTFORD WARRANTS

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 10.—Warrants were telegraphed from Washington tonight for the arrests of about fifty more members of the Russian Workers' Union, whose names have been secured by the tedious examination of some of the original prisoners, and an attorney of New Haven continued today to endeavor to represent certain of the Reds, but his efforts were unavailing, as there is no appeal from an order of deportation, and only a writ of habeas corpus may delay return to Europe.

So prolific have been the detailed examinations of some of the leaders that there are still about twenty-five to be arraigned, and tonight Inspector Clark completed arrangements for hiring a number of special guards to be posted in an old, unused wing of the Hartford County Jail, whence tomorrow he will move his anarchists.

Copies of the incriminating and blasphemous constitution of the Red Union have been found on many of the prisoners, together with lists of names of present or prospective members.

BROTHERHOODS' CHIEFS TO MEET HINES TODAY

Director General of Railroads Is Expected to Refuse Demands for Wage Increases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Director General Hines has called the chiefs of the four railroad brotherhoods to confer with him here tomorrow to discuss labor questions directly affecting railroad employes. Mr. Hines is expected to outline the Railroad Administration's attitude on wages and working conditions.

It was said by Administration officials today that the Director General was not prepared at this time to meet the demands of the brotherhoods for substantial wage increases. A compromise offer based on a small general increase was thought probable.

Should the brotherhood chiefs press their demands, complications of the industrial situation are feared, it is said.

CLASHES IN YOUNGSTOWN.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 10.—Numerous clashes between pickets and deserters from the strikers' ranks marked the opening of the eighth week of the steel strike here. Observers estimated 2,000 additional workers returned to the steel plants today.

Several fights ensued when pickets visited homes of millworkers who had announced their intention of returning to work today. Joe Gradutitch, a picket, who is alleged to have attacked a millworker at his home, was stabbed and may die.

According to workers, committees representing large numbers of millmen anxious to return to work went over the heads of local strike leaders today and took an early train to Pittsburgh to request permission of National Headquarters.

Operations were increased in all the mills.

MOB OF STRIKERS ROUTED BY DEPUTIES

BEAT THE SUPERINTENDENT

Special to The New York Times.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 10.—Sheriff Brokew with twenty deputies armed with riot guns, today broke up an attempt by 2,000 workers, mostly foreigners, to blockade the plant of the H. W. Johns-Manville Company, at Manville, about two miles from here. The armed deputies were called into service after the strikers had thrown a cordon around the works, and attempted to dictate who should be admitted.

Without presenting any demands, the men, egged on by what the company described as the "Bolshevist" element, walked out of the plant this morning. Manville is reached by two highways, and workers who were loyal to the company tried to get to work by them. The strikers lined the roads and halted all traffic. For a time they had that section of the community absolutely under their control.

Walter De Witt, Superintendent of the plant, on his way to work successfully passed several hundred of the strikers' patrols. Within sight of the factory, however, his machine was brought to a stop by a barricade thrown across the road. The news that the "boss" had been stopped spread, and many of the strikers hurried up. A sudden rush was made on the automobile. Mr. De Witt was dragged from his seat and badly beaten. He required medical attention before he could return to his home. The motor was pulled from the highway and shoved into a ditch.

A short time later George Christiansen, a foreman, came along in his car. The machine was driven by his daughter. The strikers signalled to Christiansen to stop. He ignored their command, but was halted within a hundred yards. The strikers offered no violence to the foreman, and one of them hopped on to the running board and passed him into the plant.

When word was received of the attack on Superintendent De Witt, Sheriff Brokew swore in deputies and hurried out to the Manville section in automobile trucks. At the sight of the rifles and shotguns the strikers fled. Ten of them were arrested and lodged in the county jail. According to one of the deputies, one of the strikers was seen to throw away a revolver just before he was arrested.

George Cyzck, arrested in Friday night's raids at Newark, was sent to Ellis Island yesterday for deportation, Federal agents say. He admitted that he was an anarchist, but denied that he was a counterfeiter. When his room was searched counterfeit money and plates were found there, secret service agents declare. Another prisoner, who roomed with Cyzck, is being held while the authorities investigate the origin of the counterfeit money and plates.

GOVERNOR THREATENS TO TAKE OVER MINES

North Dakota Executive Warns Owners and Workers to Agree on Terms Today.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 10.—Governor Lynn J. Frazier issued a proclamation tonight declaring his intention of taking over the North Dakota lignite coal mines and operating them in behalf of the State if the operators and their men have not conferred and reached a settlement by 6 o'clock tomorrow evening.

NO RAILROAD STRIKE.

Gary Union Official Declares They Won't Go Out There.

GARY, Ind., Nov. 10.—Denial that union railroad men would join in a sympathetic strike in aid of the striking steel employes was made today by an official of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of the Gary district.

He pointed out that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen holds a contract with the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railway, serving the steel mills here, and that it is "determined to protect the good name of organized labor" and has no desire to be "classed with the radicals."

raids at the Russian People's House on Friday night, said that he was preparing to make a complaint to Administration officials because of occurrences there.

"Every man caught in that house was beaten up by the police and Department of Justice officials," he said. "Not one of them offered resistance, but they were terribly beaten and many kicked downstairs just the same. There is no authority for any such proceedings and I do not believe that this Government, if it knew the facts, would permit such brutality."

Assistant District Attorney Rorke and Archibald E. Stevenson and Samuel A. Berger, representing the Lusk Committee, yesterday questioned "Big Jim" Larkin regarding his alleged revolutionary activities and regarding the fact that a seaman's passport was found on him bearing his photograph but made out in the name of Bernard Sexton.

While admitting that he wanted this Government overthrown, Laskin denied that he belonged to the Communist Party and said that he belonged to the Communist Labor Party. He denounced the Communist Party because of the love of its leaders for long words and "abstract reasoning, which went over the brows of the masses."

"Their talk is full of stuff against 'parliamentary government.' The people can't understand them. We can't accomplish anything till we get the intellectuals out of the movements."

Deputy State Attorney General Berger said that several of the men picked up at Communist headquarters were strikers from the steel mills and the coal mines, who had drifted here to work with Communist leaders, who have been flooding the steel and coal districts with their propaganda.

Mayor Hylan yesterday sent a letter of commendation to Police Commissioner Enright, in which he said:

"Please accept my compliments on the way you handled the 'Reds' on Saturday. I am pleased with your good work, and I think all New York is also, although it is easier to deal with bomb throwers than it is for you to defend yourself against some of the people whose chief stock in trade is in receiving the Police Department."

William J. Flynn, Director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, said yesterday that he had several warrants for the arrest of anarchists, who would be rounded up as fast as they could be found. Charles Recht, lawyer for the men arrested in the Lusk Committee raids, said last night that he had obtained writs of habeas corpus for eleven of the men under arrest. By agreement with Assistant District Attorney Rorke, these cases are not to be heard before Wednesday.

ARREST SIX REDS IN CHICAGO.

Federal Agents Now Hold 36, Including Secretary of Russian Workers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Six more members, including the Treasurer, of the Union of Russian Workers, were arrested here tonight by Department of Justice agents in connection with the Government's drive on organized anarchy.

Arms and ammunition, including shotguns and buckshot, and a trunk full of inflammatory literature were seized. The six arrests tonight were made in as many different rooming houses.

Including the six arrests tonight the Department of Justice has thirty alleged anarchists under arrest here.

BACKS COAL MINERS' STRIKE.

Missouri State Federation Calls the Injunction Despotic.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—Support of the American Federation of Labor and the United Mine Workers on the coal strike situation was promised tonight by the Missouri State Federation of Labor in a statement declaring the restraining order of Federal Judge Anderson "arbitrary, unconstitutional, and despotic."

"The Missouri State Federation of Labor will stand by the United Mine Workers in this great crisis," the statement said. "The American labor movement will never submit to autocracy, no matter under what manner it may try to operate."

PUBLISHERS REOPEN WITH CUT IN FORCES

O'BRIEN WORKERS WALK OUT

Benny Declares That the Strike Is Ended So Far as the Pressmen Are Concerned.

While many of the large printing establishments were enabled to resume operation with some of their presses yesterday as a result of the return of the pressmen to their jobs, it is apparent that future work will be turned out under difficulties, because of the scarcity of feeders and compositors. The most serious handicap will be in the typesetting department, for, in accordance with the stand taken on Sunday, when the members of Typographical Union No. 6 did not even consider returning to work, some of the largest printing houses are without any compositors, and others are operating with a mere handful.

The Printers' League frankly recognizes that the refusal of these men to terminate their "sympathetic vacations" is the one big obstacle to capacity production, but if the men do not soon return in accordance with order of their union, the employers intend to call in union men from the outside to fill their places.

The employing printers gave out the following figures yesterday, showing the gain in men over last week, when none of these shops was operating with union men:

Butterick's.—Fifty pressmen, thirty feeders and no compositors.

Desbrosses Press.—No pressmen or feeders, but twelve compositors.

Brooklyn Eagle Job Plan.—All pressmen, all feeders and 80 per cent. of their compositors.

Isaac Goldman.—Four pressmen, ten feeders and two compositors.

Publishers' Printing Company.—All pressmen, all feeders and all compositors.

Schweinler.—All pressmen, no feeders and no compositors.

At the shop of The Pictorial Review twenty former employes showed their new international union cards yesterday morning and applied for work. At the Carey Press, Federal Press and Blanchard Press the old men appeared and stated that they wanted their new international cards. In each case an agent was dispatched to the international headquarters, but they failed to return. It was reported that these men had been held out of the international by a promise from the remnant of old Local No. 51 that a new settlement had been arranged. The Technical Press operated all day in all departments. At the C. J. O'Brien plant all departments were operating until noon, when the men walked out and failed to return.

Although the conditions as outlined above follows the official statement of the Printers' League, reports from individual plants throughout the day varied considerably. In most cases they leaned toward an optimism apparently born of hope, and in others probably represented conditions existing at the time the statement was made, but changing later in the day.

The situation as to compositors seems to be as follows: There are about 1,000 Big Six men working in shops that have agreed to the 44-hour week, another 1,000 in shops granting the old 48-hour week, 2,600 are working in the newspaper shops and 4,000 are out on "vacations." At the offices of Big Six it was denied that all the shops which the employers assert are running are actually in operation.

George L. Berry, President of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, with which most of the pressmen have reaffiliated, was optimistic yesterday as to the ultimate outcome of the difficulties in the printing trade. He said the strike was over so far as the pressmen are concerned, and that the men who were back on the job showed a "spirit and ideals" which made it evident that they were glad to be back.

David Simons, President of Web Pressmen's Union No. 25, which is in good standing with the international body, made it known yesterday that he had offered Berry another solution of the problem of the feeders, but upon inquiry it proved that Berry had not received it as yet. The proposal calls for a $10 increase in the weekly wage instead of $5, provided the men are willing to re-enter the international. According to Mr. Simons, the employers are willing to give the $10, and in his opinion this will provide a sufficient incentive to make the men return.

UPHOLDS SENTENCE OF RUSSIAN 'REDS'

Supreme Court Decides Against Four Who Threw Pamphlets From Rooftops.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Upholding the convictions in New York of Jacob Abrams and three other Russians for spreading radical propaganda, the Supreme Court, in a majority opinion written by Justice Clarke, declared today that the pamphlets prepared by the Russians and scattered broadcast from rooftops in the lower east side, New York City, were "clearly an appeal to the 'workers' to arise and put down by force the Government of the United States."

Justices Holmes and Brandeis dissented, and the former declared in a minority opinion that the circulation of the leaflets, which protested against sending American troops to Russia, was not in violation of the Espionage act. The right of the Russians to publish the pamphlets, Justice Holmes said, was as clear as was the right of the Federal Government to publish the Constitution of the United States.

The majority opinion pointed out that the Russians, who received sentences of from three to twenty years, had taken no steps toward naturalization although they had lived in this country from five to ten years.

"Four of them testified in their own behalf," said Justice Clarke, "and of these, three frankly avowed that they were 'rebels,' 'revolutionists,' 'anarchists,' that they did not believe in Government in any form, and they declared they had no interest whatever in the Government of the United States. The fourth defendant testified he was a 'Socialist' and believed in a proper kind of Government not 'capitalistic,' but in his classification the Government of the United States was 'capitalistic.'"

Declaring that it was argued "somewhat faintly" that the acts charged against the defendants were not unlawful because within the right of freedom of speech and of the press guaranteed in the Constitution, the court said this contention had been "definitely negatived" in several cases previously decided by it.

Justice Holmes in his opinion said Congress could not forbid all efforts to change the mind of the country.

"I think," he said, "that we should be eternally vigilant against attempts to check the expression of opinions that we loathe and believe to be fraught with death unless they so imminently threaten immediate interference with the lawful and pressing purposes of the law that an immediate check is required to save the country."

Hyman Lackowsky, Hyman Rozansky and Millie Stimer were the other defendants, also from New York. Abrams and Lackowsky were sentenced to twenty years, Millie Stimer to fifteen years and Rozansky to three years.

Conviction in Philadelphia of Joseph V. Stilson and Joseph Shukys, of the Lithuanian Socialist Federation, on charges of violating the Espionage act through articles printed in The Kova, a Socialist newspaper, also was upheld. Justices Holmes and Brandeis also dissented in this case.

FORBID MAURER MEETING.

University of Pennsylvania Authorities Cancel Students' Plan.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Permission for a meeting at the University of Pennsylvania at which James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, was to deliver an address, was canceled today by the university authorities.

The reason given is that the students who planned the meeting had exceeded their authority and invited the general public.

In forbidding the meeting Provost Smith of the University said in his announcement:

"Originally permission had been given to a small group of students to have Mr. Maurer discuss with them certain phases of the labor movement. But since the students have posted placards not only in the university grounds but also over portions of Philadelphia, the gathering has begun to assume the proportions of a mass meeting. Under these circumstances it was deemed best to cancel the meeting."

VANDERLIP IN CLASH WITH UNION LEADER

Calls Unlimited Combinations of Labor as Dangerous as Unbridled Capital.

REPLY TO PLEA BY FRAYNE

Disputes Federation's Policy in Discussion on Merits of Collective Bargaining.

Frank A. Vanderlip, speaking before the National Republican Club last night, during a discussion on "Collective Bargaining," gave it as his belief that "in combinations of labor without limit over the entire industrial field, we have a situation as dangerous as any which has arisen through combinations of capital."

The statement came in reply to a plea for the policy of the American Federation of Labor by Hugh Frayne, a national organizer of that body, speaking in place of Samuel Gompers, who could not attend. Professor Henry Rogers Seager of Columbia University urged combating the shop committee idea of collective bargaining, in which the outsider has no voice, with the trade union conception, in which a national organization steps in to adjust disputes for local bodies.

Frank W. Litchfield, Vice President and factory manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, who was introduced as "one who managed 25,000 contented and prosperous employes at Akron, Ohio," contended for coherence to the shop committee idea as more highly protective of the welfare of both the employe and the public. The discussion was held under the direction of the subcommittee on industrial relations of the chamber's committee on national affairs, of which Henry W. Taft is Chairman.

Mr. Vanderlip said he felt men were pretty well agreed on one phase of collective bargaining, and that was that "limitations must be, and already had been, put on combinations of capital."

"They have been put there with a firm hand," he continued, "and they are desirable. If we have a combination of labor without limit over the entire industrial field, I believe we have a situation as dangerous as any caused by the combination of capital. We have been told the shop organization should have a fair trial, and I believe that is.

"I know from my own observation that it gives promise of development, especially where employers and employes sit down with each other weekly or daily, in cases where there is no great stress. They become educated to the economic principles involved, and they learn what is fair. We are only just becoming educated to the ethics of this situation.

"An interesting picture has been presented as to how the outside labor man enters into an industrial dispute and brings about harmony. I am afraid that practically it is not quite the correct picture. Often employes are satisfied with a situation until they are made dissatisfied by the outsider. Perhaps it is not fair to make that as a general statement, but in many cases it is true. Where it is unfair to bring in outside interference we must combat it, and this, I think, is true of the steel situation."

Professor Seager said the shop plan of collective bargaining was unfair to the employe, who was seldom equipped to meet the employer on his own ground. He urged a reconciliation of this with the trade union idea, the shop committee to look after the betterment of local conditions, and to have the privilege of appealing to outside unions for help when fundamental issues are involved.

He suggested the establishment of an industrial relations commission of three members by the Government on the plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He would have it represent the employes, employers and the public.

Mr. Frayne cited numerous instances in which international labor union officers had settled local disputes which, he said, could have been settled in no other way. This, he contended, was the virtue of the national organization. He said the American Federation was working for 100 per cent. Americanism. When the stand taken on the coal strike was mentioned as "a dent in this Americanism," he replied that Mr. Gompers "had worked hard and long to avert the necessity of a strike, and that it would have been settled by this time if the Government had not insisted on the injunction."

taken in this coal strike. I believe the country is facing the most serious time since 1861.

"The passage of the Adamson law at the time of the threatened railroad strike, I think, is the cause of most of our trouble today. I hope the mistake will not be repeated.

"I am in favor of having this issue decided now without any compromise. Delay will only postpone the evil day. There is nothing in the Federation's statement which would in any way justify any body of citizens in defying the laws and the courts."

While the reading of the Federation statement was in progress in the Senate, there was so much talking in the chamber that it was difficult to understand the clerk. This did not please Mr. La Follette and he interrupted to suggest that no one was listening and the reading of the statement might be discontinued. Senator Norris of Nebraska objected, however, and the reading continued.

Senator Cummins said that while he believed the miners should receive higher wages, he inclined to the opinion that one reason why they had not worked full time was due to the shortage of railway cars and to a disinclination on the part of the public to buy coal last Summer.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma suggested that the people may have been disinclined to pay the high prices charged for coal, whereupon Senator Cummins remarked that Fuel Administrator Garfield had fixed the prices.

Both Senators Cummins and Owen agreed that much of the time now being used in discussing the treaty might more profitably be devoted to a discussion of some of the domestic problems confronting the country.

"I think we are fiddling while Rome is burning," said Senator Owen.

Congress Foresaw Strike Writs.

Senator Thomas began his remarks by reading excerpts from the statement issued by the Executive Council of the Federation of Labor. He called attention particularly to that part of the statement in which it was said that at the time the Lever bill passed President Gompers was assured by the Attorney General, at that time Mr. Gregory, and by the "highest authority," apparently referring to the President and the Congressional committees, that the legislation would not interfere with peaceful strikes. Senator Thomas believed that, so far as Attorney General Gregory and the Senate committee were concerned, Mr. Gompers was in error. He did not believe that it was possible that such assurances had been given.

To reinforce this view Senator Thomas read from the record of the Congressional proceedings at the time the Lever bill was passed. It showed that an amendment was introduced providing that the bill should not amount to a repeal of the Clayton law exemption of labor and farmers organizations from the anti-trust law. Senator Hollis asserted at that time that it would be so construed, and that under it injunctions might be issued in strikes, and he was very active in efforts to have this amendment included in the legislation. As Senator Thomas remembered, the amendment was dropped out by the Conference Committee. At any rate, it was not included in the law.

That there might be no misunderstanding about the Senate conception of the legislation, Senator Thomas then read from remarks made by Senators Hollis and Chamberlain on the floor of the Senate at that time. They agreed that there was nothing in the act that would prevent the issuance of anti-strike injunctions under it. Senator Hollis went so far as to say that he was informed by the committee that the intention was that injunctions might be issued under the law against strikes during the period of the war. It was the conviction of those backing the legislation that the Government ought to have power to prevent strikes.

In view of this record Senator Thomas said he found it difficult to believe that the Federation of Labor officials could have received assurances that labor injunctions could not be issued under the Lever act. He therefore introduced a resolution calling upon the Attorney General to submit to the Senate the files of his office at that period bearing on the matter, so that it could be determined whether any such opinion had been expressed. Senator Thomas asked for the immediate consideration of the resolution, but Senator Smith, Georgia, objected, and the resolution went over until tomorrow.

The position of the four great railroad Brotherhoods in the strike situation has not yet been determined, according to Brotherhood officials now in Washington. The Brotherhoods are not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and are not, therefore, bound to follow the course of the Gompers organization. Under their rules they would have to make an official decision as to their attitude.

W. N. Doak of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen said that nothing had been done so far, and that he had not even discussed the matter with any one.

The head of the Brotherhoods, Warren S. Stone of the Engineers, Timothy Shea of the Firemen, and W. G. Lee of the Trainmen, will be in Washington, and it is believed that they will take a definite position. It was said tonight that L. E. Sheppard of the Conductors, the chief of the remaining Brotherhoods, might not be here tomorrow, but if absent would be represented. The Brotherhoods number about 450,000 men.

No "Cold Feet," Says Tumulty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (Associated Press.)—White House officials refused today to comment on the Federation of Labor statement on the coal strike injunction.

"The situation is in the hands of the courts," Secretary Tumulty said, adding: "This is no time to get cold feet."

Labor leaders predicted today that international officers of the United Mine Workers of America, meeting at Indianapolis, would not call off the strike, as directed by Federal Judge Anderson, whatever the legal consequences might be.

One of the spokesmen for the miners' organization said that he doubted if acting President Lewis and his associates had the power, even if they had the inclination, to comply with the mandate.

"The strike was ordered by a delegate convention in the event that the operators refused to grant our demands," the spokesman said, "and Lewis merely carried out instructions in ordering the strike. The convention must call it off."

Only a few reports came in from the coal fields and these showed the situation generally unchanged, with miners waiting to see what orders they would get from Indianapolis.

Reports that a roaring blizzard was sweeping out of the Northwest was a disquieting bit of news received during the day, officials realising that a week of cold weather would cut deeply into reserve coal stocks and make conditions critical unless the men returned promptly to work.

DENOUNCES LABOR LEADERS.

Currie, in House, Also Criticises Secretary of Labor Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The stand taken by the United Mine Workers of America and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor was denounced today in the House by Representative Gilbert A. Currie, Republican, of Michigan. Mr. Currie said that he was determined to make known his position even if his stand meant his removal from public life in the next election by the labor interests in his district. In the course of his address he severely criticised the attitude which, he said, he understood, had been taken by Secretary of Labor Wilson in regard to the coal strike and the deportation of radicals.

"The Government's position is correct and must be sustained unflinchingly by men intrusted with the conduct of public affairs," said Mr. Currie. "Attorney General Palmer is to be commended for his subborn insistence in overcoming the objection of the Secretary of Labor. If we are to accept the press reports, the Secretary of Labor stood side by side with Mr. Gompers, insisting in substance that nothwithstanding the unlawful conduct of these strike leaders, whose action threatens to paralyze transportation and industry, leaving cold, hunger, and even death in its wake, the strong arm of the law should not be exercised to restrain this most nefarious act ever proposed in the history of our country.

"The American Federation of Labor in its statement today pledging support to the strike leaders of the United Mine Workers of America even to the extent of defying the Government and its courts is guilty of a most outrageous assault upon the Government," said Mr. Currie.

"There is no longer any middle ground. We are confronted with this proposition: Is the American Federation of Labor more powerful than the Government itself? Can it successfully defy the law?"

our course. We believe that we are right.

"Aye, we are convinced that we are right, and the men and women of labor of America understand; men and women of labor and freedom of the whole world will understand that with the attempt to impose on our people a condition of affairs that is repugnant to the concepts of right and of justice and democracy, we, the men and women of labor, will stand true to the highest principles of justice and right and of freedom in our country."

Those present at the dinner included the labor delegates representing France, England, Spain, and the other foreign nations which have sent representatives to the International Labor Conference. They received Mr. Gompers's remarks with applause. Special significance was given to the dinner by the fact that it was held while the officials of the United Mine Workers of America at Indianapolis were attempting to make a decision concerning the mandate issued by Judge Anderson.

Labor delegates from many of the foreign countries assured Mr. Gompers that American labor would have support in the fight it is now making. A typical pledge was that given by Leon Jouhaux, the labor representative from France. Here is what he said:

"French labor and the people of the world are following the struggles of the people in the United States with interest. They hope labor will come out successful, and our people do not think it could come out otherwise in such a labor-loving country.

"In addition to hope of success I feel that if the workers of the United States need the assistance of the workers in other countries they will get it.

"Frontiers cannot separate the interests of workers, and private interests cannot separate workers."

Appleton Expresses Sympathy.

William A. Appleton, President of the International Federation of Trades Unions, which held a recent meeting in Amsterdam, spoke along the same lines as the French delegate.

"We find labor organizations in America in the throes of a great trouble," he said. "Our hearts go out to them, and we sympathize with them. We shall be glad to hear of their success. We sorrow to hear their loyalty impugned as we know there is no class so loyal in the country.

"I believe if the soul of that great American, Abraham Lincoln, could be back for one hour this trouble would blow away.

"The application of theoretical sociology is one of the hardest problems in the world—some appreciate this difficulty. Some realize we will not see the whole of it accomplished in our time, but we know we have done our best.

"The association at Amsterdam was the beginning of the union of the people of the world and will make for the ultimate peace of the world."

Reports of the address by Mr. Gompers attracted unusual attention in official circles in Washington tonight, especially his remarks intimating the willingness of labor leaders to go to jail rather than surrender what they believed were the vital principles of justice and freedom. Some saw in such remarks a prediction that the leaders of the United Mine Workers of America would not obey the mandate issued by Judge Anderson. On this point, however, Mr. Gompers made no direct statement.

Secretary of Labor Wilson was invited but did not attend the dinner. All of the officials of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, who had been in conference all day at the Labor Temple, were present together with most of the delegates from the foreign countries.

FRENCH DECLARE LEAGUE IS DEAD

Lodge Reservations Strangle It, They Assert, Before It Is Really Born.

COMPLAIN OF TREATY DELAY

One Year Today Since Hostilities Ceased and They See No Fruits of Victory.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Tuesday, Nov. 11.—Today being the anniversary of the cessation of hostilities, France expressed bitter regret that a year has not brought her the fruits of victory. There is not a little bitterness that the regret is directed toward the United States.

Le Matin, which yesterday caused no little surprise in diplomatic circles by charging America with having killed the League of Nations, today turns its guns on the American Senate and blames the Senate for some of France's troubles of today. It says this morning:

"The treaty of peace signed at Versailles on June 28 is going bit by bit. It is the American Senate which has assumed this work of destruction, to which it devotes itself with method and consistency.

"It has just adopted a preamble to the motion for ratification which demands the approval of the American reservations by three of the great allied powers before the treaty shall become ratified by the United States. It has then approved the first reservation which, in fact, destroys the League of Nations, since the United States, according to this reservation, will alone be qualified to judge, when it wishes to withdraw from the League, whether it has fulfilled its obligations under the covenant."

Le Matin then pays its respects to the other reservations and adds:

"It has well been said that these reservations are inspired by the wish of the Republicans to work against the 'autocracy' of the President. Although inspired by internal politics, the attitude of the adversaries of Mr. Wilson has the effect of withdrawing the United States from engagements which their President, holding a mandate from them, had taken in their name.

"Inasmuch as these engagements conformed to the policy of the President, many times expressed before Congress, and were known to it, one is astonished to see these Republicans, whose sympathies were generally acquiescent at the end of the conflict with our enemies, turn to destroying the work which, in spite of its imperfections, assured to the nations which were associated upon the field of battle their minimum of guarantee."

Referring to the long delay in putting the treaty into effect, Le Matin says:

"It is the attitude of America which has been the principal cause of this delay. Certainly, as one knows well, the ratification by this power is not technically indispensable to putting the treaty into effect. But, practically, for the full application of certain clauses, for putting into movement the complicated machinery of the administration of commissions, one had always counted upon the help of America.

"We hope that aside from ratification of the treaty the Senate will authorize its officials and its high command to collaborate with the Entente powers for the realization of peace. The latest news from Washington excludes for the present all possibility of co-operation."

It regrets the apparent certainty of American reservations, but says they may not be so bad as some think. It argues that Europe can probably survive them. As for the first Lodge reservation already adopted, this journal says that while to give Congress the power to decide whether or not America had fulfilled its obligations when it should wish to quit the League might appear to weaken the League, as a matter of hard cold fact the writer asks who could keep the United States in the League if Congress at any time voted to take the United States out.

As for the reservation on Article X., Le Temps says that it is not so bad because the United States cannot go to war anyhow without the consent of Congress. Turning to the Shantung reservation, Le Temps calls attention to the fact that China did not sign the Versailles Treaty and says that "So long as China has not signed, the Shantung question is still in suspense, since Shantung is a province of China. If the United States reserves its interpretation, how does that change the real situation?"

Then, patting the Republicans on the back, Le Temps says: "Can any one that the Republican majority seeks to transform the spirit of the treaty? Can one say that the Republican Party, which is in power and will remain in power for sixteen months, wishes to ruin the idea of international solidarity upon which the treaty rests?

"Such would be an interpretation contrary to what we know to be the facts."

The writer then quotes Hay and Knox in various declarations in support of international action for world peace and concludes:

"It is then reasonable to hope that the Senate of the United States where Republicans dominate wishes neither to kill the treaty nor to choke the League of Nations. We would do well in commenting at Paris upon debates at Washington never to forget the principles of international solidarity which live in the soul of America, no matter which party governs. They are necessary to the security of our country."

Fear We Are Killing League.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—France fears America has killed the League of Nations. For weeks the French Government has felt that the League was being slowly choked to death in Washington, and now adoption of two Lodge League reservations brings official Paris to believe that the infanticide is accomplished.

This state of mind has been reached by a process of reasoning which says that if the United States disclaims responsibility under the League covenant and demands that other nations accept her reservation saying so, those other nations will also feel free to withdraw from their obligation when it suits them.

For a fortnight European diplomats have been declaring that it really did not make much difference whether or not reservations were adopted so far as the League of Nations was concerned, for the debate had shown that there existed in America such a strong spirit of distrust of European nations, as voiced in the opposition to the League covenant, that America would not be able to play her proper rôle; but public declarations were subdued until the adoption of the Lodge reservation on Saturday.

The gravity of the situation is brought home to all circles in Paris today by a sensational article in Le Matin, which says: "We fear that from today there is no more League of Nations," and then asks if there is any treaty of peace left." It is known that in this article Le Matin reflects the views of the French Foreign Office and, indeed, of the whole French Government. After saying that it appears America has killed the League of Nations, Le Matin declares:

"This league can live only if more powerful nations, surrendering certain privileges their power gives them, accept the Government of a world community.

"The treaty creates for all those countries the obligation of not quitting the League without two years' notice. This notice does not count for the Senate of America.

"If there is no more Society of Nations, if the United States hangs the operation of the treaty upon acceptance of its reservation, which destroy the operation of it, does there indeed remain any treaty of peace?"

The Echo de Paris, in an article by "Pertinax," says that, as for France, she might as well forget about any protection the League of Nations will give her, and turn her hopes and attention to the proposed treaty between the United States and France and England and France. Referring to the American reservations, he says: "Do not let us deceive ourselves that they discredit the League of Nations which encircles the conditions of peace to an extent hindering their enforcement and even forecasting their failure."

Further on he declares, "Whatever the final result, there is sufficient evidence to demonstrate that there exists a faction of public opinion in America resolved to safeguard with respect to Europe, and especially with respect to England, entire liberty of action. The final vote on the treaty, even if it were fortunate, would not change this situation. Common sense indicates to us that the league would be a failure. Do not believe that. They built it to make sure of having a hold on Germany. It was built as something that might be thrown away if not needed, at the same time something that would be real and available if necessity arose.

"If it is probably strengthened, and that in the largest possible way. It shall play the same rôle as our treaty with England in 1904, so modest in its origin. In this movement, the Treaty of Versailles, in spite of difficulties, in spite of the necessity for new accords among the Allies, can only gain in efficacy. It will have recovered that which the past year has tended to take away from us—real alliances."

For the past few months European diplomats have been going ahead making plans in anticipation of the failure of the league. It has so happened that this work has been done largely without America. It has been cloaked under the guise of preparations for putting the treaty into force, and these preparations have been made by nations which have ratified it—in other words by England, France, and Italy. Italy has not counted much.

All that has been done is not publicly known, but part of it may be sketched now. Going back several months, it was the ordinary presumption both in Paris and in all capitals, that the League of Nations Council was to be more or less of a clearing house for the execution of the treaty. Many commissions to enforce the treaty, to be appointed by the Council of the League, were to report to it. It was supposed that in a general way the League would watch over the whole performance.

Then, months ago, there appeared one day an announcement of the creation of a new commission, one not named in the Peace Treaty. It was to be known as the Commission on Co-ordination. It was to be a commission to which all the treaty commissions not tied to the League of Nations were to report, and it in turn was to report to the different Foreign Offices. Four days later the name of this commission was changed to the "Commission for the Enforcement of the Peace Treaty."

Its real character became plainer, and now, since it is known that not only those treaty enforcement commissions not tied to the League, but also those named by the League, are to report to this commission, there is no longer any reasonable doubt that this commission now stands to play the rôle it used to be supposed the Council of the League would play. It is to be one big, powerful piece of machinery for the enforcement of the Treaty of Peace. It will be stronger than the Reparations Commission, for it will have all the powers given to the Reparations Commission and others in addition.

David Says That America Sealed Empire's Doom—Scheidemann for Socialist Union.

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—I doubt if ever Germany felt quite so much alone in the world as today, a year after the fall of the régime which brought so much woe to the earth.

Prime Minister Bauer, in an article in Vorwärts, says that the most serious part of the new republic's struggle has been against the Entente, which endeavors to "make the democratic rebuilding of Germany impossible and to block up the wells of her life." That, he declares, assists all the reactionary elements in the country.

The Deutsche Zeitung appears to rejoice that it can loudly proclaim that during the first year of the new Germany there have been thefts on the railways to the extent of 10,000,000 marks and in the postal service to the amount of 1,500,000 marks.

BERLIN, Nov. 9, (via Copenhagen.)—As had been expected since the untimely discovery and frustration of the Communist and Spartacide plans decided on for the anniversary of the revolution, the day passed very quietly. A dismal snowstorm came to Noske's aid and cooled the red rot revolutionary spirit that otherwise, despite the strictest prohibition, might have led to some public demonstrations.

The newspapers of all shades comment copiously, lauding or deprecating the causes and consequences of Nov. 9. As usual, the organs of the Extreme Right have vitriolic articles blaming all of Germany's misfortunes to the revolution in language which, had it been used under the system of censoring in the Kaiser's time, would have caused the confiscation of the papers, but the republican Government is tolerant, despising similar means to silence its enemies.

In the Lokal-Anzeiger, Professor Reinhold Zeberg vents his wrath on fate because, he says, the events of Nov. 9, 1918, shamefully ignored all the tradition recorded by the professors of history and took an entirely contrary course from what should have been taken according to the deductions and the rules and regulations laid down by those same infallible gentlemen, in consequence of which Germany and the whole world are bound for perdition.

Democratic newspapers such as the Vossische Zeitung and the Tageblatt characterise the revolution as the inevitable consequence of the imperial policy and war against the whole world. Both assert that the republic is the only form of State under which Germany may continue to exist. The Vossische Zeitung concludes:

The Tageblatt says that the German revolution was not a spiritual upheaval or a forcible assertion of new ideas, but simply the collapse of the old system, which had heaped mistakes upon misdeeds, and was bound to collapse the ultimate it lost the protection of bayonets. Democrats should never forget that there has been a revolution, concludes the Tageblatt.

Tirpitz Praises Kaiserism.

The reactionary papers blame every misfortune on the revolution. Such men as Tirpitz who, in his reminiscences, says that he realized everything was lost after the Marne defeat, and in every chapter his book uncovers faults of inefficiency, negligence and lack of concerted action under the old system, has the boldness today to praise Kaiserism as compared with Republicanism generally and the present German situation particularly.

As stated before, the lack of transportation is recognised as the root of all the evil. However, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent has observed a great improvement within the last two months. While in May and June it took more than twenty men on an average to repair one locomotive, only half the number accomplish the same job now, which in pre-war times required seven men. The same proportion applies to other work in the State railway repair shops.

The greatest drawbacks, Otto Hue, a member of the Prussian National Convention, says in the Tageblatt today, have firstly been a petrified bureaucracy in the management of State repair shops as compared with the simplified modern system used in private connections; secondly, bad material or rather substitutes, which disgust and discourage the mechanics, and thirdly, antiquated tools. He adds that the degeneration of the German railway dates back as far as 1910, and that in 1917 the State repair shops, according to the late Railway Minister Breidenbach, were just as insufficient as today. One must wonder that railway transportation, after another year of the fiercest war and after parting with 5,000 of its best engines to the Entente, still has some life left.

Socialist Speeches on Anniversary.

BERLIN, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—The Majority and Independent Socialist leaders devoted the greater part of the celebration of the anniversary of the revolution to addressing scores of meetings. These were only moderately attended.

Philipp Scheidemann, former Chancellor, in an address at Steglitz, made a strong bid for a union with the Independent Socialists, saying that the danger from the Left was not so menacing as that from the Right.

Eduard David, Minister without Portfolio, in a speech in the west end of Berlin, said that the German people had been deceived with regard to Germany's submarine warfare and President Wilson's peace mediation. He added that a clumsy attempt had been made to deceive President Wilson and that the gravity of the U-boat decision had been concealed from the German people, and the entry of the United States into the war had been represented as being without military importance, "notwithstanding the foregone conclusion that America's participation sealed our doom."

Georg Ledebour, speaking at the chief meeting of the Independent Socialists, delivered a violent tirade against Herr Scheidemann, President Ebert, and Herr Randsberg, Secretary for Publicity, Art, and Literature, for the part played by them as people's commissioners. Ledebour brought the meeting to a spectacular close when he called on his auditors to raise their right hands and solemnly swear that they would "help to carry the revolution in Germany and elsewhere to victory." Men and women rose promptly and repeated the vow as prescribed.

COUNCIL AWAITS GERMANS IN VAIN

NO DATE FOR FORMAL PEACE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The delegates of Great Britain, France, and Italy were all ready today to open negotiations with the Germans on the question of signing the protocol providing for the fulfillment of armistic terms and for arranging for putting the Versailles treaty into effect. But the negotiations were not opened for the reason that the Germans were not present and nothing had been heard from them.

The Berlin Government had been asked to send representatives or delegate one of its representatives now in Paris to undertake these negotiations on Nov. 10. Among the provisions of the protocol was a clause calling for payment by the Berlin Government for the surrendered German warships sunk at Scapa Flow last Summer. The Germans were expected to oppose this clause strongly.

At the office of the Secretary of the Peace Conference it was stated this afternoon that it was not known when the negotiations would be opened because it was not known when the Germans would put in an appearance.

The date for the deposit of ratifications of the Peace Treaty was not fixed today, as it had been announced it would be, because no one knew what tactics the Germans would pursue or how much they would be able to delay proceedings. The protocol provides for ten days' delay between the signing of it and the putting into effect of the treaty.

The Supreme Council considered a report that Germany was exporting arms to Russia in violation of the armistice terms, and the Allied Military Commission was instructed to tell the Germans that they must stop such exports.

PARIS, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—The settlement of the status of Galicia and the defining of the eastern boundary of Poland are two important problems which the Supreme Council has under consideration and will no doubtedly dispose of before it is solved.

The determination of Poland's eastern boundary is an even more delicate problem because of the unsettled conditions in Russia and the unwillingness of the Supreme Council to take any action which may be regarded as a step toward partitioning of that country, which would offend Russians fighting for a united nation.

The Council also hopes to effect an arrangement whereby Greece, Rumania and Serbia will sign treaties protecting the rights of the minorities in their countries. It expects to make a peace treaty with Hungary, although there is no intimation that the present Budapest Government is yet in such form that the Conference can deal with it.

KILLS SUBSTITUTE FOR 'KNIFE THRUST'

States would assume no legal or moral obligation under Article X. This would have had the effect, so far as the United States is concerned, of striking ables" among the Republicans and on this amendment, 18 in favor, to 68 against, found only the "irreconcilables" among the Republicans and Democrats supporting it.

With the effort of the radicals voted down, the Senate took up a reservation offered by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, providing that the provision in the committee reservation declaring against the armed forces of the United States being used under Article X., except by assent of Congress, be struck out. This was defeated by a vote of 31 to 45.

After this Senator Walsh offered another amendment, to provide that the United States "releases the other members of the League of Nations from any obligation under Article X. and declines to participate in any proceedings in the Council authorised thereby."

Senator Walsh explained that, since the committee reservation assumed to lift the United States out of any obligation under Article X., it was only fair to release other nations.

The majority Senators savagely attacked the Walsh reservation as not being offered in good faith, and as attempting, if taken seriously, to interfere with the affairs of other nations in the League. The Walsh amendment was still before the Senate at the end of the day.

Senator Lodge attacked the Walsh reservation as "putting the United States in the position of dictating to other nations."

"If other nations of the world want to bind themselves to protect each other against wars of territorial aggression," argued Senator Lodge, "that is their own affair and not ours. I believe in allowing every country to look after itself under this treaty. If some other nations desire to enter into agreements to fight for each other, let them do it."

Senator Hitchcock contended that it was unfair to nations to which the United States "owed an obligation" to put this country outside the binding terms of the article.

"To what countries are we obligated for anything and who obligated us?" demanded Senator Penrose, Republican, of Pennsylvania.

"We would repudiate an obligation to help the smaller nations that went into the war with the tacit understanding that we would help them," replied Senator Hitchcock. "We cannot dodge our obligations in the way the majority of this body contemplates."

Senator Hitchcock would not oppose a reservation, he said, which would express the "sense" of the Senate that decisions of the League Council involving use of American forces in war were "merely advisory," so that Congress, in the last analysis, might have the final word. This was his first inkling that he might accept any such compromise on Article X.

"The President has not objected to a reservation to provide that the advice given by the League Council, under the terms of Article X., shall be regarded by the United States merely as advice, which may be accepted by Congress or rejected," said Mr. Hitchcock.

Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, said he would prefer having Article X. struck out, but that, since a majority of the Senate appeared to favor leaving it in the league covenant, it ought to be made as "harmless as possible."

"We ought to see that the President cannot, at the whim of the League of Nations, send our armed forces to every land under the sun," insisted Mr. Cummins.

Senator Jones, Republican of Washington, offered a reservation, to be voted on later, to provide that the representative of the United States in the League Council shall not give his consent to any proposal of the league involving use of the armed forces of the United States without first obtaining the assent of Congress.

POINCARE AND KING WANT LEAGUE AT ONCE

LONDON, Nov. 10.—President Poincaré of France and Madame Poincaré arrived here today for a four days' visit with King George and Queen Mary. The French President was met at Victoria Station by the King and Queen and the Earl of Bemersyde (Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig,) Baron Beatty of North Sea and Brooksby, Commander of the Grand Fleet, and nearly the whole cabinet.

M. Poincaré and Madame Poincaré received a rousing reception by great crowds during the drive to Buckingham Palace, where they will be entertained during their stay in London.

The program for the visit of the French executive began with a court dinner at the palace tonight.

King George in proposing a toast to M. Poincaré, expressed appreciation of the feats of the French troops and referred to the alliance between France and Great Britain as having been made permanent. He prayed that heaven would avert the calamity of another war and that the League of Nations would insure the peace of the world.

President Poincaré expressed a fervent hope that Great Britain never would be called upon to fulfill her promise of military assistance against a fresh attack and also hoped a permanent league among nations would speedily be formed to prevent a return of violence.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Considerable importance is attached by the Press to the visit of President Poincaré to England. According to Marcel Hutin, writing in L'Echo de Paris, the President and Foreign Minister Pichon, who accompanies him, will discuss with Premier Lloyd George and Earl Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, questions relating to putting the Peace Treaty into effect, taking into account new dispositions by the United States.

LEAGUE MAY GO AHEAD WITHOUT AMERICA

Supreme Council Agrees on Procedure Should the Senate Fail to Ratify.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The Supreme Council reached an agreement this morning on the procedure for convoking the first Council of the League of Nations, taking into account the situation created by the opposition to ratification in the American Senate.

The possibility of the treaty being put into force without ratification by the United States came under consideration, says Le Temps, which declares that ratification by the United States is not indispensable. The newspaper states that the question arises, however, if it is possible to execute the treaty without the participation of the United States in the numerous Interallied Commissions on Reparations, control and the military contingents of occupation.

Training for Home Management

Many of the young women who enter employment, quite naturally look upon their work as an opportunity for an active and profitable interval between school and marriage—a most commendable and natural attitude.

As a training for managing a home successfully or for a business future, the advantages of store experience are valuable. Women do the greater part of the family purchasing, and the first essential of a good home manager is the ability to buy wisely. Where can she gain so broad and accurate a knowledge of qualities and values as in a good store?

We welcome to Lord & Taylor the young woman to whose life we can contribute something of permanent value besides her weekly pay. Talk it over with an executive on the 10th floor.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE TO MEET ON DEC. 10

Washington Conference Will Fix Date and Place of 1920 Convention.

WOMEN TO HAVE A COUNCIL

Mrs. J. G. South to Head Woman's Division of National Committee—Miss Hay a Member.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—The Republican National Committee will meet in Washington Wednesday, Dec. 10, to name the convention city and fix the date for the next Republican National Convention. Will H. Hays, National Chairman, will issue the official call for the session tomorrow morning before departing for the East.

This and the announcement of the admission of women, through the organization of a woman's division of the National Committee, to thoroughgoing participation in the work of the party, were the chief developments at today's meeting of the National Committee held at the Congress Hotel.

Announcement was made that Mrs. Medill McCormick, because of illness, had resigned as Chairman of the Woman's Executive Committee. Mrs. John C. South of Kentucky was made General Chairman of a newly created woman's division with three Vice Chairmen and a National Woman's Council of One Hundred.

Outside the committee room, in which were sitting committeemen, State Chairmen, and other party leaders from nearly all of the States, Presidential politics were the absorbing topic of discussion. Governor Frank O. Lowden's headquarters were formally opened under full head of steam. Across the hall General Leonard Wood and his campaign manager, Committeeman John T. King of Connecticut, were holding conferences with Republicans from different States. Down at the Blackstone, Governor Lowden was conferring with deputations that had come to Chicago to talk things over.

St. Louis, with a delegation of twenty men headed by Mayor Kiel, was making a fight to take the next convention to that city. Chicago, represented by Fred W. Upham, went into action at once to plug up any holes in the lineup for Chicago that might have been made by the unexpected attack from St. Louis.

Announcement of the organization of the woman's division was made in a formal statement from the National Committee issued by Chairman Hays. The statement said that Mrs. McCormick had been compelled to terminate her service as Chairman of the Executive Committee because of illness, and Mrs. John C. South of Frankfort, Ky., daughter of the late Senator Bradley of Kentucky, had been elected unanimously to the Chairmanship. The three Vice Chairmen are Miss Mary Garrett Hay of New York; Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of Topeka, Kan., and Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston of Olympia, Wash.

Miss Hay is named as Chairman of the organization work of the woman's division, with these members of the committee: Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter, Kansas; Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston, Washington; Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, California; Mrs. Raymond Robins, Illinois; Mrs. John Glover South, Kentucky; Miss Maude Wetmore, Rhode Island; Miss Mina M. West, Michigan; Mrs. C. A. Severance, Minnesota.

The statement concluded:

"The Republican women, coming more and more into the rights of their full citizenship, are most important factors in the situation. They are part of the party membership, not as women but as voters entitled to participate, and participating in so far as present legal limitations permit, just as others voters. Their activity is not supplementary, ancillary, or secondary at all. They are not to be separated or segregated, but assimilated and amalgamated, with just that full consideration due every working member of the party, and the Republican National Committee is sure that the Republican women will come into the party's activities with that sense of responsibility necessarily consequent upon these activities and will aid, through the party, in the solution of the problems facing the country."

The National Committee session took on the nature of a jubilee over the election results of last week. Governor-elect Morrow of Kentucky had a royal reception as he was introduced by Chairman Hays. Treasurer Upham talked about campaign funds. The indications seemed to be manifold that there would be no dearth of Republican cash next year. It is said that $1,000,000 has been pledged already for campaign purposes.

SPROUL WARNS WOMEN.

Says Party Organization on Sex Lines Would Be Disastrous.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Governor Sproul, addressing the delegates to the State convention of the Pennsylvania Woman's Suffrage Association at a dinner here tonight, reminded them that, although Pennsylvania had ratified the universal suffrage amendment, their work was not done, and that they had still to convince the people and the Legislature that they should enjoy suffrage in State elections. He said he had little doubt that this would be accomplished as rapidly as the importance of the issue warranted.

Governor Sproul expressed concern at the reports from New York that certain leaders in one branch of suffrage activities were contemplating the organization of a separate and distinct woman's party. Nothing affecting one class of citizenship in this country, whether that classification was by sex, by usefulness, by material possessions, or vocational position, he said, could fail to affect every other class, and it would be entirely unwise—in fact, almost destructive—if the women of the country should set up by themselves and establish anything like a party founded only on sex prejudices.

TICKET SELLER FINED $10.

Court Rules Dealer Can't Do Business in a Hallway.

In fining Ernest Gross of 141 West Forty-ninth Street $10 yesterday for selling tickets without a license, Magistrate Douras, in the West Side Court, ruled that hiring a doorway in which to make the sales constituted an offense within the meaning of the city's ordinance.

It was charged that Gross had sold a detective a theatre ticket while standing in a doorway in West Forty-fifth Street. He said in court he had paid $3 for the use of the hallway. The license he produced gave him permission to sell tickets in an office on Broadway. In imposing the fine the Magistrate held that ticket selling would not be permitted from doorways.

Barney Warfield of the Hotel Theresa, in West 125th Street, who was arrested by Policewoman Mary A. Sullivan for selling a theatre ticket at a greater profit than allowed by law, was discharged in the Jefferson Market Court. Warfield said the charge was untrue.

GUGGENHEIMS AID HOSPITAL

Gift of $250,000 to Mount Sinai by Four Brothers.

George Blumenthal, President of Mount Sinai Hospital, announced yesterday the gift to that institution by the Guggenheim brothers, Daniel, Murry, Isaac, Solomon, and Simon, of $250,000 whereby the hospital will be enabled to start the construction of a pavilion for patients which is to be a memorial to the donors parents. The brothers have given a total of $600,000 for the purpose in the last three years and, the announcement says, their contribution is the largest ever made for a single Jewish philanthropic purpose in this city.

The pavilion will cover the entire block on Fifth Avenue from Ninety-ninth to 100th Streets and will represent a total outlay of $1,000,000. It had been projected on a smaller scale before the war, but the embargo on building materials led to delay in its construction and, because of the additional Guggenheim gift, when ground is broken early next Spring, the structure will be far more ample, providing private rooms for 130 patients with sun exposure for all. Half of the rooms will face Central Park and the other half a wide court running through from Ninety-ninth to 100th Streets.

The new pavilion will be completely equipped, including an electro-cardiograph system whereby the heart action of patients may be studied and recorded.

TAX FORMS READY EARLY.

Income Returns May Be Made Promptly After Jan. 1.

Arrangements for putting out early in December forms for filing income and excess profits tax returns are being made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, according to a statement given out yesterday. Taxpayers thus will have opportunity to make out returns immediately upon the closing of their books for the year.

"As a convenience to themselves and as a means of expediting the work of the Government," said Collector Roy Woods yesterday, "taxpayers are urged to avail themselves of this opportunity. The period for filing is from Jan. 1 to March 15.

"The normal tax for 1919 income is 4 per cent. on the first $4,000 above the exemption, and 8 per cent. on the remaining net income. The tax for 1918 was 6 and 12 per cent.

"Announcement will be made of the date on which the forms will be available at the offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue."

Whalen Waives Immunity.

"I answered all the questions asked of me. I was asked to sign a waiver of immunity, which I was very glad to do. I was subpoenaed in the matter of The People versus Bradley et al, and was required to bring all correspondence between myself and Mayor Hylan, and all contracts signed with lighting companies and traction companies, and any contracts I signed with operators of buses during my term of office as Commissioner of Plants and Structures."

President Connolly of the Brotherhood of Interborough Employes, declared there was no collusive effort in the strike to his knowledge. While waiting outside of the jury room he said:

"Mayor Hylan asked me why we did not join the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, and that is all I know of any attempts of his to force us to affiliate with the A. F. of L. There is nothing to the charges of collusion between the employes' union and the company. The fact is, we in the union are trying to get the best wages and conditions, while the company is a big corporation, looking out for its own interests."

It was rumored at the Criminal Court Building that the jury gave some consideration to Mayor Hylan's statement, issued on Sunday, in which he criticised the action of the jury in seizing his cabinet file of official and private papers, which was taken from his office at the City Hall a week ago. If the jurors did discuss this they made no public reply to the Mayor. If their new move in the investigation may be accepted as their reply, they made it in the form of seizing more of the City Administration's papers and records.

A further report had it that the jury's latest move was the beginning of a search for evidence to show another conspiracy, one said to be more serious than that charged by the Mayor against Interborough officials and their employes, resulting from the strike. So far as could be learned no subpoenas have yet been sent to the financial district, yet it was rumored that the inquiry might include investigation of information pointing to alleged speculation in traction and subway stocks, and the peculiar fluctuations in these stocks at certain periods.

Hints of Politics.

Judging from the action taken yesterday, there are political factors that may be developed as important features of the investigation. It may extend back to the strike on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines a year ago, to determine if there was a conspiracy, based on political influences or otherwise, all continuing and leading up to the troubles that culminated in the Interborough strike and financial affairs involved in the question of increased fares.

During the Brooklyn strike ex-Inspector Hughes had charge of police matters there, and he was succeeded by the then Captain Lahey. It was presumed that both these witnesses were called to tell what they knew of the police phase of these strikes.

It was understood that the jury was not making and does not contemplate making any special investigation into police matters or into the questions of vice and gambling, but an attorney familiar with such investigations said it would be required of the jury to take cognizance of any crime that came to their attention from any source during the investigation. This is required of every jury under the penal law.

Contrary to previous reports, the jury will not be able to finish its work speedily. The Jurymen may be in session for six months or more, depending upon the developments of the inquiry, and they may continue in session during the entire term of the Criminal Court presided over by Justice Weeks.

BLIZZARD IN WEST SPEEDING THIS WAY

BLOCKS TRAINS AND WIRES

Hits Denver After 12-Hour Snow—Fear for Thousands of Sheep and Cattle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Sweeping eastward, a severe blizzard is raging today over the Mississippi Valley States, crippling telegraph and train service. Western Minnesota, Colorado, North and South Dakota, and Nebraska were in the grip of the storm.

Telegraph service between Omaha and Denver was cut off. Snow, driven by a twenty-five-mile wind, fell throughout Western Minnesota and Eastern North Dakota. Telephone and telegraph service in South Dakota was demoralized by a heavy sleet storm.

Trains throughout the storm area were three to five hours late.

Although local snowstorms were reported in various sections of the Northwest, the general blizzard did not develop until late last night. Bismarck, Aberdeen, and Watertown, S. D.; Fargo, Grand Forks and Devil's Lake, N. D., and cities in Western Minnesota were in the storm zone at noon. Most of these cities reported mild weather.

Thus far no serious property loss has been reported, but thousands of sheep are believed to be pastured in the regions where the blizzard is raging.

A heavy loss of livestock is feared on the ranges of Northern Colorado, as the blizzard struck that part of the State without warning, and the range is covered with snow. Kansas and Nebraska also report heavy snow and high winds.

The mercury dropped below zero in several parts of the storm area, and the fuel situation at some points is causing anxiety.

DENVER, Nov. 10.—Telegraph service out of Denver was crippled today by a severe blizzard that followed twelve hours of snowfall throughout this section.

Eight miles of telegraph poles of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company were reported down east of North Platte, Neb.

TEST NIXON'S AUTHORITY.

Corporation Counsel Wants Commissioner to Define Position on Fares.

Corporation Counsel Burr appeared before Justice Giegerich of the Supreme Court yesterday and asked that Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon be compelled to state in his return in the Manhattan and Queens Traction Company case whether he assumes to have the power to increase the fare on traction lines. Several weeks ago Justice Finch, on the application of Mr. Burr, issued an alternative writ prohibiting Mr. Nixon from taking any steps in a request from the Manhattan and Queens Company for permission to increase the fare.

Mr. Burr described the return of Mr. Nixon on the writ as incomplete and evasive, and said that he wanted Mr. Nixon to make a fuller return, and especially to make clear his state of mind as to his jurisdiction in requests for fare increases.

Mr. Burr told the Court that as soon as Mr. Nixon became a Public Service Commissioner he assumed the right to abrogate free transfers, and to compel a transfer charge that cost the people of Manhattan $80 000 a year and the people of Brooklyn $1,200,000. He charged Mr. Nixon with having acted in violation of the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Quinby case, which stated that the commission had no power to increase fares that were fixed in franchises.

Both sides have until today to file briefs.

STOPS PRIVATE BUS LINE.

Long Island City Man Is Told He Must Get a License.

Henry Meyer, owner of automobile trucks, of 59 Third Street, Long Island City, learned yesterday that there are difficulties in the way of competing with Mayor Hylan's bus lines. On Sunday, as the result of the breaking down of electric wires by the fire at the Atlantic Macaroni Company's plant, several of the trolley lines in the Hunter's Point section of Long Island City were put out of commission. Meyer brought out one of the largest of his trucks and fitted it up with seats and then began transporting men and women along the Calvary Cemetery Line. After he had been in operation for an hour or so Patrolman Thomas Brennan of the Hunter's Point precinct served him with a summons for operating a bus without a proper license.

When Meyer came before Magistrate Conway in the Long Island City Police Court yesterday he was told that he would have to get a franchise from the city if he wanted to operate.

A TOUCH of fluttering, feathery ostrich, nestling on a frock of taffeta would mean quite as much to a young girl as the "fortune" she pulls from a Jack Horner pie. And surely a frock of delicate silk net, twinkling with tiny starry figures, spreading into bouffant puffs over hoops, would count as a greater acquisition than the latest candle on her birthday cake! Franklin Simon & Co., have frocks of billowy chiffon, Georgette crepe, pastel satin, taffeta, filmy net — smocked or ruched, beruffled or beribboned — for all events, each in itself an event.

WILLIAMS REBUKES 'IRELAND'S SENATOR'

Walsh's Attitude in the Senate, He Says, Not That of an American.

WALSH REPLIES WITH ANGER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—In a brisk interchange in the Senate today between Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, and Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, the former took Mr. Walsh sharply to task for his attitude on the advocacy of changes in the League of Nations covenant in the treaty with Germany, asserting that Mr. Walsh, by his own word, had shown himself to be actuated by sentiment for Ireland in its fight for self-government. Senator Williams upbraided the Massachusetts Senator for telling the Senate that he stood in that body as the "offspring of subject peoples."

Senator Walsh, in a heated reply, declared that he knew, when he assumed the attitude he did against the League of Nations, voting for the reservations of the Republican majority, that he would be assailed by the Administration forces. He did not intend, he said, to be influenced by any "antagonism" manifested against him, and insisted that he had the right to stand as sponsor for "subject nations" if his conscience dictated that attitude.

"It has not been easy for me to disagree with my associates on the League of Nations," said Senator Walsh. "I am a believer in the League. I expect to vote for a covenant of a League.

"I have stood here as the offspring of subject peoples," concluded Senator Walsh, declaring his sympathy for the oppressed peoples and determination to do what he could to insure that the League should do justice to them.

Senator Williams, replying to Mr. Walsh, said the Senator ought to stand in the Senate as "an American citizen, regardless of all questions of love or hatred of Europe."

"But he announces himself that he stands here in his capacity as an ambassador from a sovereign American State, not as a representative of American interests, not as a representative of America, but as the offspring of subject races," said Mr. Williams. "If every Jew in America stood in America simply as a Jew—and God knows the Jewish race has been oppressed enough—if every American stood here in that capacity, and if every German and every Austrian stood here in that capacity, we would have of what are known as hyphenates some ten millions or twenty millions of Irish Americans, another twenty millions of German Americans, another twenty millions of Slovak Americans, and some thirty millions of some other sort of Americans, reducing the real Americans not only to a minority but to a minor quantity, and we would stand here as a potpourri."

Senator Walsh interrupted to remark that he "used the expression in connection with a statement that subject races had a right to a hearing under the provisions of Article XI. of the treaty."

VAN DYKE ASSAILS STRIKE.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 10.—Denouncing employers and leaders of the coal and steel strikes, pronouncing one in particular an "incendiary pacifist," and declaring that selfishness, ignorance, and violence everywhere lifting their ugly heads threaten "the world to be," Dr. Henry van Dyke, diplomat, author, and lecturer, tonight brought out loud applause from the audience which crowded into Syria Mosque for the first evening session of the World's Christian Citizenship Conference. Nearly 5,000 people attended and hundreds were turned away.

Summarizing world conditions and particularly the increase in highway robberies and holdups, race riots, murders, strikes, and lockouts, Dr. van Dyke saw liberty, established by victory in the world war, imperiled.

"Labor unions are torn by disputes for control by men who never did an honest day's work in their lives," he said. "And the capitalists are little better. They don't trust one another around the corner and most of them are united in opposition to the workmen with whom they ought to try to make friends.

"What else could you expect from a world which has stopped going to church and whose chief intellectual influence is the moving picture show?"

common sense, of course. Under this construction a man of any party anywhere in the United States could be indicted, convicted and sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary if his opinions on public questions were offensive to the men temporarily in power."

Reiterating his declaration that this was a capitalist war in which the United States should have refused to participate, Mr. Berger quoted from President Wilson's speeches in 1916, declaring that it was America's duty to remain neutral. He then quoted from President Wilson's St. Louis speech, Sept. 5, 1910, in which the President said: "This war was a commercial and industrial war. It was not a political war."

"I was condemned to serve twenty years in the penitentiary for saying the same thing," Mr. Berger added. "Is it a crime to tell the truth until Woodrow Wilson permits it to be told? Postmaster General Burleson suppressed about sixty Socialist papers and took away the second class mail rights from The Milwaukee Leader and tried his utmost to kill the paper for saying the same thing in 1917 that Woodrow Wilson and everybody else are saying now."

Mr. Berger characterized the Espionage act as an infamous measure, passed at the order of American plutocracy, and said that it had been used not to punish spies, but to hound citizens whose opinions differed from those of the Administration.

Taking up the charge that his utterances were inspired by a pro-German bias, Berger said:

"As a matter of fact, I was twice defeated for Congress, in 1912 and 1916, for my opposition to the war when the Germans were winning, because certain pro-German societies started the charge that my position was pro-Ally." He read an editorial from THE NEW YORK TIMES in 1916 praising his stand against pro-Germanism.

Mr. Berger denied that he had ever attempted to obstruct recruiting, as charged. He cited the fact that all his male relatives of military age, including two from his own house, had entered service, as proof he had not tried to discourage enlistments.

He charged the Administration with making a specialty of hypocritical phrases and autocratic, tyrannical acts. Except for England, he said, America was the only civilized country which had political prisoners.

The man who differs from Woodrow Wilson and his satellites and is found guilty of this terrible crime is treated worse than a common criminal," he declared.

A motion by Representative Rucker of Missouri to expunge Mr. Berger's speech from The Congressional Record was offered and evoked applause. Many members of the House had left the chamber while Mr. Berger was speaking. Representative Mondell, Republican floor leader, objected to Mr. Rucker's motion on the ground that its passage would deprive Mr. Berger of an opportunity to have his case put before the public. His proposal to lay the motion on the table was carried by a vote of 173 to 122.

Representative Voigt, Republican, of Wisconsin, made a speech in favor of Mr. Berger.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (Associated Press.)—After denying Victor L. Berger's title to the seat for the Fifth Wisconsin District the House today declared that the seat was vacant, holding that Joseph P. Carney, Democrat, who contested Berger's election, did not receive a plurality in the election last year. Without a record vote, the House also directed Speaker Gillett to notify the Governor of Wisconsin of the vacancy in the State delegation, so that a special election might be called to choose a new member.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 10.—Governor Philipp of Wisconsin, when notified tonight of Victor L. Berger's expulsion from the House of Representatives, announced that he would call a special election within a few days to fill the vacancy.

ARMISTICE DAY

ON THIS day we celebrate one of the two most wonderful achievements in the American arms. However glorious as have been our martial victories at Yorktown, and in France, and as much as they have done for us and the entire human race, our real work for mankind lies before us.

It is not to be done in destructive war. It is equally hard, but it is constructive work. Our duty calls us into the fields of education and industry. Traditions which are born and grow great among families and nations because they will not try to get at basic facts, but lazily and thoughtlessly choose the easy way. The pioneers in the new world were given a marvellous opportunity to break from old traditions. They did it, and gave the world many courageous, bold, thoughtful, industrious men, who raised tremendously the average number of planners and doers in the world.

We, in America, with no more pioneer days to live, must not forget the lessons they taught. With general education, with the press and the telegraph, and now with a practical understanding of the value of the development of personalities through psychology, we can, when we turn our wills to the subject again, casting aside tradition, raise the average number of these thoughtful, courageous, bold, industrious men, possessing unusual ability to plan and execute.

The price that must be paid for the benefits of civilization is that we must enter into the organization of civilized society and bear our part of the burden. Work is what it takes. The disposition of generations now gone was to produce more than they consumed. This made capital—that surplus of labor over and above what necessity requires. Civilization is always using up capital, and it can only be maintained if the supply of capital is kept up. The higher and more effective the organization, the more imperative is co-operation. When men quarrel with each other, they fall back under the dominion of that part of nature which cannot think and plan and work in excess of its necessities.

In the wisdom of God, men were given power over the rest of nature, but to enjoy their power men must work. A desire for wealth is a thirst for independence from the ills of life. Independence plans for civilization. The development and control of wealth is concerned with human welfare. Denunciations of the desire for wealth are childish.

Has the world forgotten that the only way to get the best from men is to give them first a just wage, and, after that, the leadership and sympathy that not only wins the hand, but the heart and the head on the job? This has not been forgotten, and these three powers behind production, behind civilization — LABOR, MANAGEMENT and CAPITAL—are getting the habit of thought, and each realizes the importance of judging its own groups first, so that each one can be fair to the other two. Labor, Management and Capital should and will become partners, not only in physical values, but partners also in mental and spiritual values. But America is preparing to win, and will win, this great battle in the fields of education and industry—to our own lasting glory and to the glory of mankind.

DANGER IN 'WHISKY' AS SOLD HERE NOW

Public Warned Against Harmful Liquor—Anti-Saloon League Answers Attack on Prohibition.

A revelation of the method of manufacturing illicit whisky was made yesterday by Lieut. Col. Daniel L. Porter, in charge of internal revenue agents in New York, who desired to make it known that persons under the impression that they are buying whisky risk their lives when they drink the concoction, for which they pay exorbitant prices.

Lieut. Col. Porter, who returned yesterday from Washington, said the law was being adhered to loyally in New York, because there is no real whisky to be had, but that the beverage sold under that name for 30 to 40 cents a drink was not whisky. He said that a non-beverage alcohol that was permitted under the food control law during the war for use in the manufacture of cologne, hair tonics, and certain patent medicines was seized upon by the saloon men in their extremity, and they proceeded to convert it into beverage alcohol.

The non-beverage alcohol is 185 proof and costs $240 a barrel. When the saloon man gets hold of it, Mr. Porter explained, his first operation is to acquire a half dozen empty barrels, a quantity of prune juice or caramel for coloring matter. It is then a simple matter to manufacture "whisky" that will tear the lining of the stomach. The barrels are filled with water, diluted with the commercial alcohol and the prune juice or other coloring matter to make it appear like real whisky. The proof of the alcohol is of course materially reduced in the process, but it still retains power for considerable damage to the drinker.

On an investment of $240 for the barrel of commercial alcohol the whisky dealer makes a profit of from $1,000 to $3,000. During the last four months Lieut. Col. Porter and his deputies have confiscated 160 barrels of this non-beverage alcohol in New York City.

Judge Learned Hand, in chambers yesterday, heard arguments in the case of the Kips Bay Brewery and Malting Company of First Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, which asked that a temporary injunction obtained by the Government be set aside.

Paskus, Gordon & Hyman appeared for the petitioner and Francis G. Caffey, U. S. Attorney, and Earl B. Barnes, his assistant, appeared for the Government. Attorney Gordon argued that there was nothing in the Constitution to show that Congress can assume what he termed as "borrowed" power, and however assumed, it cannot be used indefinitely, he said.

Peace is already here, the attorney said, and it merely remains for the President to issue a formal statement to that effect. In Congress, he said, the war had been referred to as "recent." He said the Volstead act was a sham and a pretense. He asserted it deprived people of their rights and declared that the injunction against his client imposed "penalties that are excessive, even denying a man a jury trial and at the same time making him liable to thirty days in prison and $1,000 fine.

The Anti-Saloon League yesterday issued a reply to the second installment of the report made by the Association Opposed to National Prohibition connecting the increase of crime and radicalism with prohibition. The statement said that "there is even more industrial unrest where there is not prohibition, as, for example, in England, where prohibition does not exist and apparently is a long way off."

The Anti-Saloon League of New York sent a message yesterday to all pastors in the State concerning a report said to have emanated from the White House that the President would proclaim the end of the war and demobilization at the earliest moment after ratification of the treaty with Germany, thus giving the signal for the opening of the saloons and the unlimited sale of liquor from then on until Jan. 16.

The statement said in part:

"Unfortunately the President's attempt to compel the repeal of the War Prohibition act, which was known in advance by the wets, and his veto message on the Enforcement bill, which was a bald nullification proposal, taken in connection with all other facts, leave no doubt of his intention so to act, unless convinced that the nation will not stand for it.

"By every fair and reasonable interpretation the war is not ended until the treaty with Austria is disposed of, so there is ample legal warrant for the President withholding action to prevent such a calamity.

"We believe that the time has come for the moral element in New York, in common with that in America, respectfully but emphatically to demand that the President give no new lease of life to this foul, anarchistic, crime-breeding and riot-causing traffic, and that the demand be so general and roll toward the White House in such proportions that it will sweep over Mr. Tumulty, his wet secretary, who has undoubtedly served as a non-conductor of moral impulses and reach the President himself."

STRIKER GETS TWO YEARS.

George S. Green, a striking employe of the Ward Baking Company in Brooklyn, who pleaded guilty to an assault committed upon a loyal employe of the firm, was sentenced yesterday by Justice James C. Cropsey, in the Supreme Court, to serve not less than two years nor more than five years in Sing Sing Prison.

Green is 24 years of age, and lives on Jefferson Avenue, near Franklin Avenue. The assault he pleaded guilty to was committed upon John Pascal, 34 years old, of 428 Adelphi Street. The crime was committed early on the morning of Aug. 9, on Cumberland Street, near Atlantic Avenue, shortly after Pascal left the bakery on his way home. While recovering from the beating administered by several men, Pascal fell downstairs, and died shortly after. Green was indicted for manslaughter, but was allowed to plead to a lesser charge.

"The laws of this country," said Justice Cropsey in passing sentence, "are most liberal. They do not require those to continue in employment if the terms and conditions are not satisfactory. They allow workmen to strike as and when they please. And they go further, and permit strikers to persuade other workmen not to continue at work, provided that is done in a lawful manner. But the law that permits this freedom of action likewise permits freedom of action on the part of those who wish to continue to work.

"You and a number of your fellow-strikers committed this assault because the man continued to work and refused to join you. Your act was the act of a coward. It was unmanly and un-American. It was also against the best interests of organized labor. Organized labor is a helpful and necessary thing, and its true leaders can not and do not tolerate or approve acts such as you committed. When people take the law in their own hands, as you and your associates did, you become not only a criminal, but a foe to organized labor. The courts will ever be stern in enforcing the law in such circumstances."

MOVE TO DISBAR MARGOLIS.

Charges Against Lawyer Whose Radicalism Startled Senators.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 10.—Jacob Margolis, whose radical views were brought to the attention of the United States Committee on Labor and Education when he admitted that he was an anarchist, will be the subject of investigation by the Allegheny County Bar Association of which he is a member.

Charles F. C. Arensburg, Chairman of the association's Committee on Offenses, today named John C. Bane and Arthur M. Scully, attorneys, to prepare a case against Margolis, the charges having been preferred by A. O. Ford, another member of the association, several weeks ago. When the committee has completed its investigation it will report to a full meeting of the association.

If the recommendation is for disbarment Margolis will be summoned before the association to answer.

600 NEW POLICE IN BOSTON.

2,000 State Troops Still on Duty, but Reduction Is Expected Soon.

BOSTON, Nov. 10.—Six hundred new policemen were officially reported on regular duty here today. They were successful applicants for positions made vacant by the strike of 1,100 members of the department in September. The number of men still in training was not disclosed, but the Civil Service Commission has announced the certification of more than 1,000, mostly former service men, since the general recruiting began.

There are 2,000 State Guardsmen still on duty here, or about half the number called into service when the strike began. Further reductions in the guardmen's force are expected shortly.

An answer to the questions of Labor and Production

Factory Costs and Profits

The Du Pont Chemical Company Offers the Petersburg-Hopewell Industrial District of Virginia to the Manufacturers of the World as a Solution of Their Big Problems of Production and Distribution.

Are These Your Problems?

Are excessive power costs or high wage, tax, water and insurance rates cutting down your profits?

Is your production hampered by adverse labor and housing conditions?

Is your business suffering for lack of cheap and adequate transportation facilities?

Are you without room to expand your plant to take care of the increased demand that's coming?

Would a branch factory located at a place of greater strategic value help to solve your marketing problems?

Do you have to fight a hostile local government to prevent harassing restrictions on your business?

Does it require cheaper power and lower factory costs to make your business a greater success?

Do you need greater financial aid for expansion, or the help of technical and traffic experts to work out your particular problems?

Are you looking for a suitable place to begin a manufacturing business?

How Hopewell Solves Them

Rail and deep water shipping facilities that are unsurpassed in point of service and cost.

Freedom from labor and housing troubles. Houses are plentiful, rent is cheap, and living costs are approximately on a pre-war basis.

Abundance of purest water for all domestic and industrial purposes at low rates. Best fire protection in the world, with consequent low insurance costs.

Climate never too hot or too cold for out-of-door work. Health conditions such as to make Hopewell a potential health resort.

Civic environment that makes Hopewell a good place to live and rear a family.

Adequate financial help to take care of legitimate development or expansion and expert technical advisors and industrial engineers to aid in solving your problems.

In short, the essentials to make your business a greater success are at Hopewell.

NOTE

As its name implies, the Du Pont Chemical Company is not a real estate concern. We have these factories, factory sites and other buildings—a limited number—which we offer for immediate sale direct to manufacturers, at attractive terms. We are employing the most powerful and the quickest means of disposing of our peace surplus and of acquainting the public with the opportunities Hopewell offers. It will be a matter of first come first served. Quick action is advisable.

A Tidewater Port

This industrial district is about eighty miles west of Norfolk and twenty-three miles south of Richmond at the junction of the Appomattox and James rivers—in reality part of Chesapeake Bay.

It is a railway center with trunk-line connections to all points North, West and South. It is a tidewater port with steamer connections with transatlantic, South American and coastwise ports. Its shipping facilities compare favorably with those of the big port cities.

Factories and Sites

Hopewell was designed for the production of guncotton on a colossal scale. In less than a year it rose from a quiet little town to an industrial city of over 40,000 population.

Hopewell now presents opportunities to manufacturers unique in history—factory buildings easily adaptable to many kinds of manufacturing—1200 acres available for factory sites with railway sidings already built.

Labor and Housing

Labor, both skilled and unskilled, male and female, can be recruited from the surrounding territory to supply all needs. Within the space of a few weeks, the Du Pont Company recruited 30,000 workers. Low living costs have kept and should continue to keep wages at a fair level. Strikes are unknown.

Hopewell has cottages, bungalows, apartments and dormitories sufficient to accommodate 12,000 workers. In addition, it has clubs, hotels, churches, schools, commissary operating on a low cost-plus basis, stores, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and all the public utilities and civic improvements that constitute a modern city.

Power and Water

Hopewell has three gigantic and modern power plants; a total capacity of 60,000 h. p., ready to supply manufacturers with steam, electricity, heat, light and air pressure in any quantity at a surprisingly low cost.

Water of hygienic purity is drawn from filtration plants with a daily capacity of 50,000,000 gallons—more than enough to supply a city of 500,000.

Raw Material and Fuel

The Pocahontas and New River coal fields, which produce the best steam coal in the world, lie within a short hauling distance and assure a constant supply of low priced fuel.

Hopewell is in the center of a region rich in natural resources. Within a radius of fifty miles are produced annually 555,000,000 feet of timber available for lumber or for pulp and paper making; 25,000,000 pounds of tobacco, 3,000,000 bushels of corn, 2,000,000 bushels of peanuts and other crops valued at over $5,000,000. Each of these products offers opportunities to manufacturers.

A Good Place to Live

Hopewell's climatic and general health conditions are unsurpassed. It is a city without a "housing problem"—a city where profiteering is unknown, a city where, compared with some cities, the worker's fifty cents buys a dollar's worth of goods; a city where living ceases to be a losing struggle. In brief, Hopewell is a city where the average man would like to live and rear his children.

Tell Us Your Problems

Our experts—Technical, Industrial, Traffic—will gladly study your specific requirements, investigate your problems of raw materials, manufacturing processes transportation and give you an unbiased report as to the adaptability of Hopewell (plant sites, present available equipment, raw materials, etc.) to your special needs. GREETING BY FOCH TO LEGION CONGRESS

LINDSLEY MADE CHAIRMAN

Says the Organization Will Affect Powerfully the Trend of Thought of American People.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—The first convention of the American Legion got under way smoothly here today, although, as Chairman Henry D. Lindsley of Texas expressed it, "The convention has no powers, and I hope no legion convention ever will have a program."

The importance of decisions which would be expected of the various committees was emphasized, however, by Mr. Lindsley when he declared the legion "would affect the trend of thought of the American people as no other organization has ever done."

The report of the Advance Committee of the legion, advocating laws to curb the activities of radical aliens, investigation of the present critical industrial situation, and definite pronouncement as to what legislation ex-service men may want of Congress was presented by Chairman Lindsley and Secretary Eric Fisher Wood.

Henry D. Lindsley of Texas was chosen Permanent Chairman of the convention and Sergeant Jack Sullivan of Washington, Vice Chairman, with other officers of the legion continued during the convention. Bennett Clark of Missouri was nominated from the floor for Vice Chairman, but was defeated.

Greetings from Marshal Foch, Allied Commander in Chief, were transmitted by J. J. Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States. Marshal Foch's message follows:

"Mr. Valiant War Companions: The 11th of November, 1918, saw the capitulation of the enemy; vanquished Germany was craving for mercy and she delivered over to us such trophies as history has never known.

"This was indeed the victory of the allied armies, who ardently fighting had united in a supreme, continuous, and violent effort all their energies as they had united all their hopes.

"With head erect, the valiant American fighters of the Argonne, of the Meuse, of the Somme, of Flanders, after hard days, resumed once more, by the side of the Allies, the march toward the Rhine.

"On this day, when for the first time we celebrate the anniversary of the armistice, I want to be with you to commemorate the past and to tell you that with our eyes ever raised toward the same ideal of justice and liberty we must remain united as we have been in the days of trial and the days of triumph.

"Proud to have been at your head, I send my most cordial greetings to the veterans of the great war, illustrious by their immortal deeds, and to those who, in the camps of America, were preparing with ardor to come and take their part in the battle.

"Lastly, I wish to salute, as ever living in a memory of the past and on the threshold of a future common to us, the tombs of those who lie in the soil of France, resting there as a symbol of our indissoluble union."

The accompanying letter from Mr. Jusserand said:

"You may be assured that the Marshal has very truly expressed the feelings of every French citizen."

The wrote that Marshal Foch was prevented from coming to the convention of those who "took part or were drilling to take part in the world conflict," by circumstances "which will be understood by every veteran of the great war."

On motion of the California delegation, the delegates stood in silence for one minute, in honor of the men and women who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Discussion of candidates for national officers, with at least a dozen prominently mentioned for first national head of the legion, has brought an emphatic refusal from at least one delegate.

"When I say no, I mean no," declared Theodore Roosevelt, one of the delegates from New York, when his candidacy was mentioned. Others receiving support from their State delegations and others include Colonel Milton J. Foreman of Chicago, Henry D. Lindsley of Texas, Colonel Benson W. Hough of Ohio, and Thomas S. Walmsley of Louisiana.

War service adjustment bonds, amounting to $1 for each day in the Federal service, were proposed tonight to a committee by Chairman Lindsley, as the solution of the much discussed problem of compensating service men and women for their physical and financial sacrifices. A favorable committee report on the recommendation is expected. Mr. Lindsley's proposal, which he said had been indorsed by "a number of groups of thoughtful men of wealth," would involve a long term bond issue of approximately $2,000,000,000, drawing a high rate of interest and subject to all taxes "so that they would remain in the hands of service men rather than be accumulated by the rich."

Minneapolis won over Washington, D. C., by one vote on the sixth committee ballot for permanent national headquarters and will be recommended to the convention tomorrow for that selection.

Changes in the War Risk Insurance Administration were recommended to another committee by Mr. Lindsley and were embodied in their recommendations. These include reduction of premiums by payment of dividends through "saving in mortality" and optional decision of service men between payments to beneficiaries in a lump sum or installments. A possible saving of 25 per cent. in the premium rates by dividends was shown by Mr. Lindsley's statement.

NEGRO KILLS POLICEMAN.

New Member of Force Shot While Trying to Save Woman.

Policeman John McCormack of 576 East 145th Street, the Bronx, twenty days on the force, father of three young children, was shot and killed last night at Seventh Avenue and 132d Street. William Sanford, a negro musician, was arrested, charged with the killing.

According to the police, McCormack was on post early last night when Mrs. Edna Sanford, a cabaret singer, wife of the negro, came up and asked his aid in getting Sanford out of a saloon at 2,225 Seventh Avenue. McCormack went into the café and found that the negro had just slipped out of the side door. He told the woman to let him know if her husband came back.

Ten minutes later McCormack heard a shot and saw the woman dash out of the saloon with her husband in close pursuit brandishing an automatic pistol. Sanford had fired at the bartender, missed, and then turned on Mrs. Sanford, shooting her in the head, but not seriously wounding her. The young patrolman gave chase and soon caught up with the negro. Sanford heard the command to halt. He turned when McCormack was ten paces away. The negro fired four times and two shots found their mark. McCormack was picked up and rushed to the Harlem Hospital.

Four patrolmen, attached to the West 126th Street Station left their posts and volunteered for blood transfusion, but McCormack died an hour later on the operating table. Before he passed away Father John J. Coogan, the police chaplain, administered the last rites of the Catholic Church. The patrolman's wife reached the hospital a few minutes after he had died, and when the news was broken to her she collapsed.

The negro was captured by two other policemen and started toward the East 126th Street Station House.

The neighborhood where the shooting took place was crowded. The shots, the chase and the arrest drew a crowd of about 1,000. Half that number trailed the policemen and Sanford to the station house. It was necessary for the captors to draw their revolvers to prevent the angry crowd from rushing in and attacking Sanford.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

Miss Rambeau Reappears.

THE UNKNOWN WOMAN, a melodrama in four acts, by Marjorie Blaine and Willard Mack, based on a play by Stanley Lewis. At Maxine Elliott's Theatre.

The beauteous and accomplished Marjorie Rambeau, who came radiantly out of the West several seasons ago, is now an established personage on Broadway, and so she was met by a determined audience when she reappeared last evening at Maxine Elliott's Theatre in a new play called "The Unknown Woman."

This piece was contrived by Marjorie Blaine, assisted by Willard Mack, from a Yiddish work by Stanley Lewis, which is said to have had considerable vogue further downtown in its original tongue. It is doubtful if Miss Rambeau, even in her early barn-storming days in Alaska, was ever before called upon to breathe life into as mechanical and grotesquely improbable a melodrama as the highly-colored effort at sensationalism which had its New York première last night.

It is very rare nowadays for a playwright, who is not doing the book for a musical show but really trying hard to be serious, to leave plausibility quite so completely out of his reckoning. Of course it would never do to assume that audiences are going to be particularly intelligent, but of late years there has been growing up among our writers for the theatre a sneaking notion that all the people who come to see their shows will not be weak in the head. The authors of "The Unknown Woman" apparently had hot heard about this new movement.

Miss Rambeau plays the rôle of Margaret Emerson, handsome wife of a New York District Attorney, who is running for Governor. His infidelities are well known in her set, but he is none the less strict with her and will not even let her go to the opera without him. This is the last straw, and in her deep chagrin she and an old sweetheart named Gerald Hastings discover that they love one another still. Now, Gerald's wife is addicted to drugs and escapes from her sanitarium just in time to kill herself at the very hour when her husband is off philandering with Mrs. Emerson. He is, of course, arrested for the murder and will not testify in his own behalf because to do so would be to compromise the unknown woman who alone could prove his alibi. She, in turn, holds her own tongue on her gubernatorial husband's promise to pardon Hastings at the eleventh hour.

Does he keep his promise? Well, he tries not to and, indeed, locks his wife up in the State House to prevent her shouting her testimony up and down the streets of Albany. However, he plausibly but recklessly assumes she cannot communicate with the outside world by telephone. She, trusting in an eleventh-hour miracle, stakes her all on central's being able to connect her with the Ten Eyck, and the connection is actually made. Deafening applause.

Aid is rushed to her, the story is told, the man in the death house is saved, and the Governor exits cursing.

He does not say "Foiled again!" but that is the only one he overlooks. There are all the dear, familiar variants of "Gerald Hastings goes to the chair tomorrow" and "Gerald Hastings dies tomorrow." Then there is "It was not what you think, and "You called me a—Faugh, I cannot use the words," and "I do not wish to be seen here—is there a room where I can hide?" Also there is another one which runs: "For ten years I have tried hard to keep my self-respect and now look at the damned thing," or words to that effect.

With this material every one does nobly. There are times when both Felix Krembs and Lumsden Hare, who embody the villain and hero, respectively, are a trifle at a loss, but there really is no kind of play that is beyond Marjorie Rambeau's reach. She has such a collection of old stock company tricks of histrionism that the playwright does not live who could baffle her for a moment. It is also probable that she could rise gloriously and completely to as fine a play as this country is likely to produce in the next ten years, but that remains guesswork. There are a few moments of Anna Mack Berlein, of "Kick In" memory, which are pleasant. Of Jean Robertson as the drug addict, (who also brazenly smokes a cigarette in full view of the audience,) it may be said that her performance is nicely in key with the play.

It should be reported that there was indefatigable applause at the appointed moments last evening, several clusters of first-nighters passionately demanding the appearance before the curtain not only of Miss Rambeau but also of Miss Blaine and Willard Mack. The demands were met in full.

"THE MIKADO" WELCOMED.

Sallie Keith a New Yum Yum in American Singers' Revival.

"The Mikado" filled the Park Theatre last evening with an audience of loyal Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiasts, who greeted with instant applause each member of the Society of American Singers appearing in rôles familiar from last season. There was one newcomer, Sallie Keith, a demure and pleasing person, who stepped from the chorus at three days' notice and sang promisingly as Yum Yum.

Gladys Caldwell and Gertrude Shannon were the other Little Maids, Cora Tracy the Katisha, William Danforth the classic Emperor, Craig Campbell his wandering heir, and Frank Moulan, Herbert Waterous, and Bertram Peacock the several noble lords of Japan. John McGhie conducted an excellent ensemble.

There was a welcome attempt at Oriental realism in the first scene, a picture drawn from the shrines of the Tokungawa shoguns in Shiba Park, Tokio, which was much appreciated by many Japanese in the house. The company announced for next week its first performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Yeomen of the Guard," which is English in scene and timely to the visit of the Prince of Wales.

OPERA FOR PRINCE OF WALES

Signor Caruso, who was absent when the Metropolitan staged its gala concert for King Albert of Belgium recently, is announced to appear a week from tonight in the second of this season's "royal galas," a special performance in honor of the Prince of Wales. Opera subscribers have the first call on seats at the box office today, from 9 o'clock on, and the general public tomorrow, at regular opera rates.

General Manager Gatti-Casazza has arranged a program of four scenes, with an orchestral interlude and a finale of patriotic airs, as follows: Overture and Scene 3 from "Oberon," Poselle and Howard, Bodansky conducting; part of the final scene of "Samson et Dalila," Lillian Ogden, ballet and chorus, led by Bamboschek; first act of "Pagliacci," Caruso, Easton, Amato, Laurenti, Paltrinieri, led by Moranzoni, and the camp scene from "La Forza del Destino," sung by Delaunois and chorus, with dances by Galli, Bonfiglio and the corps de ballet, conducted by Setti.

Before the "Pagliacci" number, the orchestra, led by Bamboschek, will play the "Pomp and Circumstance" march by the English composer, Sir Edward Elgar, and at the program's close Florence Easton, born in England and formerly by residence a Canadian, will sing with the chorus "The Star-Spangled Banner," while Frances Alda, who before her marriage was a British subject, will sing "God Save the King." There will possibly be added, if the music is obtained here, the special air, "God Bless the Prince of Wales."

TWO ARTISTS MAKE DEBUTS

Miss Kathryn Lee, Soprano, and Miss Doris Madden, Pianist, Heard.

Two debutante artists, soprano and pianist respectively, sang and played to audiences in Carnegie and Aeolian Halls last evening, with the usual manifestations on such occasions of extravagant floral tributes borne through the aisles and excessive nervousness on the stage. Miss Kathryn Lee, a singer from Maine, the State of Eames and Nordica, faced the larger assembly at Carnegie Hall. She sang an ambitious program of Italian, French, Russian and English airs, in a voice often explosive and ill controlled. Her native talent merited perhaps a more modest start; she was tall and not ungraceful in her white draperies with a solitary black streamer from one shoulder, and she showed repose if not ease on the stage.

A visitor from the Antipodes, Miss Doris Madden, niece of the late Sir John Madden, Chief Justice of the State of Victoria, Australia, played in Aeolian Hall to an audience of considerable numbers and not a little cordiality. Her best efforts were in a pair of studies by Scriabine, whose harmonies were ultra-modern. In Schumann's "Carnival" and a Chopin group her fingers too often touched false notes in well-known melodies. There were also technical arrangements from Bach-Tausig, Rameau-Godowsky, Debussy and Liszt.

New Concert Hall in West 63d St.

A new concert hall at 22 to 28 West Sixty-third Street, adjoining the Century Theatre, is announced to open about Dec. 15 as an outlet for musical entertainments which have this season found an overcrowded calendar in existing halls. Built some years ago, and used for several seasons as a lecture hall, the house has a seating capacity of 1,200, and has been taken on a twenty-one years' lease by a holding company, to be operated under the direction of S. E. Macmillen, manager of the New Symphony Orchestra.

ECONOMY
Candid speaking about canned goods

You pay a little more for tomatoes at Park & Tilford, but you buy a can filled with the luscious whole tomatoes.

THE FEDERATION'S MISTAKE.

Whatever its merits as an appeal or as an argument, the statement put forth by the American Federation of Labor at Washington on Sunday evening was out of place, it was a serious impropriety, even if it was not something worse. When the court has spoken, when a decree has been handed down, there is but one thing to do. The order of the court must be obeyed. It was no time then for the chiefs of the Federation to issue a statement "to our fellow-citizens and to our fellow-workers." The court spoke with the voice of all citizens, of all workers. If this is a government of laws, then the will of all the people found expression in Judge ANDERSON'S decree that the strike order be withdrawn. The Federation chiefs spoke only for themselves, for their appeal runs against the authority of the Government, which is based upon the will of all the people. If the American Federation is a law unto itself, if it can set up a government of its own, then we have anarchy, not government. It was certainly out of place to address this statement "to our fellow-citizens," for the thing enjoined and forbidden by the court is a conspiracy against the welfare and the safety, even against the lives, of the citizens of the United States. It is a conspiracy in violation of the law. The chiefs of the Federation were very badly advised when they "justified" that conspiracy, when they declared "we indorse it."

Though skillfully drawn with evident intent to suggest rather than to say openly that the American Federation of Labor was going to support the miners' union in resisting the authority of the court and of the United States, that part of the statement has been generally construed as a threat, certainly as an encouragement to disobedience of the court's order. That is pretty dangerous business. Whatever it may be or may not be in the view of the law, it betrays a shocking misunderstanding of the very foundation principles not only of our Government, but of our civilization. Respect for the constable's staff, as the emblem of authority, is the foundation stone of our institutions. That is why we have domestic peace, that is why our Government does not alternate between the rule of chosen authority and the rule of self-appointed dictators.

The Federation chiefs have exposed themselves to the charge that they are trying to set up a government in opposition to the one the people have set up. Mr. GOMPERS should have advised them against that. We are sorry to see that he quite fails to note and understand the present temper of the American people. He is too much inclined to talk, as he has always been inclined to talk, of always higher wages, always shorter hours. All exactions must have their limits, he should be the first to see when he is approaching them.

The managers of the coal strike against whom the court's order is directed will, no doubt, obey it; they would be inconceivably foolish to disobey it. Some of them say they would rather go to jail, but they must be blind if they fancy that is the way to martyrdom. They have alienated public sympathy by their conspiracy in violation of the law and against the public safety. At Washington they rejected repeated opportunities to come to an arrangement with the operators through negotiation. There can be no negotiation, no discussion of their demands until the order of the court is obeyed, until the notice to strike is withdrawn. What may be done then depends first of all upon their reasonableness. There may be a commission of inquiry into mining conditions, but if they are to entertain any hope of that they must not repeat their fatal blunder of issuing a strike order in advance of all negotiations. That is not collective bargaining, it has been well called collective threatening. But the merits of their demands can have no further consideration until the strike is ended. The one thing for them to do, the only course for them to take now, is to obey the order of the court.

ON KILLING THE TREATY.

After the Senate had adopted the majority reservation on withdrawal from the League Senator LODGE declared:

> If the Democrats vote down the resolution of ratification with the reservations embraced in it, they will vote down the Treaty. They will have no way, after that, of resurrecting it.

Vice President MARSHALL'S rulings leave it somewhat doubtful if this is really the case; but suppose Senator LODGE is right. Suppose the Democrats do vote down the ratification resolution with the majority amendments, and thereby kill the Treaty. What treaty will they have killed? Not the Treaty negotiated at Versailles, which has already been accepted by nine of the allied States and by Germany. The document which will lie before the Senate when the majority reservations have been added will bear little resemblance to that Treaty. If the Democrats kill a treaty, it will be a treaty negotiated by and between HENRY CABOT LODGE, WILLIAM E. BORAH, FRANK B. BRANDEGEE, ALBERT C. FALL, PHILANDER C. KNOX, WARREN G. HARDING, HIRAM JOHNSON, HARRY S. NEW, and GEORGE H. MOSES.

The Treaty drawn up in Paris pledged the nations of the world to cooperation for the common good. The treaty drawn up by the majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which Senator LODGE is trying to substitute for the one signed at Versailles, serves notice that the United States expects to share in all the benefits of international co-operation, but will do none of the work except perhaps now and then, on the impulse of the moment. This treaty has not been submitted to any other nation, and is not at all likely to be acceptable to other nations; as a great many of the men who voted for the preamble well knew.

If the League of Nations is a good thing, let us have it. If it is a bad thing, let us frankly say we will have none of it. Either position has the merit of frankness and fair dealing. What can be said for the declaration that we expect others to work for us, but will make no promise to work for others; that we expect the rest of the world to take the League for better or worse, but that we shall take it only for better? And that is what we say in the treaty that Senator LODGE now has before the Senate.

THE REDS.

When we hear that "the bubonic plague" has been observed in some far ports we are not in the least alarmed. The world is great. Sanitary restrictions are severe. Science is potent. The unclean thing cannot reach to us. How is it about the Red Plague, now spreading through the world? Who will delimit it, who will localize it? Ah, but this is all nonsense. There is nothing serious about it. For instance, when the missionaries of LENIN tried to begin a world-rising of Bolshevism on Nov. 7, there was nothing in it. Switzerland, Germany, Italy, were making merely phantom demonstrations to suppress the revolt of the "proletariat of the world." Mr. HARALD SCAVENIUS, lately Danish Minister to Russia, was merely indulging in blague, we are told, for the purpose of frightening the bourgeoisie, when he was saying that, from one single source, the Bolshevist propaganda was being disseminated through the world. In every country, he said, and we have seen and are seeing all too much demonstration of his theory, the strike of the labor unions against their recognized leaders is the prime social-economic fact of the day; and everywhere that revolt is part, and the leading part, of the Bolshevist program.

All authority must be broken. The beginning of that breaking is the breaking of the authority of the labor leaders. That is the road, and the natural road, to the destruction of lawful and constitutional government. When all those restrictions have been overthrown, the new world of disorder, of class and proletarian sway, will begin.

The policy of the Federation of Unions of Russian Workers in the United States, made public yesterday by Assistant Attorney General GARVAN, is exactly that policy of destruction. That policy includes the confiscation of private property, the assassination of public officers, the burning of army barracks and police stations, the overturn of the United States Government. How much effect does this have on the "ordinary American citizen"? It is nonsense. "They can't do it." Well, there are a good many of these offensive people in the United States; and they are not conscious that they can't do it. They are trying very hard to do it. They have, to start on, a large element in the alien and foreign-speaking population of the United States. They have an unknown number of natives sympathetic with their motives. They have five hundred or more publications working for their side. Among the three thousand or more foreign-language publications in the United States they have a good many more friends and colporteurs than that. They are endowed for their work of massacre and ruin by wealthy half-baked Americans, the list of whom the Department of Justice declines to publish.

On Saturday night twenty-five tons of "radical literature" was seized in the raids on seventy-one radical headquarters. Twenty-five tons are seized with great, and doubtless just, celebration on the part of the authorities. Do they ever think of the unseized tons of propaganda of social and economic death? The police and the Government get a little, choke off a little. What of that which is circulated? What of that literature of anarchy that reaches 3,000,000 readers, is supported by wealthy men and women in this town, amateurs of excitement? Does the Government stop that? Is it trying to stop that? Hypnotized by a false theory of the "liberty" of the press, do the guardians of the law see law crumbling every moment, and make no effort to support it, save these sporadic raids where everybody is arrested and finally few are held?

We hear that there are 7,500 Communists in New York. Is it a guess of our active statisticians? Communist or anarchist or Bolshevik, what happens to them? They are always punishable and seldom punished. They are always deportable and never deported.

As solid American citizens, innocently believing that what has been will continue to be, and that there are no people in the world who really amount to anything that hate everything that we love, we are inclined to grin tolerantly at the program, the energetic, fanatical, and ferocious program, of world-revolution of the Russian adapters of Marxism. Hordes of ignorant aliens, speaking not a word of English, their minds subject without correction to what we regard as the mad Russian doctrine, are in the United States. A too large class of amateurs, corresponding in a way to the "enlightened" French noblesse in 1789, are in the United States. Still, there isn't anything in it, is there? In Madison Square Garden Sunday night some 11,000 New Yorkers assembled to cheer for the Russian Soviet, which is not yet the government of this country. With a sinister significance, the applauders of class government in Russia cheered also the coal mine strikers and the steel strikers. As former Minister SCAVENIUS says, "all, or nearly "all, present and recent strikes have "been carried out against the wishes "or over the heads of the men's own "leaders and usual trades union or-"ganizations." It is for the sober and conservative members, the majority, of those organizations to consider what puppet part they are playing in the great drama of disorganization staged by the Bolshevist movement. As to what the American people think and will do, if it has to be done, in regard to these attempts to break down their government, there is no doubt.

THE HOUSE'S RAILWAY PLAN.

The bill reported by Representative ESCH'S committee is to have the right of way in the House after today, and is likely to be passed before Senator CUMMINS'S plan. The difference between the two plans is so great that there is no likelihood that either will displace the other, nor is it desirable that either should until there is greater agreement upon the contentious points. The most conspicuous difference, although not the most important, is the treatment of the strike difficulty. The Cummins plan resembles the Lever law in making strikes criminal and providing punishment for them. The Esch plan provides for damages for either strikes or lockouts in violation of contract. Both plans have provisions for adjusting differences of opinions about wages, but the differences are in details, not in principle as in respect to strikes.

The Esch bill avoids punitive methods because laws in several countries have failed either to prevent strikes on railways, or in finding practicable methods of punishment. It is an argument from experience, not from principle. Strikes are sometimes criminal, and ought to be punishable, but the way has not yet been found. On the other hand, the way has been found to make unions pay for the damages they do, and they have been mulcted whenever their acts have been of the sort which ought to be punished, and when the prosecution has been sufficiently determined. It is a reproach to the enactment of law that enactments and exceptions are passed in the same breath, and it is a reproach to the administration of law that private prosecutions have shown the way to make labor respect the law even without the Esch bill. It is a cumulation of law rather than a new enactment, and it might even be thought a mitigation of present law, for it limits damages to the amount of common property held by unions, although under present law damages have been recovered even from individual unionists' property.

On the longer view strikes are so few and brief on railways that the provisions affecting permanent interests are more important, although at the moment less interesting. The Esch bill leaves the rate question where it is, merely providing that rates shall provide a "fair return" upon the value of the property used. No provision is made for adjusting differences of opinions about rates as there is about wages. The Cummins proposal is to set up another commission to instruct the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Esch bill leaves the Interstate Commerce Commission in control, apparently on the belief that the commission's education has now reached the stage of recognizing that rates are not just and reasonable unless they provide a fair return to the owners of property as well as good service to shippers, and fair wages to workers. There have been signs of this growing perception among some of the commission, and if the others resist the logic of experience it would be better to build up the present commission with suitable material than to multiply commissions, with all the chances of untried machinery and new phraseology for judicial definition, running over years, no doubt.

The bills resemble each other in their provision that there shall be an interval after the return of the roads to private operation, during which present conditions shall endure until altered by experience under future conditions. The Senate bill attacks the difficulty about making the same rates for weak and strong roads, with the further difficulty about excess profits for some roads and financial trouble for others, by providing for great combinations of railways, with rates for regions and an average return which the weak roads may earn, and above which the profits of strong roads are reduced. The Esch bill provides for supervision of the apportionment of joint rates. Hitherto the commission has prorated the haul, although the costs of service are often greater on the short lines, and although the profits of the longer lines are increased disproportionately by the traffic originating on their own lines. There are many cases in which strong roads by stock ownership control weak roads in disregard of the interests of minority investors. The strong roads make their profit on the business done, and there is no reward for those whose money built the facilities. As the bill is over eighty pages long it will be understood that many details are not mentioned. The high points of comparison suffice for a judgment as to whether the permanent legislation should be hastened until there is better agreement upon the fundamentals. It would be desirable that the measure which is to survive should not become part of the Presidential campaign, but that may be the result of Congress's dallying with the subject for the past year.

GEN. SHERWOOD'S FIELD DAY.

The House of Representatives had the pleasure the other day of hearing that veteran General ISAAC R. SHERWOOD fight his battles over. Members stood up and cheered his eloquent periods. It was a field day for the General, who is in his eighty-fifth year. He fought gallantly in the civil war and he has a rare gift of expression. His description of Franklin, where both sides suffered severe losses, made the pulse beat faster. Before he began his vivid recital he called upon the Military Affairs Committee to "tell the House and the "country when and where General "PERSHING was at the front during "any of the great conflicts of this "World War." Then he informed the House that he had talked with many "overseas soldiers," all of whom declared that "they never saw "or heard of General PERSHING at "the front."

But before plunging in medias res General SHERWOOD explained why Congress had never granted General WILLIAM R. SHAFTER supreme rank, or acclaimed him a hero, for winning the battle of Santiago; it was because he was "six miles in the rear" on the day of battle. General SHERWOOD is mistaken about the distance. SHAFTER, sick enough from fever to be in a hospital on July 1, 1898, saw the fighting from a rise of ground not far from the front, in range of the Spanish Mausers, and was as near the thick of things as a Commander in Chief should ever be. Of his courage there could be no question. He had won the Medal of Honor by "most "distinguished gallantry in the battle "of Fair Oaks, Virginia, May 31, "1862," refusing to leave the field, although wounded, until the close of the engagement.

General SHERWOOD, as Colonel of the 111th Ohio, was at Franklin. "The hottest part of the line," according to General BASIL DUKE of Kentucky, "was a black locust "thicket just at the right of the "Columbia Pike." To the House General SHERWOOD said: "This is "correct; I was at that part of the "line." And the following recital of experience evoked the applause (in brackets) of his hearers: "My horse "Firefly, a coal black that I had "ridden in many fierce conflicts from "Rocky Face to Atlanta, was shot. "He fell with a deadening thud. I "never knew how many bullets "pierced his quivering body." How General JOHN B. HOOD, a target for Federal sharpshooters, coolly surveyed the Union Army through his glasses from the large linden tree (still standing) on the ridge at Franklin; how General PAT CLEBURNE on "a chestnut horse," and afterward on foot, led a charge against the Federal line and fell mortally wounded; how General JOHN ADAMS reined up on the parapet "and was fatally shot, his "horse falling across the breast-"works"; and how other Generals exposed themselves and gave up their lives—all this Representative SHERWOOD described to the House in words that made his hearers break into thunders of applause. He had, he said, witnessed the "agonizing after-"math of forty battlefields."

From General SHERMAN to the newest Brigadier, all the civil war commanders sought the post of danger where the fire was galling. General SHERWOOD passed them in review grandiloquently. As to Franklin, "more Brigadiers and Major Generals "were killed in that eight-hour fight "than in the whole World War of "four years and over where nearly "18,000,000 soldiers were in the hell "of battle." (Applause.) It was a rash statement. The purpose of these civil war reminiscenses was obviously to cast a reflection upon General PERSHING'S reputation. Since Representative SHERWOOD'S field day in the House scores of letters from American soldiers have been received by the Military Affairs Committee testifying to their General's presence at the front in France at different times. In more than one of them General SHERWOOD is reminded that methods of warfare have changed since the civil war. Ex-Sergeant P. J. LINDEN of the Thirty-third Division wants the committee to tell General SHERWOOD that the veterans of the A. E. F. are "sick" of such charges as he and Representatives SCHALL and BLAND have made against the Commander in Chief.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Amateurs Will Be Resentful.

As all common folk are suavely informed by the President of the Royal Society that Dr. EINSTEIN'S deductions from the behavior of light as observed during an eclipse cannot be put in language comprehensible to them, they are under no obligations to worry their heads, already tired by contemplation of so many other hard problems, about this addition to the number. Still, almost everybody who has read the story of the apple has a sort of affection for Sir ISAAC NEWTON, and a general uneasiness of mind will be created by the current assertions that while the long-revered law of gravitation remains good enough for everybody except the mathematicians, the latter, for reasons comprehensible only to themselves, now hold it to be not always and everywhere true.

This is news distinctly shocking, and apprehensions for the safety of confidence even in the multiplication table will arise. It is a pity that the Wise Ones told us anything at all about this new scandal in scientific circles, if they cannot tell us more, for, somehow, what they do say hints less at the impossibility of making us understand the Einstein discovery than at an inclination to keep a particularly interesting thing to themselves.

Quite the most disturbing feature of the situation is the assumption that only men of wonderful learning have the ability, and therefore the right, to see what meaning there is in the fact that light, being subject to a turning from the straight path by a mass of matter like the sun, must itself have of matter at least the quality of weight. Not a few mathematicians who are merely modest amateurs can at least glimpse significance in that, and it is hard to avoid the suspicion that if the masters could do any more they wouldn't recoil from the task of putting what it means to them into words for the rest of us at least to mull over. If we gave it up, no harm would be done, for we are used to that, but to have the giving up done for us is—well, just a little irritating.

They Have Already a Geometry.

Years and years ago certain mathematicians who had tired of accepting the assumptions of EUCLID as of self-evident truth said to themselves: "Go to! Let us assume that parallel lines do meet, and see what happens." What happened was that they found it possible to build up a new geometry, just as elaborate, just as well reasoned, and just as well demonstrated as EUCLID'S. They called it "metagеometry," and greatly enjoyed the attention they attracted. If those innovators were still alive they could get, apparently, out of the Einstein observations and deductions an excuse for saying to all and sundry, "We told you so!"

They did, though they were considerably less serious about it than they should have been to establish a posthumous reputation as prophets wise before the time.

It remains to be seen what bearing the Einstein discovery has upon the old syllogism that constitutes what passed with students of logic for a joke. It ran: "Light moves in straight lines; feathers are light; therefore feathers move in straight lines." Now, the conclusion must be that feathers, too, being light, move in crooked lines, or at least curved ones, and that fits in better with experience than did the old conclusion.

It would take the Presidents of at least two royal societies to give plausibility, or even thinkability, to the declaration that as light has weight space has limits. It just doesn't, by definition, and that's the end of that—for common folk, however it may be for higher mathematicians.

Not All Will Enjoy the Prospect.

Among the many interesting proposals in the program of the Federation of Unions of Russian Workers is one relating to "certificates of indebtedness." All of these, it seems, are to be burned in the course of carrying out the plan of the Russian workers. There are not a few besides themselves, it is to be feared, who will find a certain attractiveness, at first thought, in this particular promise for the New Day. Debts are nuisances and the payment of them is troublesome, as everybody knows. But, are not the Muscovite financiers hasty in promising to destroy all evidences of debt? How about those owed to the proletarians by the accursed bourgeoisie?

Taken the world over, such debts run up into the millions of millions, for the working folk are the real creditor class everywhere, and "the rich," not the poor, are the habitual borrowers.

A Corporation Goes on a Strike.

Among the certificates of indebtedness that will go into the fire if all do are the little books acknowledging the deposit of money in savings banks. Not all of these are held by poor people, but the great majority of them are, and, judging from what happens when savings bank depositors who are not rich doubt the solvency of one of those institutions and make a run on it, they would not really be pleased to have their pass books burned or think it a favor to them.

As the people of Toledo had for their street car company the enthusiastic lack of affection which it seems to be the fate of such corporations everywhere to excite, there was no difficulty in getting the inhabitants of the city to vote their company's cars off its streets until it stopped charging six cents fare and two cents for transfers. That vote, however, was cast on an understanding—by the voters—not that the company would remove its cars from the streets, but that it would return to a straight five-cent fare. Instead, with truly malignant docility and between two days, it deported all its cars into the State of Michigan, and the Toledans found themselves the winners of a most inconvenient victory against the hated foe.

They were confronted with a painful alternative—that of riding in automobiles at a cost considerably greater than the rates they had held intolerable, or of walking.

Of course this situation will not last long. A compromise of one sort or another is inevitable, but the warning to be found in Toledo's attempt at compulsion by exclusion should be heeded in other cities where the desire to ride at what the street car companies declare to be less than cost might lead to action of like unwisdom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article, "Prohibition and Its Friends," you said at the close of the second paragraph that the view is held by allied citizens that a man "who has once antagonized the Anti-Saloon League is thereafter debarred from holding public office."

As far as the Anti-Saloon League is concerned, the complete answer to that is our indorsement of Charles H. Betts of Wayne County for Assemblyman. You know that there was no more pronounced opponent of the League than Mr. Betts a few years ago. I could cite other instances, but that is sufficient to establish the principle. We don't care a continental whether a man has once antagonized the League, because we deal with the immediate present issue and have supported many a man who has decided to get on the right side of this question.

The worst thing about the statement you made is that you have not comprehended the difference between Haskell's standing for a referendum, and on the other hand Haskell's statement assailing the Constitution as oppressive and iniquitous. We worked for a referendum for twenty years, and if that had been the legal procedure in the case of a national amendment we would have welcomed it, but that is settled and the referendum hasn't anything to do with it. Mr. Haskell's offense was in his appeal to the lawless element, a sufficient quantity of which apparently came over from the Democratic Party of Brooklyn to put him in the lead. ANDREW B. WOOD,
Assistant State Superintendent Anti-Saloon League.
New York, Nov. 6, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All thoughtful minds will agree with Attorney General Palmer's statement that "this is a critical hour in the life of our country;" and that "the test is being made whether the Government has the right and the power to protect all the people from a national disaster which would be inflicted upon them by a single group for its own advantage." And also as to his declaration that "no Government worthy of the name can permit the strike weapon to be used to enforce the demands of a single class of workers at the expense of all the people."

The perils from within our social order from those who hold and propagate the doctrines of communism, socialism, and radical notions which tend to overturn our Government and institutions of true freedom based on wisely ordained constitutions, must be firmly met and resisted. There should be no compromise with principle, no concession to clamorous and defiant elements which might induce the reign of anarchy or the blight of social and economic chaos.

It should ever be borne in mind and everywhere taught that the individual good and national safety are bound up in the vigilant maintenance of the law and public justice. THOS. F. WILKINSON.
Albany, N. Y., Nov. 7, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a Canadian spending a few months' holidays in and about New York. One of the first things I did on reaching your country was to purchase a small book of twelve 2-cent stamps and to look up therein the rate of postage to Canada. I saw that the letter rate to Canada was 3 cents for the first ounce. Fortunately since that time some kind countryman of yours has informed me that the stamp folder (sold by the Post Office authorities) contains absolutely inaccurate information and that I have been squandering 1 cent on every letter to Canada. I trust this letter may put other Canadians on their guard against a similar mistake. A CANADIAN.

ARMISTICE DAY AND A GOLD STAR.

When the armistice news worldwide had flown,
A little gray mother across the sea—
Robbed by the war, bereft, alone—
And a two-edged sword in her heart had she!

"Was it for this I bore a son,
Dearer than life itself to me?
Ah, but 'tis well for mother hearts
What the future holds we may not see—
Flesh of my flesh, bone of my bone,
In my sad old age to be left alone.

"Was it for this I watched him grow—
Never to hear his voice again,
Or see him with his soldier's kit
Come swinging down the old home-lane?

"Was it for this? Yes! Even so,
Nor time nor space can take from me
That joy the childless may not know—
The priceless joy—his memory!
For as long as this world in its orbit runs,
Mothers of men must give their sons!"

So this little gray mother whom war had led Through sorrow's waters, deep and wide,
Looked away to that Country far ahead
Where they still "carry on"—our glorious dead,

LUSITANIA'S CAPTAIN QUITS.

Commodore Turner of Cunard Line Retired at Age Limit of 63.

Word was received yesterday from Liverpool by the officers of the steamship Royal George that Captain William T. Turner, commodore of the Cunard Line, who commanded the Lusitania when she was torpedoed off the Irish Coast on May 7, 1915, and later the Ivernia, torpedoed on Jan. 1, 1917, in the Mediterrean, had retired after fifty years' sea service. He had been forty-one years with the Cunard Line and is 63 years old, which is the company's age limit for commanders.

Captain Turner was recently criticised in the Admiralty paper read before Parliament concerning the loss of the Lusitania, which stated that he had disobeyed the instructions by reducing speed, going close into the land instead of keeping out in mid-channel and in not zig-zagging. His brother shipmasters said that while he might not have carried out the Admiralty instructions concerning the course and manoeuvering, he was not to blame for reducing speed, as six boilers in the Lusitania were shut down in January, 1915, which brought the big liner down from 25 knots to 20 or 21 knots at the best.

In the Ivernia the Captain was in very hard luck, for he had only relieved Captain Arthur Rostron four hours before he steamed to sea and was torpedoed. That was his last seagoing command. Since then Captain Turner has been relief Captain at Glasgow and Liverpool.

He had another accident in the war early in 1915 as commander of the auxiliary cruiser Aquitania when she rammed a big freighter in the Irish Sea and stove her bow in, but a naval officer was in charge of the bridge at the time.

Captain Turner commanded the Lusitania and Mauretania when they made some of their fastest runs between New York and Liverpool and docked the Aquitania at the Cunard pier, foot of West Fourteenth Street, in nineteen minutes on her first voyage, which was a record for such a big ship.

Captain Turner is a first-class navigator and seaman and is regarded in New York and Liverpool as one of the ablest shipmasters in the Atlantic trade. Pilots describe him as a wizard in docking a ship and a man who has the fullest confidence in his own ability to handle a situation. The early part of his nautical career was passed in sailing ships trading round the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn.

ART SALE AT BIJOU THEATRE.

Collection of Major George Paget at Auction Thursday.

There are many occasions upon which the sale of art objects becomes drama, but a theatrical setting is a novelty. At the Bijou Theatre on Thursday and Friday afternoons the collection of Major George Paget, with a number of additions, will be sold at auction by Karl Freund. The things will be on view until Nov. 12 at Delmonico's. They make a delightful group, with a dominant eighteenth century flavor, in spite of many objects belonging to earlier periods.

Letter boxes and candlesticks, maps and pictures done in silk needlework, Louis XVI. fashions, illustrated in "gravures habillés," inkstands and consoles, paper weights and barometers are among the charming trifles made important by the beautiful workmanship of the eighteenth century, and the color has the pleasant gravity characteristic of the best work of that century, but not always credited to it.

The pictures, also, are serious and pleasant in character, and extremely varied in subject. Two of the most interesting from their rarity are little panels credited to the sixteenth century Flemish artist Floris, and represent a haymaking scene in one instance, and in the other a group of gentlemen and ladies dancing the old dance called the "pavane" on a green. In both pictures the architectural accessories and the landscape are drawn with the loving care of the ancient miniaturists. A later painting of great interest is by Carnicero, a contemporary of Goya and one of the liveliest and most inventive Spaniards of his time.

TYPHUS IN EUROPE A WORLD PROBLEM

WORST SINCE MIDDLE AGES

Drive for Red Cross Members to Go On for Another Week—Kindly Message from Foch.

Sir David Henderson, Director General of the newly created League of Red Cross Societies, with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, said last night that the league, at the beginning of its organization was confronted with one of the most serious scourges since the Middle Ages—the typhus epidemic in Eastern Europe. "The situation is too grave for the Red Cross societies to cope with unaided," he said. "We have already asked the assistance of the Governments to stop the spread of the disease."

Sir David, who was a Lieutenant General in the British Army, arrived here yesterday on the Baltic. He saw reporters last night at the home of Henry P. Davison, 390 Park Avenue.

"We were unorganized when the appeal came to help the people of Eastern Europe," he said, "but we had to throw ourselves into it. There is a belt across Russia, Poland, Rumania, Serbia, and Lithuania, where typhus has been raging for two years. The American Red Cross, as usual, took the lead, and all the nations have joined in.

"There were more than 120,000 cases in Poland alone in July, and conditions are growing worse. We are approaching the worst season for typhus now. Typhus goes with dirt, and our chief difficulty is in keeping the people clean. We sent soap, but then there was no coal to heat the water. We have sent fresh clothes, but we have been unable to supply enough. There is a great lack of material, hospitals are unequipped, and there is only one doctor to every 10,000."

Sir David said the American Red Cross was the "backbone" of the league. "It was Mr. Davison's initiative that started it," he said, "and it was an American aid that gave us our first organization."

The Third Red Cross Roll Call, instead of ending today, as had been planned, has been extended a week in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. Major Gen. O'Ryan, campaign manager, said last night that the reason was "the inability of the chapter organizations to complete their canvass.

The Actors' Fidelity League got several hundred members for the Red Cross yesterday at a meeting in front of the library. Louis Mann, who instructed the meeting, made good his promise to give $100 for a life membership if his fellow-actors would get 100 other members. Florence Nash, Ruth Chatterton, Fay Bainter, Frances Starr, Ina Claire, Frankie Bailey, Bessie McCoy Davis, Dorothy Rogers, Mrs. Howard Kyle, and Lillian Grant were those who took part.

Private A. E. Creagh, who calls himself "The Man of Mystery," will free himself from a straitjacket while suspended in midair in Times Square today at 2 in the afternoon and 7 in the evening. Private Creagh, who was taken prisoner by the Germans, said he would never have lived to return to his home had it not been for the aid of the Red Cross.

There will be another open-air meeting in front of the library this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Several speakers, including Police Commissioner Enright, Rabbi Silverman, Chaplain William A. Pringle, the Rev. W. T. Crocker, and the Rev. Dr. McRossie will take part. Mayor Hylan, Father Duffy and Major Gen. O'Ryan have been asked to attend. There will be a similar meeting in Times Square in the evening.

Tributes to the Red Cross yesterday included one from Marshal Foch, another from Cardinal Lucon, Archbishop of Rheims, and one from the Union des Femmes de France. Marshal Foch wrote:

"The American Red Cross has accomplished a great work during the war. She has had to employ vast resources to do this, and through it all has displayed a magnificent spirit."

SPANISH CLERGY FOR RISE.

$200 Minimum for Priests to be Urged on the Government.

MADRID, Nov. 9.—Clergymen, in conference here under the Presidency of Cardinal Primado of Spain, have decided to ask the Government and the Cortes for increases in salaries.

The new scale, as outlined by the conference, provides that no priest shall receive less than 1,000 pesetas (about $200) yearly, and increases ranging from 30 to 65 per cent., according to the present salaries of priests, are asked, missionaries in Spanish colonies to be included. Charges for special masses and other special services would be increased 35 per cent., according to the plan.

There are 1,122 priests in Spain at present receiving less than 1,000 pesetas and 23,452 receiving less than 1,500 pesetas. Salaries of priests, it is pointed out, have been stationary since the Concordat in 1851.

WALES WELCOMED TO UNITED STATES

GIRLS RAISE FLAG CANOPY

ROUSE POINT, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Edward, Prince of Wales, entered the United States shortly after 8 o'clock tonight, and received his first welcome to the Republic at this little out-of-the-way New York town.

Officially he was greeted by Secretary of State Lansing, with a be-medalled staff of Admirals and Generals in attendance, and the band of the 63d United States Infantry blaring "God Save the King." Unofficially he received a far more boisterous welcome from 2,000 inhabitants of Rouses Point, who had waited patiently for hours in the bleak north wind to cheer the nation's guest.

There was no formality of speech-making in connection with the welcome. He shook hands in turn with Secretary Lansing, Major General John Biddle, resenting the United States Army; Rear Admiral Albert T. Niblick, representing the United States Navy; Major General Charleton of the British Army, representing the British Embassy, and then with the officers of lesser rank belonging to the various staffs.

After introductions had ended, the Prince inspected the guard of honor, made up of 150 picked men of the 63d Regiment. When he reached the end of the front rank a surprise awaited him. Rouses Point had selected its twelve prettiest girls to hold aloft a canopy formed of two great American and British flags sewed together.

"Oh! I must speak to the ladies afterward," exclaimed the Prince.

He completed his inspection and returned to the flag holders, passing under the canopy and shaking hands with each in turn.

The soldiers moved off as the Prince climbed aboard his car again and the crowd surged about the observation platform where he stood, smiling and waving his hand in acknowledgement of their cheers.

Then he had another surprise. It appeared as if Rouse Point had decided with one mind that they were going to obtain the distinguished visitor's autograph and had equipped themselves with everything for that purpose from stub pencils and memorandum books to cabinet portraits and fountain pens. The Secret Service agents waved them back desperately, but one woman reached the steps of the car and to her delight the laughing Prince bent down and wrote his name in her book.

Just before the train pulled out on its long run to Washington a man darted out of the crowd and shouted:

"Will you give me the honor of shaking hands with you? I'm a Canadian, wounded and gassed at Vimy."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Prince of Wales will arrive in Washington at noon tomorrow for a three-day sojourn in the American capital, and at 3 o'clock will call on Mrs. Wilson at the White House. President Wilson has expressed a desire to meet the Prince and Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the President's physician, said today that the President's health would permit him to do so.

During the afternoon the Prince will receive and return calls. Vice President Marshall will give a formal dinner in honor of the Prince at the Belmont home in the evening, and this will complete the first day's program.

THE SCREEN

Any one would expect a motion picture full of Elsie Janis to be full of snap and pep, bright and brisk, jolly and friendly from start to finish—and that's just what "A Regular Girl" is. It is the first of Miss Janis's pictures for the Selznick company, and it opened at S. S. Moss's Broadway Theatre last night.

One of the best things about the film is that it shows Elsie Janis as she was "over there." There are a number of scenes of her among the boys at the front and they make people realize what a boost to the army spirit she must have been. The "gang" shown on the screen with her very apparently registered the response they and their buddies must have shown in France.

The story of "A Regular Girl" was devised to illustrate Elsie Janis at the war and on the stage. It begins with a society girl full of life but living to little or no purpose. Then she goes to France to do war work, and when she comes back the old things do not satisfy her. Pretending to be a maid she rejoins her "gang" and when they discover that she is Elizabeth Van Somethingorother Schuyler, and not just their "Lizzie," she becomes their fairy godmother and sets to work finding jobs for all of them and others. She gives a circus first to raise money and then opens an employment agency. Her fiancé is drawn into her activities and she finally gives him the job of husband—so there is a "love interest" in the picture, but it doesn't interfere with the real "action," which is carried on by Lizzie, Mac, Shorty, Slim, and Red.

Matt Moore, as the fiancé, fits into the temper of the picture nicely, and the "boys" are played realistically by Tammany Young, Ernie Adams, Jerry Delaney, and Frank Murdock. Mrs. Jeffrey Lewis makes the rôle of a boarding housekeeper lovable. Robert Lyton appears as Elizabeth's father, and Robert Ayerton as a butler. The picture was directed by James Young.

Incidentally, so far as the present picture is concerned only, Miss Janis has noteworthy pantomimic ability, as when she takes up "straight" or regular photoplays later on she will probably be a valuable convert to the screen, especially if she has the advantage of good stories well directed.

On the program with "A Regular Girl" is what is described as a "Parisian Fashion Frolic." Boudoir, afternoon and evening costumes designed by Boue Soeurs of Paris, are shown on mannequins, and serve to show the mannequins.

CANAPARY, CAPTAIN OF COLUMBIA ELEVEN, IS DISMISSED AND SUCCESSOR ELECTED

COLUMBIA CAPTAIN OUSTED FROM SQUAD

The storm that has been hanging over Columbia football affairs for three weeks broke yesterday afternoon when Frank Canapary, Captain and left half back of the 'Varsity team, was summarily dismissed from the squad. Jack Kennedy, left end and Captain-elect of the 1917 eleven, was elected to succeed the deposed leader.

Th official version of the affair as given in a statement issued last night by L. C. Danielson, Graduate Manager of Athletics, was as follows:

"Frank Canapary, left half back and Captain, is no longer a member of the football team of Columbia University. His connection with the eleven ceased on Saturday, Nov. 8, when, because of insubordination, he was dismissed from the squad by Coach Fred Dawson. At a meeting of the squad at the training table this evening John Kennedy of Manchester, N. H., was chosen Captain for the rest of the season."

The alleged insubordination occurred in the third period of Saturday's game, when, with the ball in Columbia's possession on Stevens's seven-yard line, following a long run by Forsythe, Canapary was taken from the game and Eccles was substituted for him at quarter back. When the Columbia leader reached the players' bench he demanded of Coach Dawson the reason for his removal, and, according to witnesses of the affair, used abusive language toward the coach, besides accusing him of favoritism in sending Eccles into the game. When Canapary refused to obey Dawson's order to keep quiet, he was sent from the field. Later he reappeared in street clothes and sat near the Columbia bench.

The second episode came yesterday afternoon when Canapary reported at the dressing room for practice. When he found his uniform missing from his locker he sought out Dawson and told him that he wanted to continue playing football. The coach then informed him that he had been dismissed for the season and that his successor would be elected after the practice. During the entire workout Canapary sat along the sidelines in his street clothes but refused to comment on his removal.

Fails to Obey Orders.

It became known yesterday that Canapary had also failed to obey explicit orders as to the use of trick formations and forward passes in Saturday's game. When after he had received emphatic directions between the halves, the Columbia leader refused to abandon straight rushing tactics, which Stevens had been smearing with painful consistency. It was not until Eddie Quigley was injected into the fray that the Columbia offense took the form of forward passing, on which large-sized gains were made.

The dissension on the Columbia team began with the election of Canapary to the captaincy over Kenneth Keech, who resigned the leadership in the Fall of 1912 to become an ensign in the navy. Among the students it was felt that the veteran Kennedy had been poorly rewarded for his sacrifice. Canapary's attempts to dictate to quarter back Eddie Quigley, an experienced player with extensive football knowledge, on nearly every play that was to be tried, also created a dissension that became more noticeable in every game. The result was that the Columbia offense was so hampered and checked that in the game last Saturday it collapsed completely.

Coach Dawson refused to comment on his action last night, aside from the official statement from the athletic association. He had nothing to say concerning the future makeup of the backfield, which suffered two other losses yesterday in addition to that of Canapary. Jack Thornton, a half back and the eleven's most dependable punter, will be out of the game for the remainder of the season with a fractured ankle. An X-ray plate that was developed last night at the Knickerbocker Hospital showed a clean oblique fracture of the right ankle. The injured player was removed to his home from the hospital on Saturday.

Other Regulars Injured.

Charlie Shaw, the only other regular punter on the team, will also be missing for a time with an injured shoulder, but it is possible that he will be in condition to play next Saturday against Wesleyan. Another member of the casualty list is Forsythe, left guard, who played through most of Saturday's game with two badly torn tendons in his right leg. Despite the fact that between the halves he fainted in the dressing room, he insisted on staying in the game and in the third quarter made the longest run of the contest, a seventy-yard dash after he had intercepted a Stevens forward pass. When he weakened from sheer exhaustion on the 7-yard line he was nailed from behind by an enemy tackler, and Columbia's chances for a touchdown were spoiled.

With Canapary, Thornton, and Shaw out of business, Dawson was forced yesterday to send out a hurry call to two new backs—Farrell, the basket ball captain, and Wright, formerly at Exeter, and freshman crew captain last Spring. The latter dropped out of the running early this Fall when his nose was broken. During most of yesterday's practice he was at left half back until Farrell finally displaced him. Eccles was at quarterback, Quigley taking a rest after his brief effort on Saturday, Johnstone and Mosscrop completed the backfield. The practice was extremely light, and only three 'Varsity men took part in the signal practice. Sam Weinstein tried his foot at drop kicking and apparently is being groomed to succeed Canapary in this department.

Between injuries and open dissension on the team the outlook on Morningside Heights is far from encouraging. The first unconcealed pessimism of the season has appeared among the students, who seem to distribute the blame for last Saturday's disaster between the coach and the late captain. The opinion of the undergraduates was reflected in an editorial in yesterday morning's issue of The Spectator, the student daily, which advised the athletic authorities to make a thorough investigation of the football situation with a view to placing the blame. The editorial contains a veiled ultimatum to Coach Dawson, who, it says, "has three big games in as many weeks to put the team through," at the end of which time the question of a revision of the coaching system may be seriously considered.

FOUR MOUNTAINEERS HURT.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 10.—Four regulars were missing from West Virginia's practice this afternoon. Archer and Hager were detained at their homes in the southern part of the State by injuries, Ice was on the field in civilian clothes, and Martin also was absent at this home. Ice is so severely injured that he uses a crutch to walk, and both Hager and Archer are fairly certain to be out of the Rutgers game at New Brunswick Saturday.

All the other men who participated in the Centre defeat Saturday were on the field, and the dummy, which has not been used for almost a month, was brought forth and occupied the attention of the squad most all afternoon. The Mountaineers' tackling Saturday was nothing less than miserable, and Coach McGuire knows that it must be remedied before Saford's men are met Saturday.

TIGERS IN SECRET DRILL.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 10.—Secret practice was the rule here this afternoon when Bill Roper led his Tiger football players into the Palmer Memorial Stadium to start rounding them into form for the final battle of the season, that with Yale at New Haven on Saturday.

The first string men were missing from the afternoon's roll call. All hands came through Saturday's grueling game with Harvard without injury, but the general punishment which is inevitable in such a game earned for the regulars a well-deserved rest, and they will not get into harness for serious work until tomorrow afternoon.

Roper and his corps of assistants spent the afternoon instructing the scrubs. The second and third string players, who did not break into the lineup Saturday, went at it with a vim in preparation for the coming battles with the 'Varsity, which are scheduled for the rest of the week. When the first eleven faces the reserves tomorrow it will find them equipped and familiar with the Yale formations. The men devoted this afternoon to perfecting themselves in the Eli plays and they will put them into action against the 'Varsity tomorrow.

Keck, it is expected, will be in his regular place at left tackle tomorrow. This means that Fuffy Bigler, former tackle until he was called on to play end this season, but who was shifted back to his old position on the eve of the Harvard game, will probably view the start of next Saturday's game from the side lines. The brand of football put up on the left wing of the line by Shad Davis against the Crimson entitles hi mto first call at that post. The remainder of the team will probably remain intact in its makeup.

Baker, by his fierce playing, has supplanted Mal Dickinson at left tackle. Whether Whitey Thomas or Mike Callahan will face Captain Tim Callahan of the Blue eleven at centre is problematical but will probably be answered when the 'Varsity lines up for the first scrimmage of the week tomorrow.

The backfield is almost sure to remain intact as it started in the Harvard game. With Strubing, Trimble, Garrity and Wittmer all playing, the Tigers have the combination that best combines a strong offensive punch and clever secondary defense.

HARVARD FACES PROBLEM.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 10.—Few of the 'Varsity football players who played for the Crimson against Princeton on Saturday were in Cambridge today, and those who were did not go out to the field. Arnold Horween walked out because he was lonely and to make light of the muscle bruise no nas on his back. He will not lose any time, and will start preparing for the Yale game with the rest.

Against the Tigers he played centre, and then in the backfield. While he made the bad pass which started things for the Tigers' goal from the field, Arnold Horween was a much more effective lineman than Havemeyer, whose play at centre was disappointing. Still there is a question whether Horween will be found finally as a back or centre.

He is needed in both places, and Saturday at Princeton he was the man who did the most to put pep into the outfit in the second half. If Arnold Horween finally is taken to the backfield again, it will be because it will be impossible for his brother Ralph to get back into shape for the Yale engagement.

Ralph Horween's first shoulder hurt mended quickly, but the injury sustained at Princeton is more serious. He will be able to do little hard work in backfield play before Nov. 22, and if he does get into the game it will not be after working out under any hard playing conditions.

Besides the two Horweens, the only Harvard players who are at all banged up as the result of the Princeton game are Desmond and Sedgwick. The tall tackle has another slight leg bruise, and Desmond hurt his knee again. The big end went home to Haverford after the game, and is not expected to be handicapped when he returns to Cambridge.

The Varsity coaches today took quarterback Tommy Wales from the second team, of which he was captain, and played him on the big squad. He is the second scrub team man promoted to the Varsity this Fall, the other being Lockwood, one of the tackles. Wales has done some good work for Jim Knox, and is not only heady but fast in a broken field.

FRENCH BACK IN LINEUP.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 10.—With French back in the lineup to tear holes in their opponents' line, and with renewed confidence from their victory over Boston College, conquerors of Yale, the Rutgers football warriors were given no rest today in their preparations for a victory over West Virginia here on Saturday.

The return of French has apparently put a new punch into the whole attack. Gardner is also in much better condition than at any time since his injury, and the team is far different from that which faced Syracuse. A victory over the Mountaineers will give Rutgers a real standing that may wipe out the defeat by the Orange.

COLGATE SUBS PLAY WELL.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Practice this afternoon found the entire squad on hand for the beginning of a week's hard drive in preparation for the game with Syracuse Saturday. With the exception of Woodman and Barton, the entire 'Varsity team was in uniform. Excepting that Anderson's old injury bothered him again, slightly, the team suffered no damages in the game with Rochester.

Browne, who showed up exceptionally well at Woodman's position at centre in the Rochester game, kept up his good work in the absence of the latter today, and Cornelius, who is substituting for Barton at left guard, also came in for considerable praise from the coaches. No other shift was made in the 'Varsity lineup for this afternoon's practice and it is not anticipated at this time that any change will be necessary.

WORKING ON ARMY LINE.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 10.—There was no rest for the Army team today. Although the Notre Dame clash was a strenuous game for the Army, the men came through in fair physical condition. Herrick and McQuarrie, however, are both laid up with injuries and will not get into the Army's work until later in the week. Boyan and Blair, tackle and end, respectively, are both sick, and the squad will be without their services this week. Neither played against Notre Dame Saturday.

The Army's defeat was a source of keen disappointment to Army folks, as it was thought that the soldiers would be able to win from the Hoosiers. The play of the Army's forwards was ragged and the tackling at times weird. The front line is in for a hard week's drive under Colonel Graves, the line coach. Special stress will be laid on the defense for the forward pass. The cadets were set on their ears by Notre Dame's overhead attack Saturday. Today's drill featured more scrimmaging and a long session at the blocking and tackling dummies.

HOLIDAY ORDERED FOR ELI REGULARS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 10.—A rigid physical examination of the Yale football players has disclosed that only one, Fred Webb, is out of condition. He complained of pain in his side, and it was learned that two ribs had been broken during the Brown game. He was considerably improved tonight, and it is believed that he may be able to play against Harvard on Nov. 22. His improvement during the last six weeks as a line forcer has been one of the most brilliant pieces of progressive football exhibited this Fall.

Howard Campbell, the former Exeter half back, whose promotion from the third eleven last week followed spectacular rushes in practice, has been selected as Webb's successor at right half back. When Webb retired last Saturday Campbell succeeded him, and crashed through the Brown line repeatedly for 10-yard plunges, the last giving Yale its second touchdown.

The entire 'Varsity squad was turned loose for a walk this afternoon, only Campbell and Captain Tim Callahan of the players who were in the lineup last Saturday appearing at the Bowl.

Parker Allen was present in uniform and will resume scrimmage by Wednesday. The coaches expect to start him at right end next Saturday, although Barclay Robinson played the position brilliantly against Brown. Allen was right end on Aleck Wilson's ill-fated Eli eleven in 1915, and would have played it in 1916 but for repeated injuries. Except that Allen will return to right end, and that Campbell will be assigned as right half back in place of Webb, Yale's lineup against Princeton is likely to duplicate that against Brown.

Princeton money is reaching this city in large blocks, and Yale confidence in the ability of its team to win is so high that no Princeton offers are allowed to go uncovered. The Yale diagnosis of the tricky Brown defense on Saturday was so successful that the undergraduates believe the similar Harvard plays will be solved with equal success.

A decided letdown in the orders for scrimmage practice has been noted. Short scrimmages tomorrow and a long drill on Wednesday will be followed by what the eleven will get three days' solid rest before the Princeton game Saturday.

ALL YALE TICKETS GONE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10.—Yale's last block of tickets to the game with Princeton next Saturday went over the counter at a public sale this morning. There were 700 persons in line when the box office opened at 9 o'clock, the line forming during the night. The sale was very slow, only one wicker gate being opened. It continued till late in the afternoon. About 4,500 tickets were sold. The line extended over four city blocks when it grew in size as the day dawned. It included men, women and children, and many of the line bore indications of being professional speculators.

Deals in tickets took place during the long wait, the prices averaging from $7 to $8. In some cases they were sold to people in the Yale management insisted on fulfilling its promise to hold a public sale, although the telephone orders received during the past two or three days exceeded the supply of tickets which remained.

MAKING OVER GREEN TEAM.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 10.—The work of recasting the personnel of the Dartmouth football team began this afternoon, when Coach Spears took the men of the squad who did not play against Penn and those who played but a short time and put them through a stiff signal work-out. It is learned that Jordan will, in all probability, be able to play in the Brown contest, but outside of this there is little to comfort the Green supporters in the outlook for the final game of the year.

The place of Youngstrom will probably be filled by Weld or Dorney, but this will materially weaken the centre of the line, which was not any too heavy before. The only other lineman who suffered in the game was Myers, and his broken collarbone again put him out of the game. His loss is not felt like that of the big Swede, however, as the Green substitute ends are now almost on the same level with the two original 'Varsity end men.

As the lineup of the Dartmouth backfield will finally be worked out, Jordan will start in his old position at full back, with Eckberg playing right half back and either Grundman or Schulting at left half. While Schulting was used as a full back for some time, his natural position is half back, which he played in good style on the team of last Fall.

BRUSSEL BEATS SERVATIUS.

In the opening game of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players' Class C 18.2 metropolitan championship tournament at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night Sidney Brussel of Brooklyn, defeated Louis Servatius of Manhattan, by a score of 150 to 142. As the score indicates, it was a nip and tuck struggle throughout, and when Servatius ran 13 in his thirty-fifth inning it appeared he might win.

The score by innings:

Brussel—0 8 0 6 0 1 0 8 6 9 4 0 9 0 1 14 6 6 0 1 0 0 0 2 5 2 5 0 0 1 2 4 5 6 1 8. Total—150. High run—86. Average—4.17.

McCOURT IN THE LEAD.

Cleveland Billiardist Still Undefeated in Three-Cushion Tourney.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 10.—Pierre Maupome of Milwaukee lost his first game in the three-cushion billiard championship tournament here tonight to Carence Jackson of Detroit by a score of 50 to 46 in 75 innings. Through Maupome's defeat Charles McCourt of Cleveland remained the only undefeated player.

In the other game tonight R. L. Cannefax of New York won from Hugh Heal of Toledo, 50 to 37 in 88 innings, the longest game of the tournament.

It required eighty-one innings for Byron Gillette of Buffalo to defeat Jess Lean of Cincinnati, 50 to 48, in the first of the afternoon games. Gillette's high run was five.

Charles Otis of Brooklyn won from Tuff Denton of Kansas City, 50 to 45, in sixty innings, in the other game this afternoon.

Wins First Two Games of Week-Long Match at Pocket Billiards.

Ralph Greenleaf displayed some of his best pocket billiard form while winning the first two games of his week-long match with George Clark at Maurice Daly's Academy yesterday afternoon and last night. In the afternoon the youthful cueist won by a score of 100 to 50, but in the evening he was hard pressed to nose out a victory at 100 to 86.

Clark would have won the evening game had he not scratched on his ninety-ninth ball. He pocketed the ivory, but his cue ball also trickled into a hole. The balls were well scattered, and had he been successful there is no the slightest doubt that he would have won the block. After he missed Greenleaf had the game by pocketing four-teen balls without missing. In the first block Greenleaf made a high run of 33, against Clark's 26. In the evening Greenleaf's best was 22, while Clark knocked off 28. They will play again this afternoon and tonight.

MACY DEFEATED IN MATCH.

Lange Scores Victory in Class C Balkline Billiard Tourney.

J. A. Lange and A. R. Macy were opposed in an American Amateur Billiard Association Class C 18.2 metropolitan championship match at Fuller's Academy last night. For long it has been a mooted question as to which of these billiardists was the better player. It was more or less definitely settled when Lange emerged from the cue mêlée the winner by a score of 200 to 135. Lange made high runs of 27, 17, and 16, against Macy's 16, 14, and 7. The game was featured by some good playing by both men, with the winner showing more consistency.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee it was decided that the opening game of the tournament would have to be replayed at some future date. In the first match Dr. Thomas Tuggle and J. A. Lange met. Tuggle was declared the winner when he made 150 points, but the rules call for matches of 200 points each. At the time Lange had scored 106 points.

COSGROVE WINS CUE MATCH.

Matches in the three-cushion, pocket billiard and English billiard tournaments were played at Doyle's Academy last night. Joseph Cosgrove added another victory to his string in the three-cushion event by defeating Fay Scudder by a score of 25 to 23 in 46 innings. Both players had high runs of 3. Some excellent playing was seen in this game. Both players executed many difficult carom shots, and until the last inning never more than 2 points separated them at any time, with the lead alternating.

Edward Kirby, the A. A. B. A. champion, won his pocket billiard match, defeating Walter Herbert by 50 to 16. Kirby was in stroke. That was the answer. Jackson Woods and William Porter met in the handicap English billiard game. Woods, who plays for 200, defeated Porter, who plays for 250, by a score of 200 to 218. Woods made a high break of 52.

ROI CRAIG TAKES ELKRIDGE 'CHASE

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 10.—That the Greentree Stable's Roi Craig is one of the best newly developed jumpers and destined to achieve more in the cross-country sport that he did on the flat was demonstrated here today, when he captured the $3,000 Elkridge steeplechase. He led home a field of eight, gaining the decision from J. H. Lewis's Kwoneshee by a length and a half, while the latter took the place from Captain Ral Parr's Esquimau.

The Elkridge, which is for three-year-olds exclusively, is one of the most important of the jumping events of the Autumn season, since it points to the horses which may be expected to do something next year. The fields are usually larger than the one today, but the steeplechase sport is only beginning to recover from the effects of the war, and there was not the usual number of horses schooled and ready for the race. Those which went to the starting post were about the best that have been produced this season.

Roi Craig has developed into a clever jumper, and has plenty of speed on the flat. He was not hard pressed at any time today. The finish was close for a steeplechase, but the winner had the race well in hand. Powers rode a good race on the winner, keeping him off the early pace and saving him until the last turn of the field, when he moved into a commanding position.

W. T. Wilkinson's speedy fencer, War Paint, set the pace, and, as usual, made it a hot one. But, despite his speed, he was not able to shake off the field, and slowed up from his own efforts. Kwoneshee was a contender all the way, but made a bad landing at the twelfth jump, and was thrown by his stride. He recovered, but, in the meantime, Roi Craig had slipped away, and, when it came to the final drive, Kwoneshee was unable to gain. Esquimau ran a good race, but Houdini was badly handled again. This clever fencer was kept off the pace and permitted to fall far behind his field. When finally sent forward on the Long turn he was too far out of it to get up to the leaders.

A Well-Contested Sprint.

The Annapolis Handicap, for all ages, a six-furlong sprint, brought out some fleet runners and provided one of the best contests on the card. The victory went to Mrs. J. E. Davis's Ophelia, which proved much the best and defeated S. C. Hildreth's Valor by two lengths. Third place went to G. W. Loft's Tippity Witchet, which had scored in his last start but found the weight too much to handle.

Though this was a race for all ages, R. F. Carmen's Carmandale was the only two-year-old to start, and he did not make an impressive showing. He was off slowly and never got up among the contenders. Valor and Midnight Sun were well played, the Beach Stable's flags being neglected because of an impost of 136 pounds. Valor was favored by the weights and ran a good race.

Ophelia dashed to the front with the springing of the barrier and held the position all the way. Valor was taken into a pocket early by Fator, but escaped before he had lost much ground and went to the outside, where he moved up and and made a good effort. For a few strides in the stretch he appeared to be gaining on the leader, but the latter had too much speed for him. Tippity Witchet came with a rush after being badly outrun in the early part of the race.

My Dear Beats the Favorite.

There was a surprise in the fifth race, when G. W. Forman's My Dear, a two-year-old, gained a close decision over J. L. Price's Marmite, which was the favorite in the six-furlong dash. This was a race for two and three year olds, and My Dear was the first of the juveniles to score over older horses during the meeting. Martha Luckett, another juvenile, was third. The latter set the pace all the way to the sixteenth pole, when My Dear came around on the outside and rushed to the front, to win. Marmite, which had been well played, might have won with a better ride, as he was wearing down the winner at the finish.

Frank Regan's Whimsical Whimsy, which has been one of the most inconsistent performers of the season, was in a running mood and won the Severn Purse at a mile in a driving finish from Samuel Ross's Knot. Siesta was third. There was some bumping in the race, Whimsy once knocking Knot off his stride, but no claim of foul was made. Whimsy rushed into the lead at the back stretch and raced closely with Knot all the way to the last turn, when it appeared as though he bumped the contender as the horses were being straightened out in the stretch. Knot came on again, and the two leaders fought it out until Whimsy went over the line to win by a nose. Siesta was close up and was third, only a head back of Knot. It was one of the best and closest finishes of the day.

Samuel Ross found consolation for the defeat of Knot in the victory of Toucanet, a two-year-old filly, which has shown ability at a mile. This was a mile test, and she defeated King's Champion by a length, with Ireland third. Sister Helene, which easily defeated a field of the same class of youngsters the last time out, found the distance too much and was never a contender. Toucanet got the best of the break, rushed to the front, and was the leader all the way.

The first race on the card, for residents of all ages, went to W. T. Wilkinson's War Duty, with Runnyven second and Freemantle third.

August Herrmann of Cincinnati, Chairman of the National Commission, unexpectedly came to this city yesterday, and as President Ban Johnson of the American League is expected in a day or two it was reported that the commission would hold a special meeting here this week and make an effort to smooth over the troubles which have resulted from the holding up of the Yankees' share of the world's series money.

"The baseball trouble here in New York is very unfortunate," said Mr. Herrmann last night. "I would like to see the parties to the regrettable controversy get together and smooth out their troubles. The commission has been placed in a rather unfortunate position, but it could not very well take any other course than hold up the awarding of the third place money until the American League had settled its internal affairs."

While the Carl Mays injunction case is still in the courts, it was rumored yesterday that influential baseball men would advise some kind of a compromise and clear up the baseball situation before the annual meetings here next month. Chairman Herrmann said that while his trip east was not on baseball, he admitted that he would see President Heydler of the National League today and that, as he expects to stay here several days, a meeting of the three members of the commission would probably be called.

Up to the present time there has been no effort to compromise the feud between New York, Chicago, and Boston clubs on one side and President Johnson and the five other clubs on the other. Colonel Ruppert and Colonel Huston, the owners of the Yankees, have taken the attitude that no compromise was possible and, backed by Presidents Charles Comiskey of the Chicago club and Harry Frazee of the Boston Red Sox, they have repeatedly taken the stand that they would not desist in their attack on Johnson until he had been stripped of some of his power.

The affairs of the American League have reached a stage where the league is threat

BULL BEATS MARTIN IN SQUASH TENNIS

RICHARD IN CLOSE MATCH

The squash tennis season got away to an early start yesterday, when fifty of the leading metropolitan experts began play in an invitation tournament conducted by the Yale Club on its home courts. Veterans of the game were prominent in the draw, many of them taking their first shot at competitive play since entering military service two years ago, and seeming little the worse for their extended lay-off.

John W. Appel, Jr., of the Harvard Club, the present national amateur champion, was unfortunately missing from the red-walled enclosure, having severely injured his right wrist in practice a few days ago. The default of Harold Tobey, another member of the "first ten," was an added disappointment, but beyond these two defections the local committee, headed by A. G. Haisdell, had nothing to worry over.

With ten matches actually played in the late afternoon hours and a few more contenders advancing without opposition, practically the entire first round was completed, and one encounter in the second was added when H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club defeated his Yale rival, C. J. MacGuire, in straight games, 15—11, 15—6. Both had come through the first round by the default route, and Mixsell, a former Class A titleholder, proved to be the quicker of the two in striking his stride, winning without great difficulty, largely on MacGuire's errors of judgment.

Bull in Good Form.

Charles M. Bull, Jr., famous in both the outdoor and indoor games of the racquet, made a surprisingly good showing in the first match he has played since getting out of the army. He was drawn against Clyde Martin, a former Yale hockey star, who, although new to tournament play, has picked up a vast amount of squash in the last few months under the coaching of Frank Lafforgue and others.

Bull was inclined to be wild at the start, but ran into a lead of 5 to 1 through Martin's inability to gauge the speed of his shots. Then the newcomer began suddenly to find himself, judging the angles with splendid accuracy, and picking up many a point with soft returns, which hugged the wall and completely baffled the squash club veteran.

Martin collected four tallies in his fifth hand-in, and after both had served twice without scoring, added an astonishing run of nine, which brought him within one point of game. Bull responded with a pair of tallies, and, getting another opportunity through Martin's cipher, ran four more in a desperate effort to catch up. He stopped at eleven, however, and his young rival quickly smashed out the point which gave him the first leg on the match.

Bull went after the second game without a trace of dismay over this unexpected reverse, and by brilliant hitting all around the cage ran up a lead of 10 to 1 in four hands. Both went scoreless once, after which Martin gathered a cluster of three, only to see his opponent put on one more and then run out with five points in a row.

The rubber was never in doubt, although Martin stuck to it manfully and kept the score even up to 4 all. Both worked hard for the break, and made some gets of the acrobatic type, but also threw away an occasional sure kill by slamming the ball straight at the tell-tale.

A run of 3 put Bull once more ahead, and, although he went scoreless for three successive hands in, while Martin crept up within a point of his total, he finally let loose with all his old brilliancy in his ninth chance at the service. Six points fell to his credit before he went out on a close decision, refusing to accept the "let" offered by his opponent. Bull overlooked two of these points when he took up the scoring again, and ran four more before calling it game and match, the final result being recorded at 11—15, 15—4, 15—6 in his favor.

The Day's Closest Match.

J. A. Richard of the Harvard Club won the closest match of the day from his fellow-alumnus, G. B. Rushmore, losing the opener at 10—15 and then pulling out with two games which were set to extra points, both going in his favor at 17—14.

Edwin J. Clapp, the former Yale hurdler and tennis star, also had a long session before he could claim a victory over E. W. Putnam of the Columbia University Club. The first two games both ran beyond the 15 limit, being divided at 18—15 and 14—15. Clapp then pulled himself together, although his endurance was fast fading, and pounded out the rubber in spectacular fashion for a 15—5 decision.

N. F. Torrence of the Crescent Athletic Club required three games to dispose of J. C. Tomlinson, another Yale representative, and Kenneth Bulkley, the Columbia Club champion, had to come from behind to gain his bracket over H. R. Stern of Yale at 9—15, 15—9, 15—7.

The first round will be completed at the Yale Club this afternoon, simultaneously with the handicap tournament of the Princeton Club, which shares the Yale courts. The second round is scheduled for tomorrow, with such experts as R. E. T. Riggs, Anderson Dana, F. S. Keeler, Livingston Platt, Frank Kidde, A. J. Cordier, R. E. Fink, Alan L. Corey, and J. A. Victor listed among those who drew byes on the opening day.

Several Leading Teams Sustain Unexpected Reverses.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The outstanding feature of the principal English and Scottish soccer games decided on Saturday was Tottenham Hotspur's first defeat this season by Bury. Queen's Park Rangers, the leaders in the Southern League, also suffered a surprising reverse on their own ground, Millwall beating them by 2 to 1. In the Scottish League the famous Celtic team had a big fight against Falkirk, just managing to share the points, which enables the Rangers, who beat Partick Thistle, to increase their lead at the top of the table.

LEONARD DEFEATS BARTFIELD EASILY

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, administered an artistic beating to Soldier Bartfield, Brooklyn welterweight, in their eight-round bout last night at the Arena in the Fourth Regiment Armory, Jersey City. The titleholder, fighting in fitful flashes in which he brought into action all his ring craft, slammed and battered Bartfield from corner to corner under a shower of blows which rocked the Brooklynite's head and had his knees wabbling. This furious attack by Leonard only came in spurts, however, and when it appeared that the champion was in a fair way to score decisively Leonard halted in his efforts, and Bartfield recovered.

The contest was not interesting from a competitive standpoint. Leonard outclassed his sluggish opponent by too great a margin to make for a reasonably even match. Throughout the bout Bartfield was made to look ludicrous by the coolness, speed, well-calculated cleverness and brilliant boxing of Leonard. The Brooklynite stuck to his task, however, and never wavered, even in the face of Leonard's heaviest blows. Bartfield was always trying, employing every conceivable method of offense, but his efforts were futile. Leonard coolly stepped inside most of his rival's blows, allowed others to land on his arms and ducked completely away from still others, while Bartfield, in his wildness, almost dove through the ropes.

Misses Chance for Knockout.

Leonard had his best chance to polish off Bartfield in the sixth round. Shortly after the start of this session the champion landed flush on Bartfield's jaw with a right as the Brooklynite was coming in wildly. The force of the blow spun Bartfield partly around, and he wabbled blindly into the ropes, dazed. Leonard was slow in following his advantage, however, and Bartfield, recovering, resumed his wild lunges about the ring, trying to land on Leonard. Near the bell Leonard again shook Bartfield up, this time a left crashing full in Bartfield's face accomplishing the feat, but again Leonard's attack eased up and Bartfield once more recovered.

In the seventh round a right to the jaw knocked out one of Bartfield's teeth, and the soldier looked dismally after the disappearing molar. The eighth and final round produced the greatest boxing of the match. Leonard started in whirlwind fashion, flashing out with snappy left-hand jabs and crossing his right in an effort to reach Bartfield's chin. The champion disregarded his defense in this session, chasing Bartfield all over the ring. The Brooklynite lashed out savagely with both hands in wild swings, and landed several on the side of Leonard's face and on the champion's body. The blows, however, only made Leonard box harder and Bartfield suffered as a consequence.

For the first two rounds Leonard contented himself with outboxing his rival. The champion, with the ease and grace of a dancer, slipped in and around Bartfield, avoiding all of the latter's attempts to land a blow, and tying the Brooklynite in knots on the ropes. In the third round Bartfield landed twice with wild overhand swings which described a half circle in the air before finding a resting place on Leonard's face. The champion returned the blows with interest, peppering Bartfield with however, so that Leonard's blows landed high on the head. Near the bell Bartfield landed with a clean right and left to Leonard's face, but he was forced to retreat under a shower of blows, stiff left-hand jabs, crossing his right and drivin Bartfield before him in a fast attack to the ropes. Bartfield was furious to judge by the expression on his face, but his looks didn't scare Leonard.

In the fourth round Leonard several times rushed Bartfield to the ropes, where he belabored the Brooklynite with rights and lefts. Bartfield's awkward poise kept his jaw well protected. Starting the fifth round Bartfield caught Leonard flush in the eye with an overhand right, driving the champion to the ropes. Leonard quickly bounded back and forced Bartfield into a neutral corner, where the Brooklynite tasted freely of the champion's heavy hitting ability. Bartfield, emerging from the ropes, tried frantically to hit the elusive champion, but only dove about the ring. The Brooklynite didn't hear the bell ending this round, and continued slamming away at Leonard while the latter's hands were down.

In the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds Leonard boxed and slugged alternately, but Bartfield recovered from danger when decisive defeat stared him in the face, and heard the final bell.

Dundee Gets Surprise.

Mel Coogan, a Brooklyn lightweight, outpointed Johnny Dundee, the fiery little Italian, in the eight-round bout which preceded the principal bout. Coogan, showing unexpected form, beat Dundee at the latter's own game. All the tricks of the trade were at the finger tips of Coogan against the wily Scotch-Wop, and at every move he made on the attack Dundee found himself baffled. Coogan ducked with his rival, sparred with him, and when Dundee employed his favorite trick of bouncing off the ropes, the Brooklynite was right on the job swinging with blows that landed some place on Dundee's anatomy. Once, in the third round, Coogan caught Dundee flush on the jaw with a solid right, smash which re-echoed about the ringside. The punch slowed Dundee up for a moment, but soon the Italian was again dancing about trying to land effectively on his tormentor.

Coogan had advantages in height and reach, and these proved too great for Dundee to combat. At long-range work the Brooklynite excelled, for he always beat Dundee to the punch. In the milling at close quarters, too, Coogan showed superior.

Dundee did his best work in the sixth round, when Coogan stopped for a breathing spell. Even in this round, however, Dundee had to work hard to take the laurels by a hair. The seventh was even, but all of the other rounds went to Coogan.

Disorderly Crowd.

Above the floor was a thickly populated balcony installed to accommodate a crowd of 2,000 comfortably. This precious space groaned under the weight of more than 3,000 rabid fans who forgot their discomfort at the prospect of seeing a world's champion. The attendance was estimated at 10,000.

It was impossible to accurately determine the number who were unable to gain admission. They were turned away in thousands. It was estimated that about five thousand unmanageable citizens trod on one another, seeking futilely for admission. The scene defied accurate description. Only the most venturesome of ticket holders dared enter the swirl. They were carried helplessly along on the tide of struggling humanity, jostled, elbowed, walked on, and otherwise manhandled before being swept to the door.

The police arrangements were bad. An inadequate force was assigned to the armory, and was helpless in the situation. The big armory door, the main entrance, was torn from its overhead fastening and swung limply in the face of the surging crowd's assault.

A handful of policemen strove to force the crowd back, but their task was an impossible one. In the confusion several were injured, men and women alike suffering from the wild disorder. These hapless ones were taken to hospitals while the more hardy and determined "stuck."

JIMMY WILDE GETS ROUSING RECEPTION

Is Enthusiastically Welcomed Upon His Arrival Here—Has Four Bouts in Prospect.

Jimmy Wilde, heralded as the greatest little fighting machine developed in England since the prime of Jem Driscoll, arrived in this country yesterday for a tour which he hopes will end with him in possession of the world's bantamweight championship. The sensational little British flyweight has come to America for the purpose of demonstrating his ability before American followers of the ring sport, against American boxers in American rings. While here Wilde will mix pleasure with business, for he plans a tour of the country, particularly the western section, which will commence in about a week and continue until January. His American representative, George Dwyer, stated yesterday, however, that Wilde will arrange for matches under reasonable conditions as frequently as the promoters here submit attractive inducements.

Wilde's first reception in this country was in the nature of an impromptu affair, at least it was not a part of the official program. Several hundred of his countrymen, firemen and sailors from other British ships in port, assembled at Pier 60, North River, and when the Baltic docked their band, which they call the "foo, foo band," made by stretching canvas over kettles and other improvised instruments, noisily greeted him.

The litte Briton is already matched for one of his most important American bouts, which will be held at the opening show of the proposed International Sporting Club on Feb. 3, according to present plans. The selection of an opponent has not yet been definitely made, but Joe Lynch, the west side bantamweight, who gave Wilde a stiff bout in England, is the most likely choice. Under the terms for this match Wilde has agreed not to appear in a boxing match conducted east of Chicago prior to Feb. 3.

Bouts in Prospect.

Negotiations are already well advanced, it was announced by Dwyer, for a series of three matches which will be conducted in the West. The first bout is scheduled for Milwaukee, where Wilde will box ten rounds without a decision either on Thanksgiving Day or Dec. 1. His opponent will be either Benny Vogel or Young Marino, both of Milwaukee. The other two bouts will be held in St. Paul and California, the tentative dates being Dec. 15 and New Year's Day. Whether Wilde will appear first in St. Paul or California, Dwyer was not prepared to say. Neither was the American representative ready to discuss Wilde's probable opponents, evading all inquiries with the response that arrangements for all three matches were yet in the tentative stage.

Wilde was accompanied on the trip from England by his wife, David D. Hughes, who will act in the capacity of manager in the absence of Ted Lewis, Wilde's real manager, and Benny Williams, trainer and rubber, who has been part of the Wilde camp since the little fellow attained the pugilistic heights. The party is stopping at the Hotel Imperial, where they were the guests at a luncheon given yesterday by Dwyer. Wilde, as enthusiastic as a schoolboy, plans a sight-seeing tour of this city, which, while of necessity will be hurried, will nevertheless take him to the various places of interest in the metropolis. Mrs. Wilde, a tiny woman as enthusiastic as her internationally known husband.

The visiting boxer was extended an official welcome to the country by Jack Gleason, on behalf of the proposed International Sporting Club. Gleason, who was associated with Tex Rickard in the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson bout in Nevada in 1910, is a member of the U. S. C. Rules and Weights Committee. Gleason acted as toastmaster at the luncheon where he made a formal address of welcome to the boxer and Mrs. Wilde and their associates, characterizing the little Briton as the "greatest boxer of his weight and inches the world has ever known."

New York's boxing critics were visibly impressed by their first glimpse of the sensational little British flyweight boxer. His outward appearance, his conversation, his carriage, in short his general demeanor bespoke a fine young man. Wilde was not backward, awkward, or embarrassed in the face of the miniature convention in which he was the central figure. Not for a moment did Wilde appear ill at ease. Wilde has a personality which both impresses and attracts his listeners.

Was Fit Boy in Mines.

Wilde is 5 feet 2 inches in height, and can make 100 pounds for his boxing matches. Just now he weighs between 102 and 103 pounds. He is 27 years and 6 months old, and has been fighting since he was 13. He followed the occupation of pit boy in the English coal mines near Wales from the time he was 13 years old until he had passed his twenty-second birthday. He was married before he entered the ring, and is now the father of two bouncing boys, one, David James, 6½ years old, and the other, Verdun, born at the time of the third battle of Verdun, 3½ years old. Both were left in England. Wilde was born in Pontypridd, Wales, about five miles from the place where Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion, first saw the light of day.

BOXING CASE IN COURT.

Justice Leonard A. Giegerich in the Supreme Court yesterday refused to grant the motion made by former State Senator William M. Bennett, in behalf of Major J. Franklin Dunsmith, commanding officer of the First Field Hospital, N. Y. N. G., for an injunction preventing Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright from interfering with any further boxing exhibitions that may be attempted at the armory in Sixty-sixth Street for the benefit of the Red Cross.

When the bouts were called off last Friday it was announced that an effort would be made to hold them tonight. In the event that an injunction is granted today, the original program will be given this evening.

Justice Giegerich denied the motion on the ground that the matter was not placed properly before the Court, but he issued a restraining order until 10:30 o'clock this morning, when the matter will be heard before Justice Francis C. Delehanty in Part 1., Special Term, of the Supreme Court.

O'Dowd Knocks Out O'Hagen.

Benjamin Outpoints Drummie.

Valgar Defeats Michaels.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Benny Valgar of France had the better of Young Michaels of this city throughout their ten-round bout here tonight. The men fought at 133 pounds.

PRINCE TO VISIT SHOW AT GARDEN

Special Program Arranged in Wales's Honor—Entry List Now Reaches 1,506.

On account of the unusually large entry in the saddle horse classes for the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden from Nov. 17 to 21, John S. Townsend of this city, former M. F. H. of the Orange County Hunt, has consented to serve as third judge, in association with the two selected originally, James G. Marshall and John McE. Bowman.

The total entry in all classes is 1,506, or 403 more than last year. The Prince of Wales is to be present on Wednesday, Nov. 19, in the afternoon, and for other sessions it is announced that Sir Thomas Lipton has engaged a box.

The judging at the morning sessions, to accommodate horsemen from distant points who may wish to be present only when the breeds in which they are chiefly interested are to be judged, will be on this schedule:

Tuesday—Hackney and harness ponies.
Thursday—Arabians and polo pony breeding classes.
Friday—Thoroughbred breeding classes.

The harness horses, saddle horses, hunters, and draft horses will be judged in different classes every afternoon and evening. The high jumps will be on Thursday and Friday nights, Nov. 20 and 21. The entire gross receipts from all sources will be a post-war gift to the Salvation Army.

Lawrence Smith, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Horse Show Association, acting on the expected visit of the Prince of Wales and his suite, Nov. 19, has decided to close the doors of the Garden from 2:30 to 4 P. M. on that date. This is to facilitate the observance of the police regulations and also to handle the crowd that will undoubtedly gather. Therefore all persons holding tickets must present them before 2:30 o'clock or they will not be admitted.

A special program has been arranged which will bring into the ring the finest types of saddle horses, hackney harness horses, and hunters, with view to showing the Prince the types of the most popular breed of horses in this country.

The sub-committee in charge of the reception to the Prince will be John R. Townsend, Chairman; Robert A. Fairbairn, President of the National Horse Show Association; Alfred B. Maclay, R. Lawrence Smith, Reginald Vanderbilt and I. J. R. Muurling.

TRIPLE TIE IN BILLIARDS.

Another three-handed tie was brought about in the American Amateur Billiard Association's Class D straight rail billiard tournament at Cranfield's Academy last night, when Nat Lewis was defeated by M. V. Nadherny by a score of 150 to 97. As a result Lewis, Nadherny, and Hiral are tied for first place. The three will meet in matches tonight that are expected to decide the metropolitan championship. Lewis and Hiral will play the first game and the winner will meet Nadherny in the final contest.

Lewis started strongly but Nadherny pulled a regular Garrison finish, starting in the sixteenth inning. He made 10, 10, 7, 8, and 6 in succession and put the game on ice. During the closing innings of the game the breaks were all against Lewis. The winner had high runs of 20, 17, and 15. Lewis made high runs of 32, 15, and 6. Nadherny averaged 4 6-36. Lewis's average was 2 25-36.

Tailors know the futility of trying to build a suit on a foundation of poorly fitting underwear. Their hardest job is righting a few lines that have been thrown out by baggy, bunchy undergarments.

COPELAND IS FIRM FOR MILK PRICE CUT

SEES ATTEMPT AT DELAY

The request of Health Commissioner Copeland, as Chairman of the Governor's Fair Milk Price Committee, that the distributers present some tangible plan for materially reducing the price of milk to the consumer in this city will be taken up by the New York Milk Conference Board, Inc., at a meeting of its executive board tomorrow morning. I. Klein Nathans, secretary of the Milk Conference Board, informed Commissioner Copeland yesterday afternoon that the counsel for the board had been asked to advise whether it would be proper for the Conference Board to undertake to work out the plan, because if any change were made new legislation might be necessary.

The request for this advice was made in writing yesterday morning and a copy was handed to Dr. Copeland. No reply had been received at the time of the hearing before the Fair Milk Price Committee at the City Hall yesterday afternoon.

Edwin Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms Company, informed Dr. Copeland that he was not aware that the distributers had agreed at Friday's hearing to supply such a plan.

Dr. Copeland, displeased that the distributers had not shown a more willing spirit to co-operate with the Fair Price Committee, reiterated what he had said Friday that a reduction in the price of milk to the consumer must be made. "Just because this thing has been investigated many times before and nothing has been done," said Dr. Copeland, "don't get it into your heads that this committee is not going to do anything. If I know the spirit of this committee it is going to come to some definite conclusion."

Mr. Nathans hastened to explain that it is not the desire of the milk distributers to delay the matter, as had been intimated by Dr. Copeland, but that they wanted to have a comprehensive plan and not a "half-baked" affair when they present a plan. He said that it was the purpose of the dealers to assist Dr. Copeland and the committee in every way possible. He also pointed out that it was Friday afternoon when Dr. Copeland first made his request and that with Saturday and Sunday intervening there had been no time to work out a plan. If counsel for the Milk Board does not advise against such action a committee from that body will submit a plan for lowering the price of milk within a week.

It was tentatively agreed that there would be another meeting of the Fair Price Committee on Friday morning. Following the examination of several witnesses yesterday afternoon, an executive session was held by the committee.

W. A. Levy, Secretary of the Levy Dairy Company of Nineteenth Street and Avenue B, a witness, said he was paying the producer about 8 cents a quart for milk. The cost of preparing the milk in the creamery was 1 cent and the freight 1 more cent. He estimated the cost at the city line at about 10 cents a quart. He said that he sold loose Grade B milk to the stores for a trifle more than 11 cents, and the stores sold it, he thought, in bulk for 13 cents. Mr. Levy said that if there were no Dairymen's League he thought the farmer would have no trouble in selling direct.

Nell Strohm of Walden, N. Y., who said he was a farmer but was not now producing any milk for sale, declared the Dairymen's League was run for five men. He was a member, he said, but was not selling any milk because the business was not profitable. With the league in operation the farmers would not be permitted to sell direct to the consumer, he asserted. Mr. Strohm was opposed to paying one cent a hundred pounds as commission to the league, but said that some sort of an organization was necessary. He declared that in June, 1918, the County Company of Orange County sold milk in New York for 7 cents a quart when dealers were charging 14 cents a quart.

Sidewalk Blown Up; Three Hurt.

Two men and a boy were injured late yesterday afternoon when a blast underneath the sidewalk at Sixty-second Street and First Avenue, hurled rocks into the air. Those injured were Cornelius O'Keefe of 407 East Eighty-first Street, Harry O'Connor of 431 East Sixty-first Street, and John Barnett of 1,128 First Avenue. They were treated for injuries to their arms and legs and sent to their homes.

The Fifth Avenue Association's drive for 500 new members in a week was opened by a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Biltmore. Districts were assigned to fifty teams, which will make the canvass. The teams will report progress daily between 4 and 6 P. M. at the association's headquarters, 642 Fifth Avenue. Michael Dreicer has offered prizes to the three teams which make the best records. Announcement was made that forty-six new members had been obtained since Oct. 1. Among those who spoke were Robert Grier Cooke, President, Gage E. Tarbell, John H. Towne, E. N. Hodges, and W. J. Fedrick, Jr., Assistant Secretary.

HARVARD FUND GROWING.

Subscriptions for Endowment Now Total $9,414,712.

The Harvard Endowment Fund Committee announced yesterday that $9,414,712 had been subscribed in the campaign for $15,250,000 to be used in increasing the pay of Harvard professors. Boston has subscribed $3,747,004, and the total in this city is $3,425,713. The total from all other cities is $2,241,005.

Illustrating the growth of Harvard, the committee yesterday pointed out that in 1772 the General Court of Massachusetts passed "An act for raising by lottery the s[illegible] of £3,200 for building another hall for the students of Harvard College to dwell in." The college treasurer's records show on July 1, 1804, the following amounts had been received from the lottery: 1705, $8,096.15; 1790, $1,191.28; 1797, $588.90; 1800, $355.44, and 1801, $1,208.23.

Students Aiding Mount Holyoke.

A student committee to supplement the work of the alumnae and trustee committees for the Mount Holyoke College $3,000,000 endowment fund has been appointed to raise money for the fund from the student body. Janet Davis of Altoona, Penn., is the Chairman. A store has been opened in the college post office, where notions, candy, and canned goods are for sale; a circulating library will be started this week, with a charge of 3 cents a day for the books drawn; vaudeville performances, dances, and a Christmas bazaar have been arranged to help raise the money.

St. Peter—Late arrivals complain that the cost of living is soaring sky-high on the planet Earth.

Mr. Mentwell—High! that's mild, it takes at least $5,000.00 a year to reasonably maintain a home and family.

St. Peter—$5,000.00 a year; why that represents a capital of $100,000.00 safely invested at 5 per cent. Do you realize that?

Mr. Mentwell—Yes, I realized it, like millions of others, but—

St. Peter—Well, Mr. Mentwell, now, that your earning power has stopped, did you leave a sufficient amount in cash to yield anywhere near $5,000.00 to support your family?

Mr. Mentwell—No. For years I intended to arrange for a $25,000.00 estate—which I could have easily done without any difficulty—but I kept putting it off.

Greater love hath no man than that he leaves his family so situated that they will receive regularly at least 25 per cent. of the amount he earned annually. And how simply this may be arranged!

You open an account with us and deposit annually, approximately 3½ per cent. of this amount, and at a definite stated time you will receive, if living, $25,000.00 in Cash. Should you die before then, we will immediately pay the $25,000.00 to your family.

WILSON SEES CAUSE FOR PRIDE IN WAR

BAKER URGES EARLY PEACE

Daniels Also Touches on Treaty—Lansing Wants America "Great in Peace."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—As darkness fell over the National capital tonight, three huge illuminated crosses shown out from the high walls of the War Risk Insurance Bureau Building across Lafayette Square from the White House, and the celebration of Armistice Day, the first anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the world war, began.

The giant symbols were formed by light pouring from selected windows in the otherwise dark facades of the great structure, and one of them looked directly down on the square where official Washington will join tomorrow in celebrating the new anniversary.

Tomorrow, in the presence of Cabinet officers, Generals Pershing and March and many other officials, two redwood trees will be planted in Lafayette Square to commemorate the day. An army firing platoon will take part in the ceremony, and later engage in mimic warfare.

At Force School, which Quentin Roosevelt attended while his father was President, a tree will be planted to the memory of the young aviator killed in France. In every Government department there will be fitting ceremonies. At the American Red Cross Building the Third Red Cross Roll Call will reach its climax.

The President's Message.

To my Fellow-countrymen:

A year ago today our enemies laid down their arms in accordance with an armistice which rendered them impotent to renew hostilities, and gave to the world an assured opportunity to reconstruct its shattered order and to work out in peace a new and juster set of international relations. The soldiers and people of the European Allies had fought and endured for more than four years to uphold the barrier of civilization against the aggressions of armed force. We ourselves had been in the conflict something more than a year and a half.

With splendid forgetfulness of mere personal concerns we remodeled our industries, concentrated our financial resources, increased our agricultural output, and assembled a great army, so that at the last our power was a decisive factor in the victory. We were able to bring the vast resources, material and moral, of a great and free people to the assistance of our associates in Europe, who had suffered and sacrificed without limit in the cause for which we fought.

Out of this victory there arose new possibilities of political freedom and economic concert. The war showed us the strength of great nations acting together for high purposes, and the victory of arms foretells the enduring conquests which can be made in peace, when nations act justly and in furtherance of the common interests of men. To us in America the reflections of Armistice Day will be filled with solemn pride in the heroism of those who died in the country's service, and with gratitude for the victory, both because of the thing from which it has freed us and because of the opportunity it has given America to show her sympathy with peace and justice in the councils of nations.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House,

Pershing Praises the A. E. F.

On this first anniversary of the armistice that brought fighting to an end on the western front, we recall with gratification the services of the army and the country in the war. The great army of young manhood known as the American Expeditionary Forces was hurriedly raised, equipped and trained to meet a grave world crisis. Composed of youth, selected from their physical and their mental fitness, it was developed into as fine a body of men as the world has ever seen. This force played a decisive part in the war and demonstrated that, while we are not a military nation, the American boy has in him those qualities that go to make up a perfect soldier. The achievements of our troops on the battlefields of France have become a part of our history and need not be again recounted here. Their patriotism prompted a spirit of self-sacrifice unequalled; their services have preserved our ideals and our institutions.

Our armies have been demobilized and our citizen-soldiers have returned again to civil pursuits, with assurance of their ability to achieve therein the success they attained as soldiers, thus bringing a new asset to the nation. With broadened visions they return, not only with pride in the high standards of American manhood but with a new conception of its relations to the duties of citizenship.

As we pay tribute to our fighting men, we remember that solidly behind them stood the American people, with all our resources and our determination. This common service has welded together our people. These experiences safeguard the future of America and enable us to look forward confidently to the development of a stronger nationality and a deeper sense of the obligations that rest upon us. The exercise by the American people of practical patriotism during the war was an avowal of our firm adherence to the principles of free government that will continue to have great influence upon the progressive thought throughout the world. These are things which make this day significant.

A year ago the terse message came from General Pershing: "In accordance with the terms of the armistice, hostilities on the front of the American armies were suspended at 11 o'clock this morning." We await now the peace that is to come as the fruition of the work of our far-spread forces. Meanwhile, their number has dwindled, and the forces which appeared beyond the seas in numbers surprising friends and foes alike have gone back again to their civilian tasks.

Some of their number, unhappily, remain in France, or will be borne back to America as symbols of the sacrifice that war entails. While we mourn these dead, we are grateful for their achievement and for that of their living brothers, and in the name of both we may hope for an early accomplishment of the terms of peace that shall finally complete their work upon the battlefields of France.

NEWTON D. BAKER.

Secretary Daniels in his message recalled "the exaltation of joy" which swept the world a year ago when the fighting stopped in France. He said:

It is for us in America to say whether the supreme sacrifice of those who died or the equally heroic service of those who lived shall or shall not have been in vain. The eyes of the world are upon the people of the United States. The easy way is to withdraw from the responsibilities which we voluntarily assumed the day the first American fighting man crossed the sea. That way would make the Treaty of Paris as miserable a document as the Treaty of Vienna after the Napoleonic wars.

Secretary Lansing, in his message, said the celebration of Armistice Day was a "fitting commemoration of the admission of defeat by the malignant power which for over four years had devastated Europe. America must be as great in peace as America was great in war. We must go forward today with the same patriotic zeal, the same firm determination to serve mankind and the same unselfish motives as those which animated this republic in the days of conflict, otherwise the victory achieved a year ago will be incomplete and this anniversary of rejoicing without justification or real meaning."

Germany Protests Keeping Prisoners of War in France

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—The German Government has addressed to the Supreme Council at Paris a note protesting against the retention by France of German war prisoners. The note declares that the holding of the men creates a situation which is not only dangerous to Germany's own existence, but is also a menace outside the German frontiers.

More than 225,000 German prisoners have been returned to Germany from English internment camps. It is expected that the 55,000 prisoners yet remaining in England will be sent home before the end of the month.

AIRMAN LOST IN RIVER, BARGE CAPTAIN SAYS

The sinking of a gray airplane and the drowning of an aviator at sundown yesterday in the Hudson River, off Ninety-third Street, was reported to the police by Captain Napoleon Moorsterboght of the barge Frank Dougherty.

Inquiry last night at Mineola, Belmont Park, Governors Island, and the headquarters of the Third Naval District disclosed that no pilots or machines were missing. It was said, however, that the plane reported by Moorsterboght might have been a civilian one. Last night police launches were grappling in an effort to hook up the airplane.

His report made for the day, Captain Moorsterboght was standing in the stern of his barge taking a "breathing spell." A whir that came up with the wind from the south caught his ear and he saw an airplane—light gray, apparently newly painted, with wings of a whiteness that suggested newness. It bore no insignia that was visible. What impressed him, the Captain later told the police of the West 100th Street Station, was the lowness of the craft.

SOUGHT TO KILL KING, HE TELLS DUBLIN POLICE

Lunatic Had Permits to Buy Revolver and to Import Explosives.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A Scotchman with a police permit to buy a revolver, and one from the military to import explosives, was arrested in Dublin because he said he intended to assassinate the King. He was charged in the Dublin courts today with being a dangerous lunatic.

His name is Henry Ferguson, and he says he comes from Waterford. He described himself as manager of the Ardmore mines, which he said were worth £500,000,000 to Ireland.

On Saturday afternoon, according to the evidence, Ferguson was at College Green, and told the constable who arrested him of his intention to go to Buckingham Palace to shoot the King. He also said he had a taxicab waiting to take him to Kingston, where he intended to shoot the manager of the Royal Marine Hotel and his assistants.

"WETS" IN OHIO APPARENTLY LEAD

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 10.—The courts may be called upon to decide whether Ohio voters upheld or repudiated the action of the State Legislature in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment. With an apparent wet majority of nearly 700 against ratification, Manager James A. White of the Ohio Dry Federation tonight made formal demand on the Secretary of State for a recount.

White, however, has not yet admitted defeat of the proposal, contending that it will take the complete official count to decide the result. Hamilton County's official count, including Cincinnati, has not yet reached the office of the Secretary of State.

A reported gain of 704 votes for the wets in the official count of Hamilton County today would turn the dry majority of 120 votes, based on official returns received at the Secretary of State's office and the unofficial count of Hamilton County into a wet majority of 644. Apparent errors gave the wets a slight majority in other counties.

As required by law, a copy of the demand for a recount, made in the name of C. L. Dickey, a taxpayer, will be filed with the Clerk of Courts of Franklin County (Columbus) tomorrow, White said. Should the election be forced into the courts the final result may not be known for weeks or even months.

ALBANIA IN REVOLUTION.

ROME, Nov. 10.—The Tempo today publishes correspondence from Avlona saying that Albania is in a state of revolution and being torn to pieces by struggles between Mussulmans, Greeks, and Serbians.

The correspondent says that a majority of the people look to Italy as the only country from which there is hope of assistance and protection for their interests. He concludes by saying that unless Italy acts soon it will be too late.

TO HONOR THE DEAD ON ARMISTICE DAY

SERVICES FOR THE FALLEN

The first anniversary of the signing of the armistice will be observed in the churches and armories here today by services in memory of those who died in the war and by reunions of veterans. Thousands of the veterans, with members of the regiments of the New York Guard, will turn out to aid the membership drive of the American Red Cross, which has set aside Armistice Day to make a special effort in memory of the American soldiers who perished in France.

A period of silent prayer for the fallen has been set aside in some of the services here, on the hour of the cessation of hostilities on Nov. 11, 1918. Although the fighting ended at 6 A. M., New York time, this period of silent prayer here will be at 11 o'clock, the hour at which hostilities ended, in Paris time.

Governors of six States, Oregon, Michigan, Massachusetts, Texas, Minnesota, and Maryland, have proclaimed a legal holiday and exercises are to be held under the auspices of the American Legion and the National Council of Women. Twenty-two other States, including New York, are holding special exercises under the auspices of the States Governments, although no legal holiday has been proclaimed.

By proclamation of King George, the tribute to the dead will be paid in all parts of the British Empire at 11 o'clock in the local time where the ceremony is taking place, and other countries have adopted this idea of honoring the fallen exactly at 11 o'clock, regardless of changes of time. The armistice was signed six hours before fighting ceased, or at 5 o'clock, Paris time, and midnight, New York time.

Throughout the British Empire there will be a complete suspension of normal activities for two minutes at 11 o'clock today, in the respective local time where the observance is taking place. This is the message of the King, as given out here yesterday by the Canadian Bureau of Information:

To All My People: Tuesday next, Nov. 11, is the first anniversary of the armistice which stayed the world-wide carnage of the four preceding years and marked the victory of right and freedom. I believe that my people in every part of the empire fervently wish to perpetuate the memory of that great deliverance and of those who laid down their lives to achieve it.

To afford an opportunity for the universal expression of this feeling, it is my desire and hope that at the hour when the armistice was put into force, the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, there may be, for the brief space of two minutes, a complete suspension of all our normal activities. During that time, except in the rare cases where this might be impracticable, all work, all sound, and all locomotion should cease, so that in perfect stillness the thoughts of every one may be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the glorious dead.

No elaborate organisation appears to be necessary. At a given signal, which can easily be arranged to suit the circumstances of each locality, I believe that we shall all gladly interrupt our business and pleasure, whatever it may be, and unite in this simple service of silence and remembrance.

GEORGE R. I.

A memorial mass for the officers and men of the 107th Infantry and for former members of the 7th Regiment, N. G., N. Y., who lost their lives in the war, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in the Church of St. Paul the Apostle, at Sixtieth Street and Columbus Avenue. The mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Peter E. Hoey, who was chaplain of the regiment during its service with the 27th Division.

A special mass in memory of the fallen will be held in St. Patrick's Cathedral at 12:15, with sermon and prayers of Thanksgiving. The chimes will play from 10 to 12:10, and the entire service will be finished at 12:50.

The Rev. Herbert Shipman, who was senior chaplain of the First Army, will be the speaker at the noon services in the Calvary Episcopal Church, at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street. The church will have an Armistice Day service in the evening at 7:15 o'clock, with communion services in the morning at 7:15 and 11:30. The Rev. G. A. Carstenson will be the speaker at the noon services in St. Paul's Chapel.

The Zionist Organization of America announced that an Armistice Day program would be given this evening in Thomashefsky's National Theatre, at Houston Street and Second Avenue. Judge Otto A. Rosalsky will be the speaker.

Regimental organizations and posts of the American Legion will have meetings tonight in armories and in theatres. The veterans of the 107th Regiment will meet in the 7th Regiment Armory. An Armistice Day dinner will be given in the Hotel Commodore tonight, with Benedict Crowell, Assistant Secretary of War, and Major Gen. William T. Menoher as the speakers.

Virtually every post of the American Legion in this city has arranged a meeting for tonight. At the meeting of the Harlem Post in the Great Hall of City College the speakers will be Senator James W. Wadsworth, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, and Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon. The Greenwich Village Post will meet in Public School 41, at 36 Greenwich Avenue, after a parade up Fifth Avenue from the Washington Arch to Seventeenth Street, and thence through the village. Henry H. Curran will be the speaker.

FIUME AGREEMENT NEAR, ROME NEWSPAPER SAYS

Understanding with D'Annunzio Also Is Said to Have Been Reached by Gen. Badoglio.

ROME, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—A definite agreement on the Fiume question apparently is in sight, according to the Popolo Romano today. The newspaper says that, with the help of the Allies, Foreign Minister Tittoni seems about to achieve an understanding regarding the problem.

It also appears, the newspaper adds, that General Badoglio, the Chief of Staff, has succeeded in arriving at an understanding with Gabriele d'Annunzio by which the poet will not oppose the solution of the Adriatic problem suggested by the Government.

HARRELD'S LEAD IS CUT.

Oklahoma Republican Is Only 484 Ahead.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 10.—The majority by which J. W. Harreld, Republican nominee, was seemingly elected to Congress in the Fifth District in Saturday's election was cut today from 1,300 to 484 by corrected unofficial returns from 236 out of the district's 265 precincts.

Weaver, who was pledged to support the League of Nations and Peace Treaty if elected, refused to make any statement.

Bad roads, due to heavy rains, are preventing precinct officials in the 31 missing precincts from getting ballot boxes to County Election Boards.

Ask Supreme Court to Speed Dry Law Appeal; Government Fears Confusing Decisions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Steps to secure an early opinion as to the validity of the Wartime Prohibition act were taken today by the Government, which asked the Supreme Court to hear arguments on Nov. 20, in its appeal from Federal Court decrees in Kentucky holding the act unconstitutional.

In asking the court to advance the case Solicitor General King said that unless an early decision of this case could be reached there was danger of variant decisions "creating great confusion in administering the law."

"The questions involved," he added, "are such that the lapse of time and the taking effect of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States may render a decision herein of no avail, and may deny to the plaintiff in the court below the substantial right to be heard."

NEW PLANS PREPARING

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 10.—The City Council tonight went on record, 13 to 2, as opposed to repealing the ordnance ousting from the streets the lines of the Toledo Railways and Light Company.

Leaders of organized labor, bankers, merchants, and representatives of civic organizations, who crowded the Council chamber, jeered a Councilman who suggested a repeal of the ouster ordinance ratified by the voters on Tuesday, and cheered other Councilmen who urged "no compromise."

Mayor Schreiber, in an address, said that the city law director was at work on two new ordinances. Henry L. Doherty, President of the Toledo Railways and Light Company, knew of these, he added.

One of the two ordinances, the Mayor said, was for municipal ownership, although the voters on two previous occasions have voted down such proposals. The other proposal is a modification of the Taylor plan, now in operation in Cleveland. This plan provides for service at cost plus a fair return on the investment. The Mayor said it was his purpose, with the approval of the Council, to submit to the voters both these proposals.

The traction company late this afternoon began to circulate petitions for a referendum on a proposed franchise, offered the city three months ago when the ouster ordinance was adopted by the Council. This includes some details of the Taylor plan, but is "too much company" to suit city officials and others conversant with it. The company seeks 8,000 names for this referendum, and tonight it was stated that after several hours of work the workers were unable to obtain 500 signatures.

Reports show that nearly 90 per cent. of the working men reached their places of employment on time today. There was a large increase in the number of buses and taxicabs in operation. Many carried passengers gratis. In several instances where bus drivers were found overcharging passengers they were assaulted.

A hard rain with a high wind made it unpleasant out of doors today. But retail merchants said that trade was fairly good, despite the absence of cars.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—It was reported today that the city was negotiating with other trolley concerns to supply Toledo with service now that the Doherty Company has withdrawn all its cars.

Mayor Cornell Schreiber, who introduced the ouster ordinance in Council last June, would not confirm nor deny the report.

Frank R. Coates, President of the Toledo Railways and Light Company, denied today a statement credited to Henry L. Doherty of New York, head of the company that controls the Toledo traction concern, in which the latter was said to have insisted that "Toledo would have to beg hard to get her cars back."

Mr. Coates declared that in his opinion it was the intention of the company to keep the cars in storage in Michigan until satisfactory settlement regarding a franchise was reached.

Every available motor vehicle in the city was pressed into service today to carry thousands of persons to work. All workers of the city were dependent on motor transportation.

The car riders are paying all the way from 10 cents to 50 cents, getting to work this morning in private motor cars. Under the rate of carfare they were riding for 6 cents, with a 2-cent charge for transfers.

FEAR ROMNEY PICTURE WILL COME TO AMERICA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Much anxiety has been expressed in English art circles lest the Duveens' purchase of Romney's portrait of the Beckford children for 52,000 guineas will find a home in America. The Duveens announce that the picture will be exhibited here and in America, but that they have no buyer in view.

It is expected that with the present trend of social forces many other well-known pictures will come into the market, but American competition for the best pictures is meeting with keen opposition from persons in this and other countries who acquired or largely increased their fortunes during the war.

"They are preventing the acquisition of pictures by Americans," said a famous art dealer today, "to the extent of 30 per cent., but when it comes to paying big money American purchasers easily win."

American purchasers are also meeting with active competition from such English collectors as Lord Cowdray, Lord Leverhulme, and Lord Lascelles.

Suggestions were recently revived that measures should be taken to prevent an exodus of British treasures to other countries, either by the Italian method of placing an embargo on their exportation or by imposing a heavy ad valorem export duty. To these suggestions Robert C. Witt, Vice Chairman of the National Art Collection Fund, replied that careful inquiry did not encourage his society to think that a solution could be found in either plan.

A juster method for preventing an exodus across the Atlantic, he said, would be to secure by purchase from their owners such masterpieces as are imperatively needed to complete British galleries and museums, and with this object in view he appealed—in the absence of Treasury grants, which were entirely cut off during the war—to all art lovers for financial support to the National Art Collection Fund.

$50,000 FILM THEFT LEADS TO ARRESTS

BRONX FUR STORE ROBBED

After arresting three men yesterday on a charge of stealing moving picture films valued at $50,000 from an exchange in Seventh Avenue, near Times Square, the police said that the total thefts of films reported stolen from the theatrical district in the last six months was more than $500,000.

Seider notified the police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station and Detective Sergeant George Ferguson and Detective Thomas Brady were assigned to the case. They found the truck abandoned at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-eight Street and, after following tangled clues all day, they came across several hundred reels of films stored in the basement of a garage in West Thirty-eighth Street. Seider declared that the films were those he had taken to deliver, and asked the police to call in agents of film companies to make positive identification.

Two men who were in the garage, apparently guarding the films, were arrested on a charge of grand larceny. They described themselves as William Brennan of 633 West Forty-seventh Street, and William J. Smith of 500 West Forty-ninth Street. They told the police they were watchmen and they knew nothing about the alleged theft. Nathan Greenfeld, a chauffeur, of 23 East 117th Street, was arrested later on the same charge.

By avoiding burglar alarms carefully thieves broke into the fur store of Louis Brenner & Co. at 1,056 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, last Monday and stole $17,000 worth of merchandise. The police of the Simpson Street Station supplied the report on the theft and it became known only yesterday. The store adjoins the house of County Judge Louis D. Gibbs, who is noted for severe sentences in burglary cases.

The neighborhood where Police Commissioner Enright lives was visited on Sunday morning by burglars, who stole money and jewelry from the home of Benjamin Childs, at 1,068 Park Place, Brooklyn. Childs is a clerk in the Kings County Court.

Another cigar store holdup in Harlem was reported yesterday. Two men entered the United Cigar Store at 2,432 Eighth Avenue on Sunday night and, after binding the clerk, took about $100 from the cash register.

RED TAPE AND TRAGEDY IN A PARIS HOSPITAL

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Your Frenchman loves his Paris streets brilliantly illuminated. Because he does few results of the coal shortage cause more complaints than the lack of light along the boulevards during the hours of nocturnal play. That wounds the Frenchman's sensibility and leads him to demand, a year after the cessation of hostilities, "Who won the war?"

But what a different chord of emotions is struck by the appeal made by a French surgeon in yesterday's Temps, which is taken up today by all the French press. This distinguished man of healing, Dr. A. La Pointe of the Hospital St. Antoine, was in the midst of an operation when the lights went off without notice and without rhyme or reason, as is the custom in French officialdom, where so many things are done at the personal whim of minor officials. Let the surgeon tell his story:

"On Thursday afternoon a young woman, almost dying, was brought into the operating room of the hospital. She had a grave hemorrhage in the abdomen. An operation which was urgent was begun at once by the light of day. But night came on. The electric light was switched on, and then, while the operation was in progress and without any notice, the Western District officials brutally cut off the current.

"See the sombre drama—a woman, pale and panting, under the knife and everything suddenly plunged in darkness while her life blood flowed. Quick, the telephone! 'If you please, a little light. Here is a surgeon trying to save the life of a woman under operation. Give only fifteen minutes of light to save her life.' But the station was without pity. A lack of coal, the eight-hour day! 'We cannot give you any light until 7 o'clock. An operation, a surgeon, what has that to do with us?'

"The operation was resumed by the pale light of several candles, and as he worked the surgeon pondered. Until midnight this evening the cinemas, tango parlors, cafés, and other places will be warmed and lighted brilliantly. And my poor little patient may die. But what matters a human life? Is it not a war of the classes? And so long as the barrooms, tango parlors, and cinemas can go on without restrictions Paris will keep her smile and put her little tribulations into song."

Ex-Service Men Angry Over Election

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Disappointed at the outcome of the election held last Tuesday, in which five out of six soldier candidates were defeated, ex-service men to the number of 350 tonight petitioned the Board of Village Trustees of Port Chester to remove their names from the honor roll here in Liberty Square. As there was no quorum present the matter was laid over until Wednesday night.

REDS ON ALL FRONTS DRIVING FORWARD

KIEV IS AGAIN MENACED

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Authoritative advices on the Russian military situation show that the anti-Bolshevist forces have been compelled nearly everywhere to assume the defensive owing to the increase in the Bolshevist forces.

On the eastern sector the severest fighting continues in the direction of Tobolsk, Yalutorovsk, and Kurgan, where the Reds have reached the Ishim River.

On the southern front the Bolsheviki are counterattacking along the whole line between the Volga and Dnieper and are generally advancing except southwest of Orel, where General Denikin is attacking.

OMSK, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—The advance of the Bolsheviki has been slowed somewhat astride the Tiumen Railway, the Siberian First Army holding at present the Ezta River from Mullahinfoe, on the north, to the front of Jelishmanova-Konakova-Dubeninco-Petropaviovsk.

VLADIVOSTOK, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—Preparations for the transfer of the Government of Admiral Koichak from Omsk to Irkutsk are being rushed and many of the Government establishments are already on their way to the latter city, according to an official dispatch from Omsk to the Japanese Press Bureau here.

FRENCH AGAINST A PARLEY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—If the Poles attempt anew to bring about accord by negotiations among the warring factions in Russia, as Lloyd George said in his speech Saturday they might, they will not act through the Peace Conference.

The American delegation has taken the stand that the Russian problem is not one of the problems for the Peace Conference and its members say that they will stand firm.

When it was recalled to them that the Prinkipo invitation was sent by the Peace Conference, it was pointed out that that action was taken by the chiefs of government in Paris, which was a different thing from action by the subordinates, now forming the Supreme Council. If the American representatives hold out against the conference taking a hand in Russian affairs, then it cannot do so.

M. Pichon, French Foreign Minister, has accompanied President Poincaré to London and it is said in French circles that he has gone there to discuss with Lloyd George first as to putting the treaty into effect, second as to what to do if the American Senate finally adopts reservations, and third as to what Lloyd George meant by his speech Saturday with reference to Russia.

The criticism which the British Premier's speech has aroused in Paris is little short of remarkable. The French Government stiffly opposed treating with the Bolsheviki in making their path any easier. France sees great danger of Prussian Imperialism in Russia if the Allies cease giving aid to the anti-Soviet factions.

French statesmen think that Bolshevism will fall in Russia sooner or later and believe that those who aid in its downfall will have the greatest power in rebuilding Russia. If the Allies do not do this, France believes that the Germans will. Therefore, France wants the Allies to continue to aid those forces that are fighting the Soviets.

The French statesmen do not hide their fears that the Peace Conference is going to adjourn, leaving the Russian problem, which they think the world's biggest problem, still unsolved. If the Peace Conference does not tackle the problem and the Committee of Ambassadors, which will succeed it, does not the question naturally arises as to who will deal with it.

While some European statesmen would like to turn the League of Nations into an anti-Bolshevist machine, there are many difficulties which stand in the way, not counting the despair of many European statesmen that the League will not amount to anything if the Lodge reservations are ratified by the American Senate and adopted by the Allies. It would appear that the Russian problem would be dealt with by the Foreign Offices of the different nations.

One might look for accord between France, England, and Italy in fighting this menace. There is considerable doubt as to what role America would take in this matter.

The French still support Marshal Foch's plan to turn the Poles loose against the Bolsheviki on an enlarged scale, with the Allies supporting the Polish Army financially and morally. The Poles' offensive against the Soviets was curtailed largely because of opposition of the American Peace Delegation, which thought Poland should turn its attention to affairs of peace if it were to establish a strong national organization.

The French statesmen emphasize the difference between Lloyd George's statements on Russia and the statements by Winston Churchill a few days before. They are asking which really represents the purpose of the British Government.

Nov. 9.—The French reception of Lloyd George's speech at the Lord Mayor's banquet ranges from lukewarm to hostile. Many columns are devoted in the newspapers to Lloyd George's statements, but to get a good view of officialdom one may turn to the Temps, which says:

"The Russian Bolsheviki have just sent out their latest proposals for peace. This time they have chosen as messenger Colonel Malone. These conditions are about the same as those Bullitt brought back from Moscow last March. The Bullitt conditions were good only until April 10. It appears that the Malone conditions are good only until Nov. 16. Always the Bolsheviki hold out a menace. If the Allies will not treat with them they will treat with Germany. But as they have ceased to submit to Germany and to lend their influence to Germany their menace is less now than it might appear.

"To be sure, Lloyd George does not propose negotiations with them. That would make Bullitt right, and he has denounced Bullitt's statement as a tissue of lies, and it would be to belie that which makes his Cabinet strong.

"In reality Lloyd George proposed to recommence the experiment of Prinkipo. 'I hope,' he said, 'that the time is not far off when the Allies will be able to renew this attempt with better chances of success.' He says a little later: 'I hope that when the Winter comes the Russian people will reflect anew on the situation and that the great powers of the world will have an opportunity to bring about peace and concord in this great country.' In other words, suffering caused by cold and by hunger will force the Russians to get together.

ACCEPTS EINSTEIN GRAVITATIONTHEORY

SOME SCIENTISTS CAUTIOUS

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 10.—The two expeditions which went out from the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, England, in connection with the total solar eclipse of May 29, accomplished one of the greatest scientific achievements of modern times, Clinton H. Currier, Professor of Astronomy at Brown University, declared tonight in commenting on the results recently announced at the joint meeting of the Royal Society and the Royal Astronomical Society in London.

As the result of the observations made by these scientists in Sobral, Brasil, and on the island of Principe, in the Gulf of Guinea, Professor Currier said, the Einstein relatively theory had apparently been confirmed.

Professor Currier pointed out that, according to Newton's theory, gravitation would not affect the direction of a ray of light. With the development of the electro-magnetic theory of light, however, it was asserted that gravitation would bend a ray of light as if it were a material projective moving at the same rate.

"It was not until 1915," he said, "that the four-dimensional theory of the universe, with time as a fourth dimension, was definitely conceived. This was contained in Einstein's famous relativity theory.

"According to Einstein, a ray of light is deflected by gravitation, the amount of deflection being twice that predicated by the electro-magnetic theory. The only way yet devised to test these theories is by means of stars near the sun at the time of a total eclipse of the sun. At such a time, a ray of light from a distant star passing close to the sun would be bent, according to these theories, causing the star to appear displaced from the position it normally occupied."

This apparent displacement, according to recent dispatches from London, was observed by the scientists last May.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Nov. 10.—Miss Caroline Ellen Furness, Ph. D., Professor of Astronomy and Director of the Observatory at Vassar, says:

"Einstein's theory is one of the most difficult parts of mathematical physics. As yet I have not followed strictly its application to astronomy. Its results are remarkable and are such that they must be accepted. Since it was made from a study of photographs taken May 29, 1919, it ought to be easily verified by study of photographs of previous eclipses. At the time of every eclipse photographs are taken to see if there are any planets between Mercury and the sun. It ought to be possible to use these for this purpose.

"This phenomenon means that light does not travel in straight lines; that a ray from a star passing near another body of matter is slightly deflected from its original course.

"Ordinarily the positions of the stars are not affected by their nearness to the sun. They cannot be seen when near the sun except at an eclipse. The course of a star may be deflected many times, according to the new theory, and the true positions of stars will be confused for a while." Professor Edna Carter of the Department of Physics says:

"This is the first positive proof for Einstein's theory of gravitation. It is of great importance. Einstein claimed that light was constant only when in uniform gravitation, and that when it came in the field of the sun it was deflected somewhat. His theory affects the theory of gravitation with relation to generalized relativity. The proof for Einstein's new theory seems indisputable."

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 10.—John M. Poor, Professor of Astronomy at Dartmouth College, said concerning the Einstein theory:

"If, as reported in the daily papers, Einstein's theory has received confirmation as a result of observations on photographs made at the time of the recent eclipse, it represents another approximation to the ultimate truth which the scientist is continually seeking. The Newtonian mechanics will need modification, which will be of such a character as for the present, at least, will concern a student in mathematics and pure science. But what the ultimate effect will be on practical life cannot now be foretold."

Astronomers and physicists and other scientific men in New York are much interested in the news from London that British observations of the total solar eclipse of May 29 bore out the theories of Dr. Einstein, Professor of Physics in the University of Prague, which, in effect, would bring about a revision of Newton's law of gravitation. They are reluctant to express an opinion on the deductions from the observations until they have full information. However, they regard the discovery as important; but one prominent physicist said that he would not regard it as being of such importance as to revolutionize the accepted fundamentals of physics.

Another said that he did not doubt the correctness of the observations, but that he would not be willing to accept the conclusions until it had been more definitely shown that the bending of light from stars passing close to the sun on its way to the earth was not due to the refraction of light gases surrounding the sun. He said that the theory was probably all right, but pointed out that it was one very hard of proof.

STOKES SUIT OPENS.

DENVER, Nov. 10.—The legal battle over the possession of the two young children of W. E. D. Stokes, New York capitalist, was begun in the Juvenile Court here today.

Attorneys representing the father filed a motion asking that the proceedings instituted by the mother, Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes of this city, in Judge Ben Lindsey's court be set aside. The motion was accompanied by a demurrer which attacked Judge Lindsey's jurisdiction in the case. Mrs. Stokes appealed to the Juvenile Court here to take the children under its protection.

The line of attack opened today by counsel for the father indicated that the contest will resolve itself into a battle between the States of Colorado and New York for jurisdiction over the children.

POLICY TO RUSSIA UP TO COMMONS

Will Be No Parley with Reds Unless It Approves, Bonar Law Says.

LLOYD GEORGE CRITICISED

PAPERS GENERALLY HOSTILE

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Great Britain has no intention of opening peace negotiations with Lenin and Trotsky until the House of Commons has had an opportunity to discuss the subject, Mr. Bonar Law, the Government leader, assured the House of Commons today.

Mr. Bonar Law made this statement in answering questions with reference to Premier Lloyd George's speech at the Guildhall on Saturday, in which he was supposed to have hinted at an attempt to negotiate peace with the Bolsheviki in Russia.

He said the Premier had simply expressed the hope that there would be some method found of achieving peace with Russia.

Many Liberals for Agreement With Reds

LONDON, Nov. 10.—While Lloyd George made the Russian tangle chief point in his Guildhall speech on Saturday, the general opinion in political circles is that he showed no clear way out of it. His proposal for a new Prinkipo Conference has, of course, roused hot indignation in anti-Bolshevist quarters. On the other hand, there is a strong section of British Liberal opinion which favors some arrangement with the Bolshevist Government, and therefore takes exception to certain passages in which the Premier appeared to approve War Minister Churchill's policy toward Russia, which is the fullest support of Kolchak and Denikin. Indeed, British Liberals generally think that in this entire business Britain has been pulling the chestnuts out of the fire for France, and their reluctance to invest further in Russian adventures has been strengthened particularly by documents recently published by Manchester Guardian tending to show that the repressive measures taken by Admiral Kolchak and General Denikin have been excessive.

The London Times declares:

"The Prime Minister virtually announced that he proposes once again to throw over Kolchak, Denikin and Yudenitch and all the anti-Bolshevist forces in Russia and to come to terms with Lenin."

In a strongly worded editorial the Times condemns "the revival of the Prinkipo policy" foreshad

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

One-third Production Loss.

In a letter to a customer explaining late deliveries, one of the leading manufacturers of clothing states that there has been a loss of 33⅓ per cent. per-capita production since 1914. This, it is explained, takes in the reduction of hours from fifty-two to forty-four a week. But the point is brought out that the reduction of working hours is only half the reason for the decrease in production. A more important factor seems to be the loss of output due to other causes.

Clothing Call in Strike Region.

For some strange reason, word comes from clothing retailers in the steel strike region that business took a turn for the better when the trouble started and has been good ever since. These are not merely reports, but are backed up with orders for more merchandise. One explanation offered yesterday by a clothier was that the people affected by the strike have more time to "dress up" now than when they were working, and this has occasioned their purchases.

High Prices Upstairs.

To do their share of business, even the upstairs clothing stores have found it necessary to buy high-priced merchandise. The instance was related yesterday of one such retailer who will start his line next Spring at $50. This is the lowest price in the range, which will go to $75. The bulk of his purchases, it was interesting to note, was not at the $50 level, but took in the more expensive garments. As such stores made economy and low prices their principal appeal, manufacturers consider the increased price ranges in these stores as significant.

A garment buyer, who was advised by a manufacturer not to exceed $90 as a retail price in making his purchases, stated that it was easier to get $100 than $90. For the same reason, he said, $50 is a better price at the present time than $40. The explanation he offered was that Liberty bonds are not only used for the stock speculation that has been hitting a record volume, but that the Government securities were also being turned into merchandise. Thus, any price that is the same as a bond price is a good one to set.

Figures Woolens 20 Per Cent. Up.

Calculating his prices on the cost of yarns out of which blanket samples will be made for the Fall (1920) season, a woolen manufacturer believes prices for the heavyweight period will be about 20 per cent. higher than they are for the present Spring season. The yarns, he said, cost him 8 per cent. more than they did when he was making up blankets for Spring goods. This advance carried on to the finished fabrics means, he explained, that, weight for weight, Fall goods should show the 20 per cent. increase mentioned.

Fur Withdrawals Were Good.

Yesterday was "prompt day" with the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, and it found from 65 to 70 per cent. of the $7,000,000 worth of furs disposed of at the annual Fall sale withdrawn from the warehouse at 48 Great Jones Street. The nature of the withdrawals showed that practically all varieties of pelts are in fashion's favor at the present time, this being as true of the higher-priced ones. Among the skins that have been most freely taken from the warehouse are Russian sable, marten, lynx, gray, blue, and white foxes, many of the so-called staple furs as of fisher, beaver, fitch, rabbit, muskrat, raccoon, wolverine, and American and Australian opossum. The next sales of the corporation will begin on Monday, Feb. 9.

Burlaps Open Week Quietly.

While there was more or less evidence of a buying demand in the burlaps trade here yesterday, actual business was limited by the amount of goods available. The returned longshoremen are making some impression on the burlaps carroes piled up in the local port by the strike, but it was said yesterday that it would be some time before the full effect of the trouble's end on the market would be seen. Quotations here yesterday were largely nominal, but for standard 40-inch goods, afloat, they were 15¾ cents for 8 ounce and 17¾ cents for 10½ ounce. The respective prices for the same goods for spot shipment were 13.85 @14 cents and 15 cents. Nothing of particular importance was reported from Calcutta or Dundee during the day.

Reason for High Silk Prices.

One of the potent reasons for the high prices that are now being asked for manufactured silks, it was said here yesterday, as well as for the still higher ones that may soon have to be quoted, is the extent to which the American industry is dependent on Japan for raw material. Recent figures received here, it was pointed out, showed that during the first four months of the current raw silk season, or up to Nov. 1, exports from Japan totaled 113,600 bales, against 90,933 bales in the same period of 1918. Of this amount all but 2,600 bales were shipped to the United States. With Japanese raw silks now at record levels, and tending higher, not much more has to be said.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

The downs and ups of cotton yesterday did not stop traders in the local gray goods market from doing a pretty fair volume of business in one way or another. Both first and second hands were sellers, the latter chiefly so when the goods were for immediate or nearby shipment. The printcloths sales made during the day included spot Eastern 38½-inch 64-60s at 19½ cents and January-February shipments of the same goods at a quarter of a cent less. Eastern makes of 38½-inch 60-48s brought 16½ cents for November delivery, while for the same delivery buyers paid 23 cents for 39-inch 68-72s. The sheetings sales embraced January-February 5-yard goods at 17¾ cents and January-March 48-square 4-yard sheetings at 20½ cents. Thirty-five cents was the figure paid for standard 40-inch combed lawns. In the sales of the so-called clothing styles were further lots of 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens at 36 cents.

Will Not Hurt American Sales.

No serious injury to the American fur sales is looked for here as a result of the forming of a corporation of prominent Canadian fur men in Montreal with the idea of holding raw fur auctions on a large scale in that city. The first of these sales, according to information that has reached here, is to be held some time in January. By men fully conversant with the fur situation in this country and Canada it was asserted yesterday that the chief factor militating against the success, in a large way, of the sales in project is the 7½ per cent. duty levied on raw skins brought into the Dominion. This would have to be paid on all consignments of American furs for disposal in Montreal, as well as on pelts sent there from foreign countries. Another thing favoring the American sales, particularly those held in this city, is the premium at which New York furs are held. This means, it was pointed out, that furs shipped to Montreal would have to sell quite a little higher there than in this city in order for the shipper to get an even break.

Stocks Fall Again Under Bank Credit and Strike Outlook —Call Money Up.

Additional facts in regard to the current underlying position of the credit structure united with a disturbing angle of the coal strike yesterday to cause a decided disturbance of the speculative situation in stocks. Last week's decline of the Federal Reserve Bank's ratio of cash to note circulation and deposit liabilities to 46¼ per cent., the lowest figure since the bank went into operation, told its own tale of large borrowings of member banks, and suggested a reason why the Reserve Bank officials increased the discount rates. Further than that, the detailed report of the Reserve system had disclosed in the Sunday newspapers a decline from 47⅞ per cent. to 46⅞ per cent. in the combined reserve ratio. The local Reserve Bank's report came in for closer study, probably, than the composite totals of the twelve institutions, for the week's rediscounts here had reached a surprising total considering those based on Government paper, and it was no surprise to anybody that the renewal rate for call loans was again 12 per cent., from which level the quotation was bid upward to 18 per cent. before the Stock Exchange closed for the session.

Industrial stocks opened lower than at Saturday's close, later recovered somewhat, but were pressed down sharply in the afternoon. The selling was extremely heavy at times. In the final lineup of prices losses running from three to more than six points were general among shares recently the favorites for the rise, while the railroad group lost distances extending from large fractions to more than a point. Liberty bonds were under pressure again, especially the Third and Fourth 4¼s. The day marked the end of the period allowed for final payments on the Victory Loan, but it was considered improbable in banking quarters that this had any especial weight to the demands upon the money market, inasmuch as the bulk of the funds due the Government had been turned in previously.

Either the tight market for bank credit or the coal strike outlook would have been enough to depress speculative sentiment. Coming together, the effect on stocks was to precipitate considerable selling by the more conservative traders who are not easily moved to relinquish their position. In fact, the temporary recovery in the second hour seemed to disclose a stubborn opposition by bullish interests who have not been greatly concerned over strike developments. Quite likely the recurrence of a 12 per cent. renewal rate for demand loans was the impelling force behind a lot of liquidation that had been held off until sufficient evidence was gathered that, for a time at least, there was slight hope of return of moderate carrying costs for margined stock.

An important occurrence of the day was a rise in the price of silver to $1.30⅜ per ounce under open market bidding, a new high record price for the movement, and one which carried the bullion value of the silver dollar above the coinage parity. The exchange value of the metal was quoted at $1.27, compared with $1.23⅝ at the end of last week, which followed the unusual advance from 47 to 64¾d for silver in London. It will be recalled that last Friday the British Government ruled that hereafter the metal could not be exported except under supervision, and the advance at the British centre told of the strong demand that existed in home sources. China is bidding for silver wherever it may be obtained, our export figures showing that since last May, when wartime restrictions of shipments abroad were removed, the movement to this Far Eastern point has been steadily on the increase.

Foreign exchanges displayed a tendency to go lower. This was particularly the case with lire, the rate for checks reaching 11.80, far and away a new low record.

CAUSED BY CHINA'S BUYING

Silver bullion yesterday sold at $1.30½ an ounce, thus going under the "16 to 1" ratio to gold for the first time in nearly fifty years. At that price the ratio was 15⅝ to 1. The so-called parity of silver is $1.2929 an ounce. This is arrived at by the fact that in 1,000 silver dollars of full weight there are 859⅜ ounces of silver of the 9-10 fineness of American coin, or 773 7-16 ounces of fine silver, and at $1.2929 an ounce this would be worth $1,000.

Yesterday's price was the highest reported since 1872, when the metal sold at $1.32½ an ounce, shortly before silver was demonetised by international agreement. The highest price on record is the 62¾d figure which was reached in London in 1850. That price, translated at the rate of sterling exchange then prevailing, $4.87 to the pound, was equal to $1.37½ an ounce here in New York.

In London yesterday silver sold at 68⅝d, a new high record for that market for all time, and with sterling exchange quoted at $4.14 this gave an American equivalent of $1.27. Had sterling been at $4.87 to the pound yesterday's price in London would have been equal to $1.5109 here. And that, in reality, is the present value of silver in the London market.

The present advance in the metal is said to be due to enormous demands from China. From the Summer of 1918 until May 6 of this year there was an embargo on the export of silver coin or bullion out of the United States except on license from the Federal Reserve Board, and that body granted few licenses except for export to European Allies, chiefly England and to British India and Hongkong. That arrangement was part of the administration of the Pittman act, which provided for the melting of some $400,000,000 in American silver dollars and the export of the bullion to allied countries and India.

Lay Advance to China's Demands.

In the ten months from July 1, 1918, to the end of April this year total exports of silver out of the United States amounted to $259,967,587, of which England, Canada, India, and Hongkong got $238,652,081, and of the balance $16,179,121 went to China, normally the greatest silver consuming country in the world. This interruption in the export of silver to China reduced the ordinary stocks of the metal in that country considerably, as also did the British and Indian purchases of silver in China. Since the lifting of the embargo, China has become the most persistent bidder in this market, and dealers report that recently Chinese interests have shown willingness to outbid all other sources of demand.

Exports of American silver since the lifting of the embargo last May, to the end of August, the last month for which there are detailed figures, show that China is taking more silver than all other countries combined. Unofficial figures for September and October, furthermore, indicate an expansion in the Chinese demand rather than a contraction, and at present it is said Chinese agents are willing to buy upward of 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 ounces a month.

In detail, the figures of exports of silver, showing the takings of China, those of England, Canada, India, and Hongkong, and the total amount for the period from July 1, 1918, to Aug. 31, 1919, follow:

Aug. '18
Aug.	10,911,987	2,198,605	13,808,877

These figures show how China is making its demand felt. The Government, it is understood, has stopped melting silver dollars, thus throwing the market back for its supply on the ordinary production of American mines, and this source of supply has been curtailed since the copper production of the country has fallen off. Partly to offset this, there has been an increase in Mexican silver production, which last year ran at about 40,000,000 ounces and this year is expected to equal 50,000,000 ounces.

The demand for silver has caused England and France to prohibit export out of those countries. This was done because the price of the metal has reached a point where it is profitable to melt down British and French coin for the bullion contained. The silver content of the British shilling, for example, is worth at the rate of 66d per ounce, whereas yesterday's quotation was 68⅝d.

Bullion dealers said yesterday that at $1.30 an ounce. American silver coin might profitably be melted for the silver bullion value, although, they added, this was doubtful because of the fact that many coins are "short weight," due to abrasion, and also to the cost of accumulating coins in sufficient numbers to make the cost of melting a nominal factor.

London Losing Its Supremacy.

London silver market, which formerly was the primary market of the world, has lost much of its old power and, according to dealers in the metal, is in danger of losing all its potency because of the movement of silver to the Orient. In normal pre-war days the stocks of silver held in warehouses in London ran between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 ounces, and occasionally more.

Now, with most of the American production going to the Orient, and with the old London stocks reduced by the high cost and the heavy demand, the amount held there is thought to be virtually nil. If the export movement to China continues, it is believed, the London market will shortly cease to be the prime market, and will be replaced by the New York market.

Dealers of long experience yesterday recalled that in 1859, when silver went to the highest figure ever touched, conditions were rather similar to those obtaining now. The Crimean War of 1854 and 1855, had caused England to incur heavy debts in the Far East, and the Indian Mutiny of 1857 had further complicated the situation, necessitating heavy advances to the East India Company, which were made almost solely in silver. That need of the British Government forced the price up from around 58½d to 62¾d.

That advance, was not nearly so sensational as the advance which has taken place here since the embargo on exports was lifted. On May 6, silver sold at $1.01 an ounce, or at the ratio of 20.42 to 1 of gold. On May 12, it had shot up to $1.20 in the open market, but it reacted to $1.09 on July 17. This reaction was followed by an advance to $1.15 on Aug. 27, which was the highest price reached until the latest advance started two weeks ago.

Surety Agreement with Express Co.

William B. Joyce, President of the National Surety Company announced yesterday that an agreement had been entered into with the old American Express Company whereby the branches of the latter in various parts of the world will be able to execute bonds and guarantees for National Surety Company clients. When business firms in the United States wish to have surety bonds executed in foreign cities, the National Surety Company will ask the American Express Company to cable its manager in the foreign city to execute the bond. The same arrangement will apply to the adjustment of claims.

STEEL BOOKINGS LARGER.

Corporation Reports Unfilled Orders for 6,472,668 Tons.

A gain of 188,030 tons in unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation as of Oct. 31 was reported yesterday, the orders amounting to 6,472,668 tons, compared with 6,284,538 tons at the end of September. At the close of the corresponding month last year the forward bookings were 8,353,203 tons. The October figures are the highest reported for any month this year, with the exception of January, when there was still a goodly proportion of Government orders that had been canceled but which had not been written off. The peak of unfilled orders was reached at the close of April, 1917, when they amounted to 12,183,083 tons. Following that month there was a steady decline, which was not checked until June of this year, when an upturn began. The increase since then has been more than 2,000,000 tons.

The increase during June, July, and August averaged about 600,000 tons. During the two following months it was about 180,000 tons. Unfilled tonnage during October was affected by the strike.

	1919	1918	1917
May	4,282,310	8,357,623	11,886,591
July	5,578,661	8,883,801	10,844,104
August	6,109,103	8,759,042	10,407,040
September	6,284,638	8,297,905	9,885,477
October	6,472,668	8,353,293	9,009,675
November		8,124,663	8,897,106
December		7,379,152	9,381,718

The demand for steel products is heavier now than at any time since the signing of the armistice and it was predicted yesterday that the unfilled orders of the Steel Corporation would be substantially higher by the end of the year.

DOWNWARD TREND IN COTTON MARKET

PRICES OFF 15 TO 85 POINTS

There was a good deal of irregularity in yesterday's cotton market and, for the most part, the bears had decidedly the better of the argument. The unsettled labor situation and the fears of what might happen, as well as the knowledge of what was happening in the stock market, upset a good many bullish calculations among the so-called Wall Street houses, and before the day had gone far precipitated a deluge of selling orders from this quarter. The trade also sold some contracts on the early prices and the hedge sellers from the South came into the future market here, but not as buyers. Rather, they sold along with the rest and with this accumulation of pressure the market first faltered and then broke.

Starting from a level which was 20 points up for December, 15 points up for January, and about on a parity with Saturday's closing for the later months, the market cracked badly by midday, the near months going off about 55 points and July losing all of 80 points before the decline was checked. Then, in the middle of the afternoon, the market rallied, but only regained a portion of its earlier losses. The best recovery of the day was made by December, which got back to within 15 points of where it had closed last week. The others, beginning with January, which closed down 25 points, were strung out in substantial losses, ranging to as much as 80 points in July and 85 points in September of the 1920 crop.

The break yesterday was due entirely to influences not directly concerned with the market. The technical position, which probably is not as strong as it might be, would hardly have accounted for any such break as was seen yesterday. But the unsettlement outside of the market, especially the developments in securities markets, proved too much for the ordinarily bullish factors to overcome.

Reports from the belt spoke of a continuance of bad weather over Sunday. In the western and central parts of the belt the weather was especially unfavorable, and under ordinary circumstances this might have turned out a pronounced bullish influence. But yesterday, with the outside news so bad, weather conditions were generally overlooked.

PLAN OIL COMPANY MERGER.

Commonwealth Petroleum and the Union of Delaware to Unite.

Arrangements are being made to consolidate the Commonwealth Petroleum Corporation and the Union Oil Company of Delaware. Details of the plan have been worked out by a special committee representing the boards of both companies, and an official announcement will be made within a week or ten days. It is understood the basis of exchange will be not less than one and one-fourth shares of Union Oil Company for each share of Commonwealth.

The companies have been closely associated for some time. The Union of Delaware recently took over a substantial interest in the Union Oil Company of California at a price said to be $160 a share. This issue is now selling in San Francisco in the neighborhood of $220 a share.

HOUSE WILL RUSH RAILROAD BILL

Blanton Denounces Omission of Anti-Strike Provisions as a Fatal Defect.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Railroad bill will have the right of way in the House tomorrow, with the final vote set for Saturday, under an agreement reached tonight by leaders. Action on the bill will be followed immediately by adjournment of the special session of Congress, the agreement provides, consideration of the measure by the Senate going over until the regular session, beginning in December.

Under a rule adopted tonight, the House agreed to meet two hours earlier than customary and to begin night sessions immediately. General debate will end on Wednesday.

The House program was framed after Representative Mondell, Republican House leader, had been informed by Senator Lodge that Senate leaders hoped to dispose of the German Peace Treaty by the end of the week.

In the formal report on the House Railroad bill, made today by Chairman Esch of the Interstate Commerce Committee, it was revealed that the measure contained a mandate to the carriers to apply for general increases of rates within sixty days after their return to private operation. Unless such applications for increases are made to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the bill will deny them the guarantee, including continuance by the Government of their standard return for six months and their privilege of obtaining Government loans.

Simultaneously with the report on the House measure Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, submitted a report expressing his individual views on the senate plan of permanent railroad legislation. Defending the anti-strike provision of the Senate bill, Senator Cummins declared that "strikes by railway workers must cease," and that the arbitration boards created by the bill would "give justice to all," even assuring the unions that they could accomplish more through the boards than by strikes.

Anti-strike legislation is not a part of the House measure. Chairman Esch said that the committee had decided that such provisions were unwise and had adopted plans for conciliation through voluntary arbitration of disputes.

The committee in its report said it did not attempt to adopt new and untried plans, but had built on a foundation already in existence. Government ownership was rejected, it was explained, because of the President's announced intention to return the lines to private operation at the end of the year, the desire for such action by the carriers and "the widespread demand among the people that Federal control cease as soon as suitable legislation could be enacted."

The Plumb plan was also rejected, the report said, because its provisions were "so radical and the principles so foreign to the fundamental principles of our Government that it was considered by the committee as impossible."

Opposing creation of a transportation board, as proposed in the Senate measure, the report said such an organization to advise the Interstate Commerce Commission would be a needless and expensive burden, more subject to political influence than the Interstate Commerce Commission.

His report provoked the first attack on the House bill, Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, contending that the measure gave the public "no guarantee, or even promise, against continued tieups of Government industries."

See Good Points in Both Bills.

Local railroad executives were inclined to be cautious yesterday in discussing the Esch Railroad bill as it was summarized in news dispatches from Washington. While it appeared that the measure, as reported, was a disappointment in some quarters, in others it was accepted as a step in the right direction. Summarized, local railroad sentiment leaned to the belief that the good points in the Esch bill and those in the Cummins bill would be merged into a temporary railroad measure which would allow for the return of the carriers to private control at the close of this year.

The proposal contained in the House bill that loans be made to the roads which were in need of funds to maintain a proper service to the public, and that such loans be extended for a reasonable period by the Treasury Department, was also received variously. Some railroad heads seemed to think that more time than was proposed in the bill should be allowed for the roads to pay off any such loans as might be advanced.

The provision for the settlement of labor disputes as suggested in the bill met with disapproval in some quarters, where it was characterized as "a surrender to organized labor," while in others decision was reserved pending the receipt of the full text of the bill.

While there was a difference of opinion on the measures reported upon, there was general approval of the news that the bill would go to the House today and would be debated for the remainder of the week. This was due to the realization that no time should be lost in the framing of remedial temporary laws which would bring about the return of the railroads to private operation at the beginning of the year. Another point which met with general approval was the proposal that the $900,000,000 standard return guaranteed to the carriers by the Government be continued for six months after they were turned back.

The provision contained in the House bill which proposes to require the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider "the interest of the public, the shipper, the reasonable cost of maintenance of operation, including the wages of labor, depreciation and taxes and a fair return upon the value of the property used or held for the service of transportation," and the continuation of rates initiated by the Railroad Administratoin until such time as they might be changed by authority of law, did not cause particular comment.

Dealing in Necessities

Statistics have always revealed the fact that the consumption of those commodities essential to human comfort and the conduct of business suffer the least curtailment during hard times.

The earnings of companies supplying necessities are therefore doubly well fortified from shrinkage under adverse conditions.

LAWTON BEQUESTS PUZZLE OFFICIALS

ASK RULING FROM PALMER

Settlement of the $500,000 estate of Mrs. Eliza Mackintosh Clinch Anderson Lawton, daughter of General Robert Anderson who fired the first shot in defense of the Union in the Civil War, at Fort Sumter, hinges upon acceptance or rejection by Attorney General Palmer of $48,000 in bequests which Mrs. Lawton's novel will gave to the "Government of the United States."

This was disclosed yesterday when it was ascertained that United States District Attorney Francis Caffey was still awaiting word from Washington as to his further course in the matter. Mr. Caffey has put in an appearance in the will probation, but will take no other action until Mr. Palmer has given an opinion as whether the Government can assume the burden of the bequests.

Mrs. Lawton died in this city Aug. 22, and her will, naming Supreme Court Justice Edward R. Finch and the Union Trust Company as executors and trustees, was filed Oct. 8. It was probated Nov. 3. The will was dated July 13, 1917, and was witnessed by Harlow Brooks of 5 West Ninth Street, James W. Sears of 37 Fifth Avenue, and John B. Pine of 24 Gramercy Park.

After providing for the erection of a monument in the cemetery at West Point, the will continued:

"As memorials of my father, General Robert Anderson, I give and bequeath to the Government of the United States of America:

"1. The sum of $5,000, or so much thereof as is necessary, to be applied to the cost of a stained glass window, of a design to be approved by my executors, to be placed in the chapel at Fortress Monroe;

For Statue in Fort Sumter.

"2. The further sum of $15,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to provide a set of chimes for the chapel at West Point, and I request that my intention in respect to such chimes may be carried out under the direction of the Rev. H. Percy Silver, or the chaplain for the time being;

"3. The further sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be applied to the execution of a statue of my father, of a design to be applied by my executors, to be placed in Fort Sumter, Charleston, South Carolina. Should I accomplish any or all of these purposes in whole or in part during my lifetime, in accordance with my wish and intentions, or should I make any payment on account thereof, I direct that the legacy which I have left for such purpose or purposes shall lapse or abate proportionately.

"5. I give and bequeath to the Government of the United States the sum of $3,000 to be held as a permanent fund, and the income expended by the Quartermaster of West Point for the purchase of flowers to be placed on the graves in our family plots in the West Point Cemetery on Memorial Sunday and All Saints' Day, and for the care of such plots."

Additional bequests showing Mrs. Lawton's desire to perpetuate the memory of her father were the gift of $25,000 to Teachers' College, to endow a scholarship to be known as the General Robert Anderson Scholarship. This, under the terms of the bequest, is to be awarded annually by the Committee on Scholarships of the Daughters of the Cincinnati.

Mrs. Lawton also left $5,000 each to the Anderson Camp, No. 167, Sons of Veterans, and to the Ladies' Auxiliary connected with that camp. The sum of $500 each was left to Robert Anderson Post, No. 394, G. A. R., and to the Anderson Zouaves to defray the expenses of visits to General Anderson's grave on Memorial Sunday.

Bequest for Christmas Trees.

Other bequests amounted to about $160,000. Among them were two that threaten to cause as much legal trouble as the gifts to the Government. One was a $1,000 fund to the Washington Square Association for a Christmas tree every year in the Square, a gift not yet accepted. The other was for a $3,000 fund, the income of which was to be devoted "to relief of suffering caused by the war."

At the office of Coleman, Stern & Gottheld, attorneys, at 60 Wall Street, counsel for Mrs. Lawton, it was said that it probably would be necessary to ask the courts to determine how the interest of the fund should be apportioned to persons suffering from the war—"to those who are suffering from rents caused by the war, or to crippled veterans, or to whom?"

One of the largest beneficiaries under the will was Grace Church. One item left to the church was $3,000, the income from which was to be devoted to the purchase and importation of palms from Cuba for distribution on Palm Sunday.

UPHOLDS RATE INCREASE.

Federal Court Backs Missouri Commission in Kansas City Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Appeals of Kansas City officials from decrees of the Missouri Supreme Court upholding orders of the Missouri Public Service Commission increasing car fares in that city to 6 cents were dismissed today by the Supreme Court.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—The franchise of the Kansas City Railways provides for a 5-cent fare without reservation or modifying clauses. In 1918 the Public Service Commission fixed the fare at 6 cents. The Missouri Supreme Court held that when the Legislature created the Public Service Commission it restored to the State the power formerly vested in cities by charter to fix rates in public utility charges within the State.

The city appealed to the Federal Supreme Court, setting up that a contract franchise was sacred under all conditions and the State had no power to abrogate it.

TELLS OF GAS CO.'S LOSSES.

Figures showing that the Consolidated Gas Company is losing $18,000 a day, including a 7 per cent. dividend, were submitted yesterday by A. W. Teele, an accountant, who testified before A. S. Gilbert, the Special Master appointed to take testimony in the company's suit to have the 80-cent gas law declared unconstitutional.

According to the witness it cost the company $8,204,782.11 to make the 12,253,567,000 cubic feet of gas it made during the first eight months of the current year and $2,504,715.84 to distribute it. Including taxes and other costs, the company, during the eight-months period, lost $1,171,928.23. It was also stated that it would cost each consumer only an additional 2 cents a day to enable the company to pay dividends and all operating costs.

Creating Good Will in Canada

DURING the twelve months ending September, 1919, Canadian imports from the United States decreased $125,000,000. This was due partly to the high premium demanded in Canada for American funds, partly to the fact that a fluctuating rate of exchange made the future profits of Canadian importers of American goods problematical.

Individually American exporters cannot hope to affect the factors governing the situation in the Canadian exchange market. They can, however, mitigate its effect on their Canadian customers by protecting them against fluctuations in exchange at the time they contract to ship goods. This can be done in a number of ways. The officers of the New York Agency of the Union Bank of Canada will be pleased to suggest methods best suited to special needs.

Why not protect your Canadian business by serving your Canadian customer?

In the Days of the Buccaneers

WHEN the pirates swarmed over the gunls, the safety of your goods, depended on the strong arm of the captain and his crew. If they failed, you lost everything completely and irrevocably.

TODAY, the underwriting of your exports and imports protects you from loss better than the bravest captain or the staunchest ship. Insurance is the bulwark between you and disaster.

AUTOMATIC HAT BOY SHOWN TO HOTEL MEN

NEW LABOR-SAVING DEVICES

How to make a hotel as much like a home as possible is the chief thing that will be demonstrated at the Fourth Annual National Hotel Men's Exposition, which opened yesterday at the Grand Central Palace. Fully 15,000 men interested in hotels in every section of the United States as well as Canada, Belgium, France and South America, have come to New York to this exposition, it was stated, for the main purpose of learning the best means of making a hostelry more comfortable than the best regulated home. And to this end are exhibited devices without number.

Of all these ingenious devices, the one which will probably create the most interest is the automatic hat boy. This contrivance is intended by its inventor to do away with a tipping nuisance which, according to the most conservative estimate, brings the cost of an ordinary hat to somewhere near a hundred dollars before its owner is finished with it. The automatic hat boy is a machine in appearance not unlike the old hat rack familiar in the front halls of the homes of bygone days. No money will have to be expended by men or women who wish to leave their hats or coats in a safe place during a hasty meal when this device becomes, as hotel men say it will become, a part of every hotel dining room.

Other features of this "let-the-hotel-be-your-home" campaign include a card file, made in duplicate or triplicate, for the use of the various departments of a hotel, to indicate the preferences of different guests. For example, this file will show at an instant at what time Mr. Brown, in Room 461, wishes to be called each morning, what newspaper he reads, and even whether he likes his eggs turned or not. It was declared by hotel men yesterday that attention in such small matters made the difference between what the guest regarded as a mere sleeping place and a home.

In opening the exposition, Edward M. Tierney, Chairman, dwelt on the necessity of developing labor-saving machinery for use in the hotels in case of strikes or other labor disturbances.

"It behooves every wide-awake hotel man," said Mr. Tierney, "to apply the 'safety first' principle to his business by installing the latest approved labor-saving devices and machines in his hotel, so that he may feel assured he has protected himself against a complete 'tie up' when the menacing hand of a strike among his employes confronts him."

The delegates to the exposition were entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Park Avenue Hotel by its proprietor, George C. Brown. The luncheon was termed "Colonial," and to carry out the effect even the lighting was by candles, each stuck in an empty champagne bottle. The bottles bore this inscription: "Alack and alas, there was a time when I lit them in the good old way."

During the exposition and in conjunction with it at the Palace, the chefs, organized in the Société Culinaire Philanthropique of New York, are holding their fifty-first Salon of Culinary Art. Every day will see a contest to determine who can make the most delicious bread, cake, French pastry, as well as spare rancy dishes of fish and fowl.

"When I was ready to enter business I decided that the occupation I chose would have to have a future in it for me. The pay should be good and be increased at reasonable intervals. The organization into which I went not only must provide an opportunity for me to advance myself but must show willingness to help me get ahead. The work must be clean and interesting and devoid of unpleasant influences. It had to be done in clean, well-ventilated rooms. The working hours had to be reasonable. If I became sick during employment I felt that I should be protected against loss of pay. I wanted to be assured that my employer would look after my comfort and convenience both when at work and when off duty. And if the business I entered required preliminary training I felt that my employer should pay me for that preparation.

"Telephone operating met every one of my requirements. So I have this message for young women 16 to 35 years of age who seek steady, worth-while employment: Find out about telephone operating and do it today."

CHARGES RUSSIANS DID NOT HELP ALLIES

Declares People Protested That They Were Deserted, Yet Did Not Aid in the Fighting.

Captain William Prothero of the Cunarder Royal George, which sailed last night for Havre and Southampton with passengers and mails after being twenty-four hours in port, was in command of the chartered Russian steamship Czar carrying American and British troops from England to Russia.

The Captain made his first trip to Archangel in May, 1918, when he had to break his way through twelve feet of ice, and the Czar was the last ship to leave Archangel on Sept. 27, 1919, carrying the remainder of the British naval and military forces.

"When we left there," said the Captain, "Archangel was like a city of the dead, and the inhabitants, with a look of utter despair in their eyes, were the mourners. The Russians said that the Allies had forgotten the steam roller which had saved France and England from being overwhelmed early in the war by the enemy and were leaving them to their fate. We left them plenty of ammunition dumps, guns, motor cars, artillery, airplanes, and stores of all kinds with which to carry on the war against the Bolsheviki, and they said that they would do it, but the enemy outnumbered the Russians three to one, so that the chances were very much against them.

"The feeling against the Allies was so intense when the Czar left Archangel that General Ironsides, the commander of the allied forces, gave orders that the bridge and steering apparatus of the transport should be protected by sand bags in case the Russians opened fire upon us in their despair at seeing their last hope for protection vanish. Hundreds of the sorrow-stricken inhabitants were at the piers to see the ship leave, but not a gun was fired.

"In spite of their charges that the Allies had deserted them, the Russians did not help the Allies in the fighting in the north when they arrived. Had they done so the Bolsheviki might have been driven out of that section of the country. The British troops who came back with us to England on the Czar, numbering 2,000 with the naval contingent, had to fight their way, foot by foot, from the Dvina River to the coast and many lives were lost. We brought the American troops to Brest on the previous trip."

Capitalizing Your Ability

THE man who really capitalizes his ability as an executive spends his time, not in running the business, but in building it so that it will run.

He recognizes that the business that can "get along" without the trained assistance of the Certified Public Accountant is not likely to be as well founded as the one that openly recognizes the NEED for him.

It is the Certified Public Accountant who is the business counselor and advisor of today. He is continually solving inside problems through outside experience. He is a material factor in capitalizing the executive's ability.
